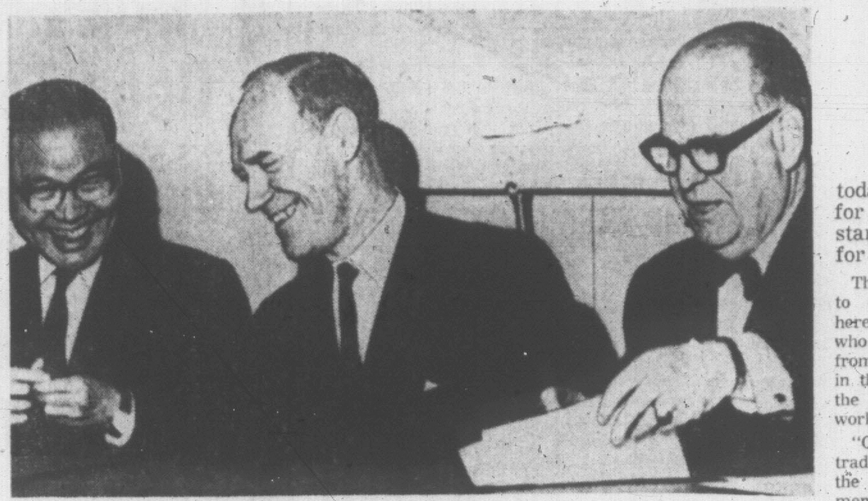
Wheat Sale to China May Reach Record Size



ALL SMILES are Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, centre, and Chief Commissioner W. C. McNamara of the Canadian Wheat Board as Te Tsien Ting puts away his pen after signing three to five-year wheat agreement in Montreal. Tsien Ting is manager of the China Resources Company. Big deal was announced today in Winnipeg. (CP Wirephoto.)

'Escalation' Clause in Pact

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian wheat board today announced a three-year agreement with China for the sale of at least 112,000,000 bushels of wheat starting next Aug. 1, and added it may be renegotiated for a much as 466,000,000 bushels over a five-year term.

The announcement was timed to coincide with the arrival here of Trade Minister Sharp, who said its value could range from a minimum of $200,000,000 in three years to $900,000,000 if the maximum five-year deal is worked out.

"On this basis," said the trade minister, "this would be the largest single wheat agreement ever concluded by the Canadian wheat board."

PLAN MORE TALKS

The board statement said the immediate agreement, signed earlier in Montreal, is for a minimum of 112,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 186,700,000 bushels over a three-year period beginning Aug. 1, 1966. Specific quantities, prices and shipping periods are to be negotiated periodically.

Before next May 1, however, "consideration will ge given" to two alternatives:

1. Increasing the quantity of the three-year agreement to a minimum of 168,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 280,000,000 bushels;

2. Extending the agreement to five years, involving a a minimum of 280,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 466,000,000 bushels.

Terms are similar to that in the current three-year agreement, expiring next July 31, under which China already has ordered the maximum 187,000,000 bushels worth about $336,000,000.

They call for 25 per cent cash at the time of loading with the balance in 18 months, with interest.

EXPECTS BIG SALE

Mr. Sharp's statement said past experience with the Chinese indicates quantities purchased will be "closer to the maximum figure" allowed in the contract.

The deferred-payment provision was made possible by a Canadian government guarantee to the wheat board.

"A revolving credit level of over $200,000,000 was required to facilitate this agreement and the government was pleased to provide the necessary credit guarantee which makes this business possible."

Coinciding with the deal, the annual export limit of "sensitive items" to Canada from China is increased to $10,000,000 from $7,000,000.

Said the minister:

"The Chinese corporation discussed with me their efforts to maintain and develop their market in Canada for various items. It is of course in our mutual interest to provide them with an opportunity to do so, subject to appropriate safeguards to avoid market disruption and damage to Canadian producers.

PRODUCERS PROTECTED

"Canadian producers of sensitive items are protected by individual quota restrictions. These are to be determined later by agreement between the two parties."

Grades of wheat involved in the deal were not announced but bulk of the final contract under the current three-year agreement, announced July 21, was lower grades—No. 4 northern,

Maritimes Promised New Deal

Area Forgotten By Grits: Dief

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker Wednesday night emptied a bag of Maritime promises to the largest political rally held in New Brunswick in this campaign.

Close to 3,500, a few hundred less than capacity, cheered the Tory chief who was making his second foray into the Atlantic provinces.

Today he campaigns in Prince Edward Island, the only province which he has not yet visited.

On the eve of Diefenbaker's visit the mayors of Halifax and Dartmouth in Nova Scotia and Saint John and Fredericton in New Brunswick released the text of a letter they had sent in August to Industry Minister Charles Drury asking that their areas be given 90 per cent of grants available to designated areas.

Diefenbaker said the Liberals had discriminated against the Maritimes and a Tory government would designate all the four areas so they could get the full grant.

"FORGOT MARITIMES"

"What was the attitude of the Liberals for 22 years?" he asked.

"They forgot that the Maritimes existed. We acted."

A Conservative government would:

- Restore shipbuilding subsidies which the government has frozen for several months.
- Revamp the Atlantic Development Board and provide necessary funds to continue its work. (The Liberals gave the fund $100 million.)
- A special case would be made for Maritime universities where the number of student per population was far higher than in the rest of Canada.
- Make a full and careful study of the long-suffering Chignecto Canal project and promote plans for the Bay of Fundy tidal power project.

NATIONAL SYMBOLS

And deep in red ensign territory he again scored the government for whittling away at national symbols.

Not one new flag was in the hall and the crowd roared approval when Diefenbaker said: "I am not ashamed of the stand I took on that issue."

One of the first things a Tory government would do would be to remove any reference of the off-shore mineral rights ques-

4,000 A MONTH

Refugee Pact By Cuba, U.S.

HAVANA (CP)—Premier Fidel Castro today cut off the sea exodus of Cubans from the port of Camarico as a prelude to a U.S.-Cuban agreement to bring 3,000 to 4,000 refugees a month to the United States by air.

(In Key West, Fla., a U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said hundreds of Cubans have set sail for Florida despite bad weather. Waves 10 feet high were reported in the Florida Straits which separate Cuba and the U.S.)

The agreement is expected to be announced in Washington and Havana Friday.

The announcement cutting off the Camarioca exodus at midnight tonight came after a post-midnight meeting between Castro and Emil Stadelhofer, the Swiss ambassador to Havana.

The Swiss embassy represents U.S. interests in Cuba. Stadelhofer returned Wednesday from conferences in Washington.

Informed sources said the agreement calls for Cubans with relatives in the United States to be flown from Varadero airport, 85 miles east of Havana.

American planes — probably two a day carrying fewer than 100 persons each—will make the flights to airports in Florida, the sources said.

More than 3,000 refugees have sailed across the Florida Straits since Castro announced his open door policy earlier this month. They sailed in small boats piloted by their relatives in the United States.

WIRE BRIEFS

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian wheat board today ordered Manitoba country elevator agents to stop shipping damp grain to the Lakehead because it is clogging terminals.

Protest Sent to PM

CLARKSON, Ont. (CP)—John Kane, president of Local 9593 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (CLC), has sent two telegrams to Prime Minister Pearson protesting the federal government's use of petroleum products produced at the British American Oil Co's plant here.

Canada, U.S. Forest Pact 'In Works'

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP) — Negotiations for a Canada-U.S. forest products pact similar to the automobile agreement will begin after the Nov. 8 federal election, Jack Davis, Liberal candidate in Coast-Capilano, said Wednesday.

Mr. Davis, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Pearson in the last parliament, said the pact is "definitely in the works."

"It is being actively explored on both sides of the border," he told an all-candidates meeting of this logging community 40 miles north of Vancouver.

"Right now there are no formal discussions but I would expect negotiations to be initiated right after the election."

Mr. Davis said a forest products pact would mean British Columbia would be able to send not only newsprint and pulp to the U.S., but more manufactured paper products, particularly fine papers.

'MADE UP LOST GROUND FOR RHODESIA'

(See story page 40.)

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said today remarks Tuesday night by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, "more than made up lost ground for Rhodesia."

He referred to Dr. Ramsey's speech to the British Council of Churches in which the Anglican primate said Christians should support the use of British force in Rhodesia if the British government decided it was necessary.

His comments provoked a storm of criticism.

"I suppose I must be grateful for the worthy gentleman's remarks," Smith said today. "I gather we lost a little bit of ground when we restricted former prime minister Mr. Garfield Todd. Now we have more than made up for the lost ground."

Hopes Dim For Agreement On Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters)—British Prime Minister Wilson lunched today with Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia and the British leader prepared to meet later with the colony's two African nationalist heads.

It was the third meeting between the two key figures in the protracted Rhodesian crisis precipitated by Smith's threat to declare independence unilaterally and Britain's counter-threat of economic retaliation.

(In London the British cabinet met as hopes for the success of Wilson's mission dwindled. Informed sources said it appeared almost certain that Wilson would return Saturday without making any progress in his negotiations with Smith.)

Earlier today, Smith continued meetings with his cabinet while Wilson received a 26-man delegation of the provincial council of chiefs representing Rhodesia's 208 African chiefs and 400 headmen.

The council claims to represent the majority of the country's 4,000,000 Negro population, in opposition to the claims of African nationalist leaders Joshua Nkomo and Rev. Ndabanidni Sithole.

Wilson met the two Wednesday while Negroes staged demonstrations in the capital, and scheduled further talks with them today.

WON'T MEET LEADERS

After a 3½-hour meeting with his cabinet, Smith told reporters he would not sit around a table with Nkomo and Sithole. At an impromptu press conference on the doorstep of his office, he said: "Our position is quite clear on this. We have said on many occasions that we can't sit around a table with these people.

'FIRST RETREAT IN CAMPAIGN'

Wackiest, Wildest Meeting Sparked by a Dead 'Mike'

By IAN MacDONALD
Ottawa Bureau Staff Writer

TORONTO — Bandsmen in bright red uniforms blared out "Put On a Happy Smile."

Prime Minister Pearson threaded his way towards a platform through an estimated 14,000 people gathered in the world's largest covered shopping plaza.

A girl cleared her throat in readiness to sing O Canada.

A party spokesman leaned into the microphone to make the opening announcement.

There was silence.

In unbelieving horror, David Greenspan tapped the mikes and made another try.

Nothing.

And from that moment on—about 8:08 p.m.—developed the wildest, and most certainly, wackiest meeting of the campaign.

WOMEN FAINTED

There was noise, confusion, chaos, heat, fainting women, a handful of chanting, bearded peaceniks, pushing and waving placards, bands blaring in competition, a lone but loud piper, screaming cheer leaders, and some very confused people who had only come to Yorkdale Plaza to shop.

Some Liberal officials wore tight-lipped smiles, while others had end-of-the-world looks.

But Pearson kept a happy, if perspiring, face.

His big show Wednesday night in the modern, multi-million dollar setting had been let down by a simple electronics failure.

He didn't get mad; he didn't quit and he didn't lay blame.

He went down into the milling mob to shake hands, surrounded by plainclothes police who were almost swamped by the excited crowd.

PEOPLE CRUSHED

The people had come to see and hear Pearson—his planned speech was only to have lasted about 12 minutes and was a "let's-go-out-and-win" thing.

But nothing went right. He made three attempts to speak to the crowd through a hand

ANOTHER VOTE NEXT YEAR?

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said today that if the Liberals don't win a majority in the Nov. 8 election there will be another election next year.

He made the statement as an off-the-cuff remark to workers in the campaign headquarters of David Hahn, Liberal candidate in Toronto Broadview.

He said the Liberals are the only party with a chance to win a majority.

"There will be another election next year if we don't," he said.

Four U.S. Spacemen To Try Rendezvous

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two U.S. astronauts will blast off into orbit in December, and two more spacemen will try to rendezvous with them about 10 days later, it was learned today.

Leading off will be Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, who are scheduled to take off from Cape Kennedy on Dec. 8 on a record 14-day, 209-orbit journey around earth.

If all goes well, Gemini 6 pilots Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford, grounded earlier this week in the nation's first attempt at a "chase in space," will be launched from the same Cape Kennedy firing pad, to try to catch up with their buddies.

The two spaceships will attempt to manoeuvre within a few feet of each other. There will be no space-walking in this flight.

Tory Strength 'Fantastically Low'

By PETER REGENSTREIF

VANCOUVER—A precipitate decline of Conservative strength is the major development of the electoral battle in British Columbia.

From the vantage point of 1965, it is extremely difficult to recall that it was here in this city of Vancouver that John Diefenbaker first really caught fire in 1958.

"Follow John" was his slogan then and so powerful was his appeal that the only opposition remaining after the dust had settled across the province was a lonely four CCFers from hard-core working-class areas.

Conservative fortunes have waned with each successive election since then and by now they have plummeted to a fantastic low.

Diefenbaker is almost no longer even an issue. He is simply out of the running. If Pearson could exert any sort of a personal attraction here, that would settle the question and the Liberals would be pulling away. They are not.

The major element in Liberal favor is prosperity. British Columbia is booming. While the Social Credit provincial administration of Premier Bennett gets some credit, the federal government gets its share too.

What originally damaged Diefenbaker here in 1962 was unemployment. The electorate still remembers and this also hurts Tory chances. The new pension plan also helps the Liberals.

As a 52-year-old draftsman in Vancouver Quadra put it: "I'd vote Conservative right off the bat if it weren't for Diefenbaker. But, you know, I may be voting Liberal because if the Conservatives get back in, they might upset this pension thing. That's one big point. And things are very good now. That's another issue for you."

In Burnaby-Richmond, a first-time voter briefly analyzed his Liberal intentions as follows: "I think they've done a lot for the country as far as unemployment is concerned."

However, with Douglas and Thompson running ahead of

WE WERE RIDING ALONG . . . . . . WHILE DINNER COOKED

Lift the Hood, Mother, the Roast Is Done

By DOROTHY CRANDALL
Boston Globe Food Editor

BOSTON (AP)—Chalk one up for women drivers: They are cooking under the hood of the car, with the youngsters in the back seat and the wheel rolling.

"Forget about the oil, just check the roast," one pioneer chef told her filling station attendant. Sure enough there it was, a foil-wrapped package riding on the exhaust manifold, hottest spot under the hood.

We tried it, following the lead of Norma Bidwell, Canadian housewife who has been roasting-while-rolling all summer. Mrs. Bidwell, food editor of the Hamilton Spectator, said:

"My husband scoffed the first time I handed him a three - pound foil wrapped package of raw meat and said, "we'll cook it under the hood."

"But 10 minutes after we arrived at the cottage the six of us were munching happily on hot roast beef sandwiches with tender-crisp onions and seasoning with cook-on sauce.

The rules for road cooking:

Wrap a two-to-three pound roast, not over two inches thick (for a three-hour drive) in a large sheet of extra-heavy-duty foil, fold edges together twice to make a lock seam;

Use a wire hanger to anchor the meat to the manifold;

Stop halfway to your destination to turn the roast;

Don't stop to visit with friends for your roast needs three hours driving time;

Don't try turkey.

"During the early stages of a turkey's cooking, it gets bouncy. It sticks its elbows out and pushes away from the heat. You try to push it back and its sticks a drumstick through the foil."

This means trouble — like grease burning on the manifold.

In Hamilton, Mrs. Bidwell said she got the idea from an Edmonton story last May about an army chef who sizzled a beef roast on a 200-mile drive from Edmonton to Calgary.

Warrant Officer Bert Quaintance experimented with under-the-hood cooking after watching a demonstration in which a cake was baked with the heat of only three candles.

Mrs. Bidwell said she described the method at a conference of newspaper food editors in Chicago and was told it was the first new idea in cooking they had heard in years.

their respective parties in popular acclaim, Liberal inroads are considerably blunted.

In general, the contest is between the Liberals and the NDP with Social Credit experiencing something of a comeback. All three parties are feeding off the breakaway from the Conservatives. But there is also this interesting development: Social Credit is chipping away at NDP lower status support.

This is not as strange as it might first appear. Remember, this is British Columbia where the NDP is the only real opposition to the Socreds on the provincial scene. In the provincial election held in September, 1963, Premier Bennett was sustained in the face of a concerted NDP drive by holding his own against the New Democrats in many working-class areas.

For in this province, there is a not-insignificant group of lower status voters who see both the NDP and Social Credit as being "for the working man" and "for people like us."

They, too, worry about the unemployment of recent memory but their vision is blocked by the Rockies. They attribute the pleasant economic climate to the Social Credit administration in Victoria. Premier Bennett's trenchant interventions in the campaign have reinforced them.

A department store sales lady, a 1963 NDP supporter in Burrard who was shifting to Social Credit explained: "I don't mind the Social Credit government. They've done a lot for British Columbia."

In Burnaby, a crane operator similarly disposed was terse: "Social Credit is doing well here I see."

There is always this question with such Socred intenders: Will they carry through to election day? Only the course of the campaign can answer that.

The NDP base vote which is the highest of any party here retains the solid, working-class identification that is so much a characteristic of the B.C. scene.

It is also exceptionally deep-rooted and traditional with large numbers of such voters being unable to offer any reasons for supporting their party other than "it's my party" or "Mr. Douglas is more for the common people, not for the capitalists."

Where the Liberals do best is in the 21-35 age group right across the social scale. Here the unsettled events of the last two years mean little. Things are seen as being very good and the Liberal party is the only one which reflects the style of this mobile generation.

It is primarily for this reason that Vancouver Burrard, represented by Liberal Ron Basford since 1963, will probably remain with the government in spite of the concerted challenge of New Democrat Dr. Ray Parkinson.

On the other hand, NDP-held Burnaby-Richmond is being seriously threatened by the Liberals because of this age and upward-mobility factor. So is New Westminster.

Where Burrard is a transient riding like Toronto's St. Paul's or St. Lawrence-St. George in Montreal, both Burnaby-Richmond and New Westminster have such new residents pouring in continuously—and staying.

Even if they descend from NDP families, these young new voters are highly susceptible to Liberal blandishments.

●

The remaining seven NDP-held 1963 total of nine are safe. The Socred two of Cariboo and Fraser Valley will likewise probably stay with their present owners.

The Conservatives won four of British Columbia's 22 last time. Only George Chatterton in Esquimalt-Saanich is reasonably secure. Elsewhere, in Kamloops where Davie Fulton's hopes for a crack at the leadership of his party rest a bit on a good showing, and in the Okanagan constituencies, Boundary and Revelstoke, the Tories are in danger.

The Liberals are the possible beneficiaries in Kamloops; Social Credit in the Okanagan.

As for the Liberals, the general trend and traditional support guarantee everything they now hold except for Vancouver Quadra.

Former Conservative External Affairs Minister Howard Green is back again to take on 1963 winner, Grant Deachman. In spite of the ebbing Tory strength across the province, Green has an excellent chance to recoup.

This is a traditional Conservative seat and is predominantly middle-aged and middle and upper-middle income in composition.

Voters here are "across-pressured" by a variety of factors: Their basic Tory disposition, the furore in Ottawa and their liking for Green pull them back to Conservatism; Diefenbaker, the general prosperity and majority government hold them up.

●

The following remarks by a teacher are representative: "One leader has the support of his party; the other doesn't. If I voted Conservative, it would be a protest vote. There's no chance of the others getting in. But I feel Green is a good man for this riding."

Even Liberals acknowledge Green's attractiveness. A store manager elaborated on his Liberal intentions: "I think they have the best chance of making the government. But, to tell you the truth, I would rather vote for Mr. Green than Mr. Deachman, man for man. You have to."

Quadra is a bit like Notre-Dame-de-Grace in Montreal. The difference is that Quadra is a normally Tory stronghold and the Liberals carry a mere 1,404 edge from 1963 into the struggle.

In N-D-G, the Liberals boast a margin exactly 15 times that.

Quadra is a genuinely "doubtful" seat.

. . . WHEAT SALE

No. 5 wheat and durum with a limited quantity of No. 3 northern.

That contract, for 83,300,000 bushels, called for shipment through Pacific Coast ports by next July 31 except for a small amount to go through eastern ports by the end of next January.

Most samples of the 1965 Prairie harvest, now almost all in the bins and estimated by the bureau of statistics to total 687,000,000 bushels, have ranged from No. 3 to No. 5.

Delivery under the new China contract will take up where the present big deal with the Soviet Union leaves off.

Under that deal, announced in August, Canada is committed to ship 222,000,000 bushels to Russia by the end of the current crop year next July 31.

Mr. Sharp said the Chinese Trading Corporation wishes some time to examine and reassess its needs before deciding whether to take the maximum amount of wheat.

The decision is up to the Chinese and there is no question of the Canadian wheat board holding back because of uncertainty about the supply position, he said.

Mr. Sharp repeated previous statements that Canada's up to date on its grain export schedule and has met every commitment.

MYSTERIOUS RADIO WAVES PICKED UP

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Russian space satellite has picked up powerful mysterious radio waves, possibly emanating from one of the planets, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

Tass said the unknown beam, 100 times stronger than anything expected, was discovered and measured by Zond-2, a research satellite which has been in orbit 11 months.

Tass said it was not yet possible to pinpoint the source of the radio waves, which were "of amazingly great intensity."

Zond-2 was launched Nov. 30, 1964, toward Mars, to gather data needed for prolonged manned space flights.

tion to the Supreme Court, he said.

"There is no justification whatever for saying that this matter is simply a legal one to be submitted to the Supreme Court. It is a matter for consideration in a spirit of conciliation between the provinces and the federal government.

HARBOR POLICY

Diefenbaker said Saint John would be one of the first cities in the country to benefit from the national harbor development policy the Conservatives intended to introduce.

He delved into scandals briefly and said a Conservative government would not "issue codes of ethics—we are going to issue indictments against wrongdoers."

"If one week from Monday this nation were by any chance to return this government (Liberals) to power, you'll be holding out the welcome sign to wrong-doers," he said.

Before Diefenbaker was ushered in the Beaverbrook Memorial Arena to the skirl of the pipes, his new French-Canadian lieutenant Theo Ricard was warming up the crowd with a dose of national unity.

"I bring a message of friendship, a message of desire," he intoned.

"We want to remain in Canada and do all we can to make this Canada a greater land for all of us."

He was interrupted by Diefenbaker's arrival and a standing, shouting ovation from the crowd which yelled repeatedly "We Want Dief."

When the noise died down Ricard said that Diefenbaker had been received on Quebec soil "like no other chief has ever been received in that province."

"I am not ashamed to stand behind him and I have repeated that in other provinces," Ricard said. "This party does not have policies to apply in some parts and not in others."

Rhodesians Protest View

SALISBURY (AP) — Many Rhodesians today were dismayed by a statement in London by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, which could be taken to support the use of force if Britain decided on this course to prevent Prime Minister Smith's government grabbing independence.

Salisbury's Rhodesia Herald reported that Anglican laymen were protesting against Ramsey's statement. One group of 230 Rhodesians had pledged to withdraw themselves and their families from any religious connections.

loud-hailer, and even it conked out on the last try.

He got across some statements heard by almost all of the crowd, and they roared and cheered in return.

No one appeared to go away mad, and about an hour after the system went on the blink they still were there.

The shopping centre innovation was largely the idea of Gordon Ediek, executive director of the Ontario Liberal Party.

'ONE, TWO, THREE . . .'

Several times he went back to the mikes to bleat "testing . . . one, two, three . . ." but they were dead as the tomb.

Officials said they had tested the system 10 minutes before and it was working. There was no ready explanation for the failure.

For a few minutes Pearson stood on the platform after the mikes failed.

He was passed a loud-hailer, but his words got only through to a few immediately in front of him.

Pearson called it the most exciting, exhilarating meeting of the campaign, and he urged return of Liberal candidates to Ottawa to keep Canada on the road to prosperity.

Pearson then decided to go down in the crowd and shake hands.

Some dangerous pushing and swaying developed as people crowded in.

Bands blared and added to the confusion.

Pearson's passage through the crowd was called off by worried police. They bustled him into a ladies' wear store in the arcade, down to the basement, and up in a freight elevator back to the balcony from which he had descended.

He made a first try with a hailer from the balcony. The crowd cheered.

"It doesn't really matter whether I make a speech or not," Pearson said. "But it does matter a great deal that you have come out tonight to support your Liberal candidates, to work for them, and to get them elected on Nov. 8."

Pearson said he had tried to shake hands with as many as possible, but had to retreat because of the shoving.

"It is the only time I have retreated in this campaign," he said as the crowd roared again.

His voice breaking as he bellowed into the hailer, he called for their support to help create a strong and united Canada.

He stood on the balcony waving along with Mrs. Pearson.

Some party officials urged him to go back down among the crowd, but others said no.

TRY AGAIN?

"Should I try again?" said Pearson to his wife.

"No," she said definitely.

It was close to 9 p.m. and the crowd hadn't lost its enthusiasm.

Pearson went half-way down the winding staircase for another try with the hailer.

The crowd cheered again as he said the rally and the welcome had given him "new courage, new heart, new energy and drive."

He added: "We are going to have a great victory in this election."

His supporters laughed when he said Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker already was stating the best he hoped for was a minority Conservative government.

PROSPERITY

"We don't want to return to his days," Pearson said. "We have to keep prosperity going."

He made some more up-and-at-em statements and then said "Good night, and good luck."

But by this time the hailer had failed.

It was 9:05 p.m. and the end of a weird night.

The police turfed out a couple of peaceniks trying to make speeches of their own, and in danger of being clobbered by some of the crowd.

The people drifted away, the Yorkdale sweepers started on the debris.

And a lonely technician sat trying to figure out what had happened to the mikes.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Clearing was expected in inland areas this afternoon in the wake of this system. Along the coast though a southwesterly circulation of moist Pacific air will maintain unsettled conditions Friday. Clear skies in the interior of the province will cause the mercury to fall to near freezing in most sections tonight.

ABOUT 600 University of Victoria students led by student president Paul Williamson marched through downtown streets Wednesday in a demonstration against the cost of higher education. Later at a community forum at the McPherson Playhouse Mr. Williamson called for the present level of fees to be considered the peak and that the fee be decreased by $56 next year and remain at the 1964-65 level.

Cause Not Advanced By Promises: Student

University of Victoria students, 600 strong, filled the McPherson Playhouse Wednesday in a sometimes noisy but otherwise polite demonstration against the cost of higher education.

The gathering was addressed by Victoria's federal political candidates in a wide-ranging series of talks which included a Progressive Conservative promise of a Ministry of Youth and a New Democratic Party plan to finance higher education at a cost of two packages of cigarettes a day for each Canadian.

The students' general reaction: Pffft.

Said student president Paul Williamson: "They didn't tell us a thing.—I don't think they advanced our cause at all in promising things which are merely extensions of present programs.

"What is required is a complete revamping of society's attitude toward education."

He called on the provincial government to recognize the present level of fees as a peak. He said fees should be reduced by $56 next year and remain at that level.

NDP candidate J. Lloyd Brereton told the students his party would start paying all university tuition fees if elected.

This could be done, he said, at the cost of two packs of cigarettes a day to each Canadian.

"There is only one solution," he said, "and that is to have strict university selection procedures then pay the full cost of tuition.

"Then if you do not deliver the goods you should be thrown out," he told the students.

Progressive Conservative candidate Clifford Waite said the cost of higher education is of prime concern to his party.

LOUD COUGHING

At this point the students developed fits of loud coughing.

"Paying your fees seems a terribly simple solution," he said.

"It is, it is," cried the students.

"It is a consistent policy of the Conservatives and not just a promise or a bribe on the eve of an election to raise the per capita federal grant for students to $5 from the present $2."

He promised if the Conservatives were elected one of the things the students would see was a ministry of youth at Ottawa.

Liberal candidate David Groos said the government accepts the findings of the Bladen Royal Commission into the cost of higher education.

"We recognize that a massive improvement in educational opportunity is needed right now," he said.

ACCEPT RESPONSIBILITY

"We accept the responsibility for sharing the cost with the provincial governments although under the British North America Act education costs are the responsibility of the provinces."

He said if the Liberals were returned to office a federal-provincial conference on education would be called early next year to find the best ways of implementing the recommendations of the Bladen report.

Social Credit candidate Frank Hunter came out strongly against the abolition of university student fees.

"I am not in sympathy with the efforts of some university students aimed at the total elimination of fees," he said.

"Something for nothing is without support or appeal on moral grounds."

'NOT ON BUTTS'

University registrar Ronald Jeffels, speaking in place of president Dr. Malcolm Taylor, said for the purposes of the afternoon he would be a "political eunuch, but I do not propose to speak on financing higher education on cigarette butts."

He told the students they are now directly engaged and involved in a revolution in the attitude of students toward their position.

"We are engaged in a war for men's minds in the world. Canada must engage in the international scene through its institutions of education."

It is clear we shall need money in dimensions never before dreamed of in the cost of providing highly-skilled professors and instrumentation, he said.

University Students A 'Privileged Few'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian student leader said Wednesday students attending universities are a privileged few—because they can afford it.

Thousands more could attend universities and one major reason they do not is that tuition fees form a psychological barrier, said Richard Good, vice-president of the Canadian Union of Students.

"I know that fees are only a part of university costs but for many young people they are high enough to deter them from going to university," he said.

Good a student at the University of Manitoba was speaking to delegates attending the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada here.

UBC DELEGATION

Good and Byron Hender, student council president of the University of BC., led a delegation of 60 UBC students to the meeting to present the students' case for the elimination of fees.

Later, an estimated 2,500 UBC students marched through the west end demanding an end to tuition fees and protesting the high cost of education.

There were no incidents as the students marched to the hotel where the association was holding its annual convention.

The AUCC says students should receive bursary and scholarship aid instead of the elimination of fees.

Good said 60 per cent of the students in Canadian universities come from families with an income of $5,000 a year or more.

21 PER CENT

"Yet this income group is only 21 per cent of the Canadian population," he said.

"Clearly the majority of our students are coming from the upper echelons of society. We are from a privileged class and our responsibility is to make sure that others not as fortunate as ourselves are able to attend."

Good said the amount of money raised each year through tuition fees, $90,000,000 is "an infinitesmal" amount of money compared to the total cost of higher education.

Meanwhile, two UBC groups were planning to protest the increase in fees under separate banners and Simon Fraser University students voted to be the only university in Western Canada which will not march on National Student's Day.

EQUALITY

The official protest, sanctioned by the students' council at UBC, were to ask for equality of opportunity to post-secondary education.

Six hundred SFU students voted against taking part in the protest after a four-hour open-air meeting Tuesday.

PHARMACY ADS ALLOWED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Appeal Court Wednesday upheld Supreme Court ruling that permits pharmacists to advertise their services.

The appellate court agreed with the earlier decision declaring void a portion of the Pharmaceutical Association of B.C.'s bylaws that forbids pharmacists from advertising their services and their fees.

The case resulted from an appeal by Sam Bass, owner of several drug stores.

Court Bans B.C. Ferry Picket Line

A ban has been imposed on pickets who have been patrolling the B.C. Ferries terminal serving Powell River.

British Columbia Supreme Court at Victoria has issued an injunction against the pickets who appeared after five crew-members of Queen of Powell River were suspended recently.

The pickets do not identify themselves.

But since they appeared, said lawyer Louis Lindholm, who appeared for the ferry authority, trucks and bus drivers have been reluctant to cross their picket line. Those who have crossed have been insulted, he said.

Ferries have been held up as long as 40 minutes at Saltery Bay terminal which also serves the Langdale, Horseshoe Bay service. Mr. Lindholm told Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton there was no legal strike therefore picketing is illegal. The pickets have the right of appeal in a trial.

The five were suspended Oct. 17 after walking off the ferry to protest work conditions and language of a senior officer. Their appeal is currently being heard by the Civil Service Commission.

CRY HEARD ON PARLIAMENT HILL

'What About Free Tuition?'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Spearheading a national drive for government assistance in higher education, about 1,000 students marched on Parliament Hill Wednesday. "What about free tuition," was the cry that went up from the youthful marchers.

Across Canada, in provincial capitals, there were similar demonstrations, organized by the 140,000 - member Canadian Union of Students. In Ottawa, CUS presented political parties with a brief containing its views on higher education. It asks for the removal of the financial, social and psychological barriers that prevents youths from getting a higher education.

"Free tuition, free books, free love," said one placard that moved up on Parliament Hill with the group.

Across Canada, students ran into mixed receptions as they carried their organized campaigns to the doors of legislature buildings.

A group visiting Premier Robarts of Ontario came away less than optimistic. They said he told them the government regarded education as a privilege, not a right.

About 1,000 Nova Scotia students marched on the legislative building in Halifax with a seven - page brief asking for more federal and provincial aid.

STOPPED FOR DIEF

In Fredericton, about 200 University of New Brunswick students called off a rally when Conservative Leader Diefenbaker appeared on the campus for an impromptu visit. Instead of marching, they burned a small effigy depicting high fees. Mr. Diefenbaker grinned.

In Quebec, panel discussions were held at Sir George Williams College and Loyola. French - language students in Quebec are holding their annual congress today.

Not all the students favor the abolition of tuition. One group from Waterloo Lutheran, opposing free tuition, call themselves The Undecideds. The University of Saskatchewan students' council also said it opposes the abolition of fees, but it wants to decrease travel expenses, board and room and the cost of books.

Students in Alberta, Manitoba and British Columbia asked for the abolition of fees Wednesday.

A Job in Hand

THE HALF-WAY POINT HAS now been passed in the annual campaign of the United Appeal. With the residential door-step canvass under way and further returns from the commercial, industrial, employee and other lists, the closing days of the drive will see the total collection grow toward the $440,000 mark.

Whether it gets there or not depends upon the generosity of the residents of the Greater Victoria area. But more than casual generosity is involved — also required is an understanding of the needs that must be met through the money donated.

Too many donors, even at this date, give under the apparent impression that the Community Chest is a single charitable agency and requires only a dollar or two from each contributor to keep its wheels turning. The Chest is only a collection and disbursement organization. The money it gathers in its annual United Appeal by voluntary canvassers is distributed to 23 member agencies which carry out the actual work with the needy, the young, the homeless, the aged, the blind, the misguided, and the many unfortunate persons who share our community. A couple of dollars, while welcome, is not a realistic reply to the situation when spread over two dozen agencies for a year's operation.

The principle of combining many appeals in one has been accepted all over the continent as efficient, practical and economical. It ensures that the least expense will be incurred in collecting the needed money, and it relieves the public of the inconvenience of a succession of calls on the pocket book each year. The latter consideration has found particular favor among Greater Victorians, and this is something that some of the other local appeals might well keep in mind.

They would in no sense lose the identity of their work by joining with the Community Chest in an annual appeal—they would not even have to become a member of that organization. But they could become identified with a joint community endeavor that has proved its usefulness and convenience to the generous people of the area.

The pressure to combine in a United Appeal will be increased as the joint effort attains its objective each time. There is no more convincing answer than success. Let's make it again this year.

Outside Looking In

BROUGHT INTO BEING LAST year as an agency which hopefully might close the widening gap in living standards between rich and poor countries, the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development is still floundering, according to reports.

Although UNCTAD was described by UN Secretary-General U Thant at its inception as "the most important event so far of the United Nations' decade of development" it has almost entirely failed to live up to the hopes held out for it. Partly this is because the wealthy nations of the world have not helped the organization, seeing it as a potential pressure group to hold up the price of commodities produced in the poor countries, which it admittedly is. Additionally, the Asian, African and South American countries that are primarily interested in UNCTAD cannot supply enough of the talented administrative and policy-making leaders who are necessary for the success of such an agency.

The UNCTAD strategy for bettering the lot of the underdeveloped nations remains unchanged from that set at the founding conference last year. It contains three central elements: special tariff concessions for finished products of underdeveloped countries in the markets of the world; arrangements to support prices of raw materials; and special aid to compensate for sudden declines in the prices of commodities.

Unfortunately, the deadlock in the Common Market tariff bargaining which has, in turn, upset the Kennedy Round of negotiations on tariffs, has made it impossible for UNCTAD to get the wealthy countries even to listen to proposals.

Meanwhile world prices for a number of commodities, particularly agricultural products, continue to fall rapidly. Countries which depend heavily on such crops as cocoa, sugar and coffee, for instance, are being squeezed into bankruptcy, while others find themselves in a similar plight because they cannot get their products through the tariff barriers erected by the industrialized states.

No Water Exports

CANADA'S RESOURCES MINISTER Arthur Laing has provided a welcome reaffirmation of his stand on export of Canada's water resources. He has now made it clear that so far as he is concerned: "Export of water is not negotiable at this time and I don't know when we will arrive at a time when we can say we have enough water for all time to come."

Mr. Pearson has explained that his earlier reference to a willingness to talk with the United States about water exports was entirely on a long-range basis and did not conflict with Mr. Laing's policy of conservation. Mr. Laing leaves no fuzziness about his intentions. "There is no such thing as continental resources," he told an audience this week. The continental resources argument has been used in relation to American plans for distributing Canadian water throughout the United States.

But Canada's needs, today and in the future, come first with Mr. Laing. His stand is one which every Canadian will endorse.

The Gun and Young Rowdies

ONE MORE INSTANCE IN which an adult used a gun to repel vicious attack by young rowdies has gained national prominence.

In Toronto this week a gang seeking to break into a house — a gang whose members carried knives, lengths of pipe, an angle iron and chain—was dispersed by a shotgun blast from one of the occupants. A youth in the gang fell with pellets in his back

Police said no charge would be laid against the man who fired the shotgun.

This is reminiscent of the reaction in two British Columbia cases earlier this year when firearms were employed to beat off attacking youths.

Little sympathy has been wasted on the young hoodlums who were wounded. Public sentiment has been generally extended to the adults who were forced to use firearms to defend themselves, the consensus being that the marauders had brought it on themselves.

The point is being made to young hoodlums that if they want to be rough, decent citizens can be rougher, and law-enforcement agencies may not be disposed to interfere when the ones who start the trouble get the worst of it.

This does not, however, provide an answer to the question of what happens if the trend continues. Vigilantes are not a cure or an adequate answer to this modern problem.

FROM WASHINGTON

By WALTER LIPPMANN

When Debate Is Throttled

Lippmann

WHILE the student demonstrations are quite evidently self-defeating, they are, it seems to me, a pathetic reminder of what happens in a free country when responsible debate on great matters of life and death is throttled down and discouraged. The unhappy youths who burn their draft cards are no doubt misguided. But we must not forget that they come from a nation which expects to understand what its government is doing, from a nation which is not habituated to obedience and to the idea that it must listen to its superiors and not talk back.

There is only one way a democratic people can be won over and convinced, and that is by enabling this people to hear informed debate by its responsible leaders. These young people have a very personal stake in the conduct of foreign policy, a much higher stake than the rest of us. Yet, the fact of the matter is that during the past year—from the election of 1964 to the present time—there has been a radical change of policy for the war in Viet Nam.

It has occurred without serious, thorough informing and candid discussion and responsible debate in Washington. That is why there have been the teach-ins. They have been attempts by educated, but not fully informed teachers to fill the void left by the absence of official debate. And from the teach-ins, which could not and did not provide a substitute for responsible debate, a few handfuls of young men, some especially foolish and some especially brave, have gone out into the streets.

It may be said that there has been no suppression of freedom of speech, which is indeed true. Nevertheless, the fact is that debate has been shut down to an inadequate minimum in the Senate, and it is only in the Senate that some men outside the executive branch have access to all authentic information. It is the shutting down of debate in the Senate which is at the root of our uneasiness.

Silencing Opposition

The president has not concealed his desire to conduct his foreign policy in Viet Nam and in the Dominican Republic without genuine senatorial debate. He has achieved his desire by adopting a foreign policy which the Republican opposition cannot criticize, and then, with his real opposition confined to the leaders of his own party, he has silenced them in personal argument.

The main technique employed has been to substitute private presidential briefing of individual congressmen and journalists for open debate by independent men. These briefings have not truly illuminated the subject.

For one thing, they are not on the public record. Moreover, the man who is being briefed cannot debate with the President. He cannot do so out of respect for the office.

Few Informed

For another thing, he cannot debate with the President because he does not have access to all the facts in the case. Only senators, like J. W. Fulbright in the Dominican affair, who undertake an enormous task of investigation are in a position to argue about what has happened and are equipped to conduct a serious debate.

And when debate by those who have a right to know is discouraged, there is no responsible guidance of public opinion. We must not be surprised that these great matters are then taken to the teach-ins and out into the streets.

Questions

In view of some uncertainty apparently prevailing among the electorate, may I suggest a few key questions for the voters to put to themselves and the candidates?

Is "co-operative federalism" merely gobbledegook for Canada's becoming like a dog with 10 tails, each tail doing its best to wag the dog? Was this the vision of the Fathers of Confederation?

After repelling two attempts at military conquest by the U.S.A., are we in danger of economic conquest? And are there Canadian Quislings, perhaps even in high places, who would sell our birthright for a mess of pottage?

Do we realize that Canada's quite important part in the Commonwealth and other associations of nations would disappear if we were merged in the United States?—R. Morris Wilson, 235 Cook.

Backing For Bess

We are fortunate in having as a "Times Columnist" Miss Elizabeth Forbes, who has the intellect and heart to write articles on behalf of children and aged people.

An alert and sympathetic public is the only protection children have against brutish parents.

There are many couples in Victoria who have saved modest sums to provide some measure of comfort in their old age. Their plight is pitiful if one or the other has to have nursing home care for any length of time.

The women in particular should support Miss Forbes in every way possible in her efforts on behalf of children and the elderly.—G. Young, Apt. 305, 934 Collinson.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

A Classical 'Get Lost'

Western

THE current mood of the electorate, as described by the returning travellers who pour through this capital, suggests that candidates, in their eager search for issues, have been missing the boat. With the exception of the candidates, whose views possibly are suspect, political observers have had difficulty in discerning groundswells of enthusiasm for anybody and persistently interpret the election as an unpopularity contest.

The parties, one gathers, are not merely encountering voter apathy, which is by no means unusual, but voter hostility sharpened by frustration; when all the parties say the same thing, where are the disgruntled to go?

To Remove Discord

It seems surprising, in these circumstances, that no one has suggested the radical reformation of our politics by the introduction of the ancient Athenian device known as ostracism. The effect of this, according to a learned authority, was "to remove from Athens for a period of ten years any person who threatened the harmony and tranquility of the body politic." How much harmony and tranquility there is in our body politic, any reader may judge from any current issue of any Canadian newspaper.

The great advantage of ostracism is that, with necessary adaptations to our parliamentary system, it could be made to settle not merely the immediate question of power in Ottawa but also the longer range question of party leaderships. What we need is a method of disposing satisfactorily of four of the five party leaders (some voters would like to dispose of all five but this is clearly Utopian) while at the same time affording opportunities for foreign travel to the unsuccessful in another 260 constituencies.

That such a reform is long overdue is evident from the character of the campaign. Even among Conservatives, who entertained hope at the outset that the election would settle the leadership problem, there now seems to be a growing conviction that Mr. Diefenbaker will still be campaigning in 1985. Correspondents have also noted with concern that Mr. Douglas, who has already got 30 years of mileage out of some of his stories, still tells them with a zest which threatens another 30.

One wonders, in these circumstances, why an issue of such promise goes begging for a candidate. From my own limited contacts with voters, it seems to me that it might ignite a fire of enthusiasm rarely equalled in this country.

No Loss of Status

How civilized the Athenian system was may be judged from the fact that banishment entailed no loss of social status or, indeed, of property. The Athenian had nothing, in a personal way, against the politicians; he simply used his vote to redistribute them among other states, thus ensuring the tranquility of his own.

It must, of course, be recognized that no system is perfect. While the advantages of ostracism are readily apparent, responsible voters will naturally weigh these against the possible consequences in terms of the impact on Canada's image abroad. There is practically always a trickle, and sometimes a flood, of Canadian Members of Parliament on tour but their impact on foreign countries is limited, partly because MPs are commonly mistaken for tourists and partly because these safaris are of limited duration. The thought of perhaps a thousand Canadian politicians loose for ten years in Europe is not, however, one to be dismissed with equanimity.

Doomed to Disaster

But, as the old saying has it, nothing ventured, nothing gained. There are at the present time hundreds of candidates across the country who, for lack of a persuasive issue, are plainly doomed to political disaster on the evening of November 8. For these worthy men and women, here is an issue which lies untouched.

A candidate endorsing such a reform would obviously court some risk; he would be morally bound to absent himself from the country for the stipulated period if by some mischance he should head the unpopularity poll. From the tone of current comment, however, the risk seems minimal; at worst a man might lose his shirt but not his social status; at best he might achieve so glittering a success that his name would be held in honor by grateful voters for years to come.

Looking Back

From The Times of October 28, 1905:

Benedict Bantly, a Victorian, is in the final course in the conservatory at Leipzig, Germany. Mr. Bantly writes that he has seen a great deal of Europe but intends returning to Victoria to perform and teach. "In Italy," he writes, "my trip was full of charm and interest. In Pompeii, not far from the house of Sallust, I heard two Americans conversing and one voice sounded particularly musical to me, and it turned out to be a former Victorian, a friend. Of course I thought Pompeii the last place on earth to look for stray Victorians."

Re-Run in Germany

By NEAL ASCHERSON
From Bonn

THE noisy prelude is over, Chancellor Erhard has once more taken his place as conductor, and the curtain is slowly rising on the government which will run West Germany for the next four years. And to the dismay of optimists and the satisfaction of cynics it is almost the same government that West Germany had before.

What has happened to all the promises of new men and new ideas? Did one Christian Democrat leader really predict "a younger government" before the elections; did another speak of "a complete change of the guard"? A few minor changes may yet be made, but here are the old familiar faces again—Dr. Schroder as foreign minister, Dr. Mende of the Free Democrats as all-German minister, Herr Hocherl from the Christian Social Union, and plenty more.

The fact is that the pressures of the old political groupings have proved too strong to allow changes. The small Free Democrat Party, though much reduced in the national election results, has managed to hold on to its four ministries in the cabinet; Herr Strauss, leader of the Christian Social Union in Bavaria, has failed to get rid either of Dr. Schroder or Dr. Mende, as he had hoped. Dr. Erhard himself has failed to subdue the unruly alliance of his coalition parties and build the sort of cabinet he feels the country needs.

Weakened

In short, although the elections unmistakably showed a swing of public opinion towards Dr. Erhard, his second government will be weaker than his first. The constellation of forces created long ago by Dr. Adenauer, the alliance of agrarian Catholics, urban conservatives and middle-class liberals designed to keep the Social Democrats out of power, has become so rigid that it now defies efforts to change even its representatives.

If the "Adenauer State" has resisted change at home, it has even more formidably beaten off efforts to alter its foreign policy. Chancellor Erhard and Dr. Schroder went into the election hinting at eventual diplomatic relations with the "Socialist bloc" of Eastern Europe—a generally more adventurous approach to the world. Dr. Mende told his party that he would set about forming non-political contacts with East Germany, including a number of "technical committees" to arrange mutual problems of trade, transport, visits and the rest.

Gone With the Wind

All this, after the various party bargainers had thrown their weight about in the coalition negotiations, has gone with the wind. Mende has been forced to drop the "technical committees" idea, and Erhard, in a sad sketch of his foreign policy intentions, has promised his party that recognition of East European States is "for the moment totally impossible", and that he will not grant long-term credits to Communist countries. He added that the Hallstein Doctrine had "proved its worth."

West Germany, in a period when East-West reconciliation in the form of a European settlement and a ban on spreading of nuclear weapons is the most urgent of tasks, is helpless to adapt. She is stuck fast in the Adanauer conceptions of the fifties: utmost hostility to the Soviet Union and her followers, maximum armament to proceed without brake or check, blind hostility to East Germany at the price of moves towards gradual reunification. It is pointless to put all the blame for this on Bonn, when it was the Western Allies who brought West Germany into NATO and forced rearmament on her in the years when it suited their book.

Task for U.S.

If West Germany is almost helpless to help herself, it may be that the Western Allies—really the U.S.—must break a way for Germany out of the thought-prison. In Washington, the Pentagon and part of the state department would like to drop the mixed-manned fleet idea which, it is now seen, is not only militarily pointless but a dangerous block in the way of European disarmament agreements with Moscow. The trouble is that Bonn was promised a share in the force, to bring her status within the alliance from that of an "auxiliary" up to that of an equal.

What would the Germans do if the MLF was scrapped? Would there not be a dangerous surge of anti-Western nationalism? Herr Strauss, with his usual deadly aim, crystallized state department anxieties when he warned that "military discrimination" against West Germany might produce a new "Fuhrer" who would give Germany nuclear weapons of her own.

Bluff to Be Called

That is the bluff which must be called. West Germany today is "politically among the weakest," as Strauss himself says. Defiance of NATO is not seriously thinkable, nor is a breach with the U.S. France is now revealed as the enemy of accepted West German interests, not an alternative protector.

If President Johnson decides to take a risk and drop the MLF plans for the sake of better relations between NATO and the Warsaw Pact, Germany might one day come to look back on him with gratitude, as the man who liberated her from the rusted shackles of dead policies.

HUMAN NEED

I think that a belief in immortality is a profound need in the human mind, and those who have really definitely and finally given it up, suffer; and suffer not because they deserve to suffer but because through some kind of obscurity which has hidden the truth from them, the value and the hopefulness of their lives diminishes.

Senator Wallace McCutcheon Stands Alone As Authentic Voice of Old Conservatism

By PETER C. NEWMAN

One of the interesting sidelights of this strange campaign has been the emergence of Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon as an authentic—if lonely—voice of Conservatism in the Canadian wild.

There's something valiant about this old Bay Street lion in his defence of an approach to politics that no longer finds expression or even romance in any Canadian political party, least of all his own.

The senator is the last angry Tory in a sea of lapping Liberalism.

14 Speeches

By election day, McCutcheon will have given 14 major addresses and a dozen off-the-cuff speeches. Unlike the impressionistic, innuendo-laden disarray of John Diefenbaker's performances, the McCutcheon texts are carefully constructed to present a succession of thoughts leading to an inevitable—if wildly partisan—conclusion. (Although McCutcheon suggests their broad outline, his speeches are actually the work of Lowell Murray, a witty and articulate young Tory who was formerly Davie Fulton's executive assistant.)

"We are advised," McCutcheon will rasp as he begins a typical attack on Pearson, "that the prime minister has decided to sit this campaign out. The reason for his reluctance is that Mr. Pearson doesn't take too well to air travel. Last year, for example, he suffered a severe case of amnesia after a particular flight from the Maritimes with Mr. Favreau. At other times, air travel tends to make him giddy. Not so long ago, after a flight to Vancouver, he wanted to build an NHL arena there, with government money. And then there's all this talk about not getting down in the gutter with the Conservatives—with the Conservatives, if you please. He has this peculiar type of political vertigo: The heights are too much for him, but he can't stand the gutter, either."

While McCutcheon unhesitatingly engages in such biting anti-Liberal attack, he is much more circumspect in advancing the claims to power of his own party. In half a dozen of his most recent speeches, he made no reference to his party leader, beyond commenting that "Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Hamilton and our other candidates will be discussing the new dimensions that are to be realized in western agriculture, so that I will not go into detail tonight . . . ."

'Formal'

McCutcheon's relations with Diefenbaker can most generously be described as "formal." At the start of the campaign he sent his leader some policy memos, but they weren't even acknowledged. Although he came close to resigning from the Diefenbaker cabinet over the nuclear row of 1963, he now refers to the issue as "an unpleasant argument . . . tempest that is almost forgotten," and claims that Diefenbaker never really was anti-American.

McCutcheon's most important contribution to his party has been his successful fund raising, particularly among the nation's corporate hierarchy which dislikes Walter Gordon even more than John Diefenbaker. But for McCutcheon, Diefenbaker would not have the financial capacity to support his present campaign. Its funds are coming partly from the sustaining fund ($100 per year pledged by 2,000 Canadian businessmen) which was instituted by McCutcheon.

Recruiting

It was also McCutcheon who helped recruit John Robarts and George Hees into open support for Diefenbaker. This theme of "a united party" provides one of the most eloquent take-off points during his speeches.

Referring to his own party's shaky state of unity, McCutcheon puts on his most indignant retired British army colonel face: "I would much prefer to be a member of a party . . . where there is some passion and conflict, of principles, of policies of personalities, than to sit mutely and uncomfortably in a discredited government, with tame and timid incompetents covering up for one another, and a very few who are sensitive enough to be inwardly ashamed of what is going on."

McCutcheon's stout defence of a world safe for Canadian millionaires has placed him outside the mainstream of political thought in this country (and this century). He continues to stress the importance of aligning the cost of multiplying welfare expansion with the nation's fiscal capacity. ("A real conservative," he says, "tries to direct the winds of change, not get swept away by them.")

He believes that social welfare should be limited to providing protection for those who specifically need help. His concept of "the average Canadian" is slightly different from his leader's. This was demonstrated in a casual comment he is reported to have made at a Conservative strategy meeting early in the campaign. Under discussion was the idea of advocating the elimination of succession duties. McCutcheon conceded that this would help the rich people, but he thought it inconsequential to "the average man who only leaves an estate of $100,000 or so."

SEN. McCUTCHEON . . . what's $100,000?

When Diefenbaker took McCutcheon into his crumbling cabinet in the summer of 1962, the senator had to resign 27 corporate directorships. He's still chairman of National Life, on the board of Montreal Trust and several smaller corporations.

Politician Now

But he enjoyed his brief term as minister of trade and commerce and now regards politics, not business, as his career.

Although he has no substantial following in his party, late at night, slumped in some club armchair with his friends around him, McCutcheon occasionally speculates about his chances of running for the Conservative leadership. But his dated ideology and the fact that he's never dared to venture out of the Senate have eliminated him as a serious contender. He belongs to a vanishing breed of Conservatives and may well be the last of his kind.

Where Is the 'English Nation' Standing as Quebec Counterpart?

By DOUGLAS LePAN

(Excerpts from a speech by Mr. LePan, principal of University College, at the charter day dinner of Victoria College, University of Toronto.)

There can be no doubt that Canada is passing through a period of profound difficulty and trial. Whether it is so serious as to warrant using the word crisis, is perhaps open to question. But on balance I think it is wiser to run whatever risk there may be in overestimating the gravity of the situation than to use expressions that leave room for complacency or indifference. At any rate, it is a period when Confederation itself is in question and when the bases of Confederation are being examined as never before.

I have reason to know that at least the staff of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism is proceeding on the assumption that there are two nations in Canada, one French-speaking and one English-speaking.

Basing itself on that assumption, it is looking unsuccessfully and a little querulously for an English-speaking nation; and when it fails to find one or, as it might put it, when it fails to discern any clear sense of identity in English-speaking Canada or any clear set of values which would distinguish it and set it off from any other national entities, it (the commission) becomes cross with us and complains of our lack of energy in neglecting to provide us with a national set of values in English Canada, which would enable us to stand as a counterpart to French Canada.

ANDRE LAURENDEAU AND DAVIDSON DUNTON
Are they searching for what does not exist?

Don't Give Up

If you find difficulty in finding an English-Canadian nation, do not give up, it seems to say. There must be one in order to fit the theory. Keep on looking, and one may emerge. Must emerge, I should have said, if the hypothesis is to be maintained.

Why have we never defined ourselves as a nation? We have never thought of English-speaking Canada as a nation because we thought that there was one nation, Canada, to which both we and our compatriots in French Canada equally belonged.

Many of the most intelligent and articulate English-speaking Canadians have been proceeding rightly or wrongly on that assumption and have made large investments of time and energy and interest in attempting to give content and definition to Canadian nationhood.

Their efforts may not always have been so perceptive or generous toward the aspirations of French Canada as they might have been. It may even be that the whole undertaking will be proved by events to have been misguided.

But here is the answer to the question why we in English-speaking Canada have not given definition to ourselves as a nation: we thought that we were helping to give definition to Canadian nationhood by our efforts either at home or abroad.

One Illustration

If I were to try to illustrate that truth with a single instance, I could not do better than refer to the career of a former chancellor of Victoria College, who is now the prime minister of Canada.

No one could spring more autochthonously from the old Ontario strand than he does, no one could have been shaped more completely by its values and traditions, no one could be more loyal to them and to the community from which he comes. But his whole career shows that in his estimation his indebtedness to his own community could best be repaid by spending himself year after year in the service of Canada as a whole.

I think that we should be disturbed about the future stability of the country if a view is accepted that requires for its validation the calling into being of a shadowy and mythical nation to serve as a yokemate for the French fact in Canada.

Change Possible

That does not mean that change, even radical change, in the structure of the country is not possible or desirable.

A special status for Quebec? That seems to me a legitimate and reasonable claim that we should be willing to consider with seriousness and sympathy. Equal partnership between the two founding races in Canada? Again I am impressed by the equity of that claim and think we should be proceeding strenuously to work out its implications and to do our best to help put them into effect. A revision of the constitution? That may be necessary if the aspirations of French Canada are to receive due satisfaction.

But let us hope that our present difficulties in Canada will not issue in such a nearly fatal outcome as the complete triumph of separatism in Quebec. Even if that is avoided, though, I suspect that the situation will be one that will necessitate us paying more attention to our affairs than we have done in the past.

Quebec's Claim

For it seems clear that even if Canada remains undivided, Quebec will be claiming either within the present constitution, or some modification of it, or some radically new constitutional framework, a higher degree of independence for the expression of its own aspirations.

To the extent that that comes about, it seems unlikely that the rest of Canada will be able to find in Canadian national policies and institutions as complete satisfaction of their aspirations as they thought they could in the past.

So the conclusion I come to is that we are compelled by the circumstances as they are, and as they may become, to some readjustment of our interests and energies.

We are compelled to look homeward a little more. We will need to take more interest in our future and in our past. And I believe that that can be done without withdrawing our interest in Canada as a whole or in the world at ltrge.

But it is equally important that we should be aware of where our traditions are weak or inadequate. Has not hard work sometimes served to dull our sensibility? Have we not been too inclined to identify success with financial success and been bemused into thinking that the people who are wealthy are somehow also the best and should be forgiven what would not be forgiven to others?

It may even be that our persistent unilingualism is to be related to the narrowness of our view of human nature. And more generally, it may be that our failure to understand Quebec is the result of almost metaphysical inadequacy.

For what is happening in Quebec itoday, it seems to me, is the combination of many things, some of them, perhaps, contradictory.

Many Reasons

Partly it is the result, no doubt, of the emergence of a new French-Canadian managerial and technical class with unsatisfied ambitions; partly it is due to the increasing secularization of more and more areas of social life; partly it reflects the attachment of greater value to economic satisfactions than in the past; partly it is to be explained as a struggle between the generations.

What then should we be saying to our fellow Canadians of the French tongue? That we sympathize with them in what they are trying to do in Quebec and wish them well in it. That whatever was set down or not set down in the various constitutional instruments that have marked the course of Canadian history, we confess that the behavior of English-speaking Canadians toward French Canada has often been less than generous and sometimes less than just. That what we want is a Canada where French Canadians will feel at home, not only in Quebec, but in other parts of the country as well, and that we are prepared to help in working out the practical arrangements, particularly in the field of education, that would make that ideal a reality.

But enough of these cautionary remarks. For after all it seems to me that the most important things that we should be saying to our fellow Canadians in French Canada are simpler than anything I have mentioned so far.

Great Act

We should be assuring them that we are no more lacking in courage or imagination than our forefathers. If a great new act of accommodation is needed in order to make more room for the aspirations of French Canada, we shall be no more faint hearted in trying to work it out than our ancestors were in 1841 or 1867.

We love this country, which depends for so much of its peculiar tang and flavor on the union between French and English, and we intend to do our best to try to preserve it.

Our relations with our fellow Canadians in French Canada are more important to us by far than our relations with anyone else, and we should be prepared to go a long distance to demonstrate that fact, even if what is involved is fundamental constitutional readjustment, even if what is involved is readjustment in our relations with our friends in Britain or the Commonwealth or the United States.

Election's Best Medicine Show Staged by Old 'Doc' Diefenbaker

By GERALD WARING

WITH DIEFENBAKER IN ONTARIO—The best medicine show of all in this zaniest of elections is Doctor Diefenbaker's Miraculous Diagnoses and Remedies for the Ills of the Body Politick.

Waring

There's Doctor D.'s Unguent of Unity, a softsoap-like ointment that relieves strains, abates frictions, and clears up saddle sores and harness chafes in the Tory Party. Doctor D. recommends it for sore heads, racial tension and Quebec bloat.

Then there's Doctor D.'s Panacea of Peripatetic Promises, the formula of which varies as the show moves from province to province. A pleasant tasting stimulant of the patient's what's-in-it-for-me reflex, its main ingredients are higher pensions and other handouts, lower taxes, and bigger wheat sales.

And finally there's Doctor D.'s Parliamentary Pest Poison and Rodent Remover, a concoction for House use prepared according to Doctor D.'s original and imaginative formula. If Liberally applied, it is guaranteed to clean out crooked politicians, crooked judges, crooked bankrupts, and the Minaudos, the Bonnanos, the Bankses, the Rivards and the Stonehills.

* * *

Nostrils flared, pale blue eyes fixed in a furious stare, the old spellbinder tries to shock his audiences with a recital of the ills which they needlessly suffer because they haven't bought his various nostrums.

"There's disunity the like of which we've never seen before," he says. A quack healer named Pearson "is balkanizing Canada. He would build up ten associated states. I say his formula is wrong!" And then he brandishes a bottle of his Unguent of Unity:

"We intend to convene a great Confederation conference to the end that we shall together and in the spirit of 1864 and 1867 bring about the necessary changes to be made on the basis of 100 years of experience and to ensure that there shall be no second class citizens of Canada."

But it's when he gets on the crying need for his Parliamentary Pest Poison and Rodent Remover that this remarkable faith healer declaims most brilliantly. His more knowledgeable listeners will recognize certain discrepancies between his recital of facts and their recollection of them, but this only enhances the dramatic quality of the show.

"The tentacles of international crime have found their way into the highest levels of government!" he cries. Doctor Pearson condones "people close to the Throne who for a little Liberal campaign contribution are prepared to undermine justice." By implication and innuendo he links the proprietor of the rival medicine show with fraudulent bankruptcies, arson and murder.

He pours everything into a pot—new scandals and old, the paper tiff between Quebec's revenue minister and Ottawa's justice minister, "hidden" bankruptcy reports, furniture purchases, refugee American gangsters, Pearson promising rinks and Rivard watering rinks, and stirs it all into a concoction which he claims is Doctor Pearson's Physick for Perpetual Power.

Then he pours the whole loathsome mess at the feet of his mesmerized audience.

Doctor Pearson "would cover up the mess," he says. "But we"—and Doctor D. holds aloft his Parliamentary Pest Poison and Rodent Remover—"we will clean up the mess!"

Impudent Little Horned Larks Occasional Visitors in Victoria

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Dear Dr. Carl:

Do dickcissels frequent this area? We saw a flock of very amusing little birds at Oak Bay Beach. They were brown striped with a black mark on the throat and their faces striped dark and light and suffused with yellow; indeed the yellow wash went down the front and sides and lightly over a good deal of the brown parts.

Dr. Carl

When they flew they showed the tail divided into three wedges of about equal parts, the centre white and the sides black. The birds were the size of large sparrows. Front view they were very comical, their striped faces looking solemn—impudent. They were very tame, running hither and yon, feeding on grass seeds, I think, and completely ignoring us.

I took these birds to be larks and would have said they were horned larks except that they lacked horns . . . I have an impression of darker stripes on the face than the books show on the dickcissel, and neither Peterson nor Taverner list dickcissel as visiting the coast area. Are you able to shed any light on these fellows for me?—E.A.

* * *

Despite certain discrepancies the birds you describe are most likely horned larks. While the so-called "horns" are a characteristic feature of these birds they are not always easily seen. These structures are really tufts of feathers and they may not be particularly noticeable except under good viewing conditions.

However the striped face, dark mark on the chest and suffusion of yellow are all distinctive of horned larks as are also the habitat and behavior you noted. The tail pattern is the reverse of what you describe, namely largely dark with white on the edges.

Horned larks are not too common around Victoria except possibly during migration when small flocks may pause for a few days. Occasionally breeding pairs are noted on Vancouver Island. A few years ago an adult bird attending young in a nest was photographed in a field by the Patricia Bay airport by Miss Enid Lemon of the Victoria Natural History Society and other breeding pairs have been observed elsewhere in other years.

However, in the fall small groups of those birds are occasionally seen around southern Vancouver Island. The ones you noted were most likely migrants pausing briefly here before moving south for the winter.

The dickcissel does resemble a horned lark, as you discovered by checking reference books, but lacks the "horns" and differs in a number of other ways. However, this is a bird of the prairies east of the Rockies and mainly in the United States. In Canada it is a straggler in southern Manitoba.

Strangely enough a lone individual was captured in a banding trap a few years ago by Mrs. H. M. S. Bell of Oak Bay. It was released after a few days and was not sighted again.

* * *

Dear Dr. Carl:

The other day I saw a woodpecker almost as big as a crow. What bird was it and is it rare?

Undoubtedly the bird you saw was the pileated woodpecker, our largest species. This is a spectacular bird when viewed at close range. Its great size, red crest and almost black body make it outstanding. Its cry, somewhat like that of the flicker but much louder, may carry a great distance across a valley on a still day.

Pileated woodpeckers are not particularly scarce but as they prefer forested areas containing dead trees they are seldom seen close to the city. Some years ago a pair nested on Ten Mile Point near Victoria but they have not been reported recently from this area.

Send questions in natural history to Dr. Cliff Carl, care of the Victoria Daily Times.

Even Spies Advertise

The Economist, London

Spies are usually thought of as shy, retiring creatures. Their dislike of publicity is an unavoidable condition of their profession. Or so it appeared until recently.

But we have changed all that. Last week the Russian agent Conon Molody, who operated in Britain under the name of Gordon Lonsdale, is publishing his memoirs, taking the occasion to deal many a shrewd blow at the immorality of life in capitalist America and the slackness of the British security services.

The answer to this blast against the monstrous regiment of capitalism is apparently to be the Penkovsky papers now being rushed into print in America and Britain. Oleg Penkovsky, who was shot by the Russians in 1963 for spying for the West, left behind him revelations about the higher circles of Soviet officialdom which are confidently expected to shiver quite a few timbers in Moscow when they appear.

Competition

Perhaps this competition in psychological warfare is why counter-espionage literary activity has been stepped up in eastern Europe. Mr. Boris Belitsky, an English-language Moscow radio commentator, has solved the great train robbery single-handed. It was the needy British secret service, of course.

And in Bulgaria Mr. Andrei Gulyashki (obviously a goulash Communist) has taken the bold step of turning the enemy's weapons against them. In his novel "From Russia—with Bond" he presents the downfall of 007 at the hands of that young, upstanding KGB agent Avvakum Zakhov.

The great game is now being fought to a finish in publishers' offices. For Britain there is comfort in this. On our own chosen ground of thriller-writing we shall have no difficulty in holding the hosts of Agitprop at bay.

U.K. Drive For Markets In Canada

LONDON (CP) — The latest in a series of almost desperate measures to correct what a British minister described as Britain's "frightening" imbalance of trade with Canada was launched Tuesday.

Called Canextour—short for Canadian export tour—the plan calls for eight trade representatives from British government offices in Canada to make a six-week tour of the United Kingdom, meeting officials of no fewer than 800 British firms to spread the message of export sales to Canada.

Shaun Stewart, British commercial counsellor in Ottawa and one of the Canextour members, told reporters they hope to persuade representatives of the British firms to make a personal investigation of sales potential in the rich Canadian market.

"Mainly we'll be trying to persuade them to come out to Canada to see for themselves that there are worthwhile opportunities there for them," Stewart told a press conference. Lord Brown, minister of state at the board of trade, told the briefing that while Canada sells about £450,000,000 ($1,350,000,000) worth of goods in Britain, she imports only £190,000,000 ($570,000,000) worth of British goods annually.

Hudson's Bay Oil Earnings Take Jump

CALGARY (CP) — Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. reports net earnings of $10,817,000 or 59 cents a share for the first nine months of 1965, an increase of 11.2 per cent over the same period last year.

Natural gas sales averaged 126,700,000 cubic feet a day, 14.6 per cent higher. Production of crude oil and natural gas liquids averaged 38,244 barrels a day, a gain of 2.5 per cent.

New Bleaching Process Produces Whiter Paper

QUEBEC (CP)—A Toronto chemist has described a new bleaching process which he said will influence pulp and paper production throughout the world.

Dr. W. Howard Rapson, who received the R. S. Jane Medal of the Chemical Institute of Canada for his achievement, said the process is the result of 25 years of research and has been tested in three Canadian pulp mills as well as a number in the United States.

He told reporters attending a congress of Canadian chemical engineers at Laval University that the bleach, chlorine dioxide, produced a stronger and whiter paper at a lower cost than bleaches now in use.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATOR TELLS HEARING

B.C. Tel Earnings Below Average

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Telephone Company should be allowed to make a profit of between 6.5 and 7.25 per cent of invested capital, it was suggested Wednesday to the Board of Transport Commissioners.

This range was proposed by Dr. J. T. Nicholson, professor of business administration at University of Western Ontario, who said this would give B.C. Tel permissive earnings in line with those of other telephone and utility companies in Canada.

He pointed out that authorization of this level of earnings would be no guarantee the company could achieve even the minimum figure.

Dr. Nicholson, who holds a doctorate in business administration from Harvard University, introduced evidence showing that the average Canadian utility company has been earning at the 6.5-to-7.25 rate over the last decade.

B.C. Tel's earnings have been below these levels. Company earnings were 6.44 per cent of invested capital in 1968 and 6.28 per cent in 1963.

The board, a federal agency empowered to regulate the level of earnings of B.C. Tel, is considering the basis on which the company's permissive level of earnings may be authorized.

Telephone rates are not at issue, but the board is considering a request by the B.C. Federation of Labor that they be reviewed at the end of the hearing.

Allan Bryce, B.C. Tel's director of revenue requirements, told the board the company's gross investment in telephone plants throughout the province stood at $412,870,000 at Aug. 31 this year, compared with $217,952,000 at the end of 1958 and $393,360,000 at the end of 1964.

MARKET SUMMARIES

A.T. and T. Hits Low On News of Probe

American Telephone and Telegraph broke to a new low on Wall Street today following news of a U.S. government investigation of its rates.

AT & T, the most widely-held stock of all, was down about 1½ and was pacing the big board on vloume.

Others of the biggest stocks on the New York exchange, followed "Telephone's" example. General Motors sank a full point, Standard Oil (New Jersey) almost a point.

Prices were mixed in trading today at Toronto.

AT NEW YORK as the list backed away from two days of historic highs, many of the glamor stoocks in television, electronics, office equipment and aerospace took fairly sharp losses.

Xerox dropped 4, Texas Instruments 3, Polaroid and Magnavox about 2 each, Zenith and Boeing about a point.

Eastern Airlines held a 2-point gain while lossses of a point or so were shown by National Airlines and KLM Airlines.

AT TORONTO CPR led the advance with a gain of ¾ to 70½, while National Drug was up the same amount to 13¾. Bank of Montreal tacked on ½ to 61¾ while Inglis and Imperial Oil were ahead ⅜ each to 8⅜ and 54⅝.

MacMillan, Bloedel was off ⅝ to a 1965 low of 26¾ and Algoma Steel ⅝ to 63¾.

Pine Point declined ½ to 85½ and Rio Algom ¼ to 19½ as base metals moved lower. Falconbridge maintained a gain of 1¼ at a record 112.

AT MONTREAL industrials were up but most other sections declined fractionally in active trading. Utilities were off. Trans-Mountain Pipe Line dropped ⅞ to 19 and Bell Telephone ⅛ to 70½.

AT LONDON the market was quiet but firm although business was selective. Gilt-edged shares were better with interest centred on the medium and short-dated issues.

Dollar stocks were firm, reflecting Wall Street's tone overnight, and leading Canadians to advance included Abitibi, Algoma, Aluminium, BA Oil, Hollinger, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, International Nickel and Brazil Traction.

AT VANCOUVER Consolidated Mining and Smelting hit a 1965 high on the industrial section of the Vancouver stock exchange before noon today rising .50 to $50 on 2,288 shares.

MacMillan, Bloedel dropped $1 to a 1965 low of $26.50.

In the mines, Ace rose .05 to .33 and Silver Standard put on .03 to $1.08. Utica gained .05 to $1.65 and Mt. Pleasant dipped to a 1965 low of .85, dropping .15. Lornex was off 10 to $1.25.

Japan Sets Deadline On Coal Deal

FERNIE (CP)—Japanese interests have given Crows Nest Industries Ltd. a February deadline to quote a price on 2,000,000 tons of coal a year.

W. R. Prentice, Crows Nest vice-president, said confirmation of coal requirements from the company's newly-discovered Balmer seam came in a letter from S. Furuyam, spokesman for eight steel mills.

The company has said new methods applied to mining and rail transportation can reduce costs sufficiently to make it possible to ship coal to Japan without the help of the present Canadian government subsidy of $2.73 a ton.

"This subsidy has filled an interim need for the coal industry in Western Canada but it now is limiting growth to a level which is inconsistent with Canadian export goals," said Mr. Prentice.

"The Japanese want 2,000,000 tons of coal. The government is prepared to subsidize a maximum of 800,000 tons a year from all western mines.

"Obviously if we want to fill our order we have to get costs down to a level where we don't need a subsidy. And that's what we are going to do."

U.S. ORDERS RATES PROBE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has ordered an investigation of telephone rates—an action blasted by the board chairman of AT & T as totally unwarranted and unnecessary.

The investigation, announced Wednesday, will cover almost all the services offered by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—November rapeseed jumped 15 cents in early trade and was at the high near the close today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Rapeseed advances were attributed to light hedging sales.

Flax was ahead two cents or more, stimulated by rapeseed advances and a firm Chicago soybean market.

Oats and barley were firm in light domestic trade. There was some shipping demand.

Rye edged higher, reflecting a steady Chicago market and a modest sale to Japan.

Our Own Gas Coming Back?

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Item to tuck away in the file: Between January and June of this year Canada imported five billion cubic feet of natural gas from the United States.

Hume

During the same period Canada was exporting 203 billion cubic feet to the United States.

The latest report from the Canadian Gas Industry makes note of the fact that while the bulk of the gas was flowing south five million cubic feet of it was heading north to serve an Ontario market.

Be interesting to know whether it was our own gas coming back and why. But the report doesn't provide that information.

An earth-shattering press release from the United States informs us that Americans buy an average half a deck of playing cards per capita per year.

It adds that with a recent tax reduction playing cards will now be cheaper and the hope is that the average American will now start buying "a whole deck once a year."

I hope so, too, for playing bridge or poker with only half a deck of cards must leave millions frustrated.

The National Trust Company opens its newest office next Tuesday at 2190 Oak Bay Avenue.

In addition to various enticements for depositors the staff will hold open house Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday with free coffee on tap for visitors.

The office will be the second National Trust office in Victoria, the 36th in Canada.

A group headed by W. C. Pitfield and Company shortly will be offering a new series of $2 million principal amount of 6½ per cent sinking fund debentures series A due 1985 at 98½ and accrued interest to yield approximately 6.63 per cent.

Sinking fund payments of $100,000 in each of the years from 1966 to 1984 together with the retirement of $100,000 at maturity are calculated to retire the issue in full.

The proceeds of the issue will be used to modernize and expand the manufacturing plant of Cleyn and Tinker Ltd., producers of high quality worsted fabrics.

The company is Canada's largest worsteds producer, being responsible for 32 per cent of total production.

Palm Dairies have come up with a new, completely sealed coffee cream container for use in restaurants.

The dinky little package means that customers cracking the seal get cream as pure as it was when it left the plant.

Already in use in some restaurants in town, the dinky pyramid-shaped container, with a pull-tab on the side to uncover the hole from which the cream is poured, should meet with good success.

The eighth shipment of concentrates from a mine 15 miles northwest of Courtenay is on its way to Japan.

The latest load, comprising 1,224 short tons, was valued at $209,068. This brings the value of concentrates shipped to date to $1,202,385.

A quote from William Dodge, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labour Congress:

"Many businessmen see business as having a responsibility towards the public and are often prepared to accept that responsibility in ways which are more disinterested than they are perhaps given credit for. While businessmen as citizens are concerned about community problems, businessmen as management seem to resist any solutions which are costly to business . . . such things as pollution, slum clearance and urban renewal.

Amen.

CZ Reports More Sales, Less Profit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Record high sales but lower earnings were reported today by Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd.

The newsprint producer said a report covering the first nine months of 1965 that net sales jumped 16 per cent to $120,037,000 compared to the same period in 1964.

Profit, howeevr, declined 17 per cent to $9,422,000.

The company noted that third-quarter sales were up 18 per cent over the same quarter of last year. Figures were not given.

The company said three factors were involved in lower net income for the nine months—a drop of $10 ton in newsprint prices, lack of normal rainfall and severe winter conditions, and higher wood costs.

UNION OFFICIAL BACK FROM RED TOUR

'Canada Must Outfish Japan, Russia On High Seas'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian fishermen must venture onto the high seas with big trawling fleets and outfish the Russians and Japanese, says Buck Suzuki.

Furthermore, they must start keeping species that they now throw back as useless.

Fisherman Suzuki says these and other measures are essential if the industry in Canada is to beat a threat from the foreign fleets, which are reaching down North American coast, backed up by streamlined processing operations at home.

Mr. Suzuki, a vice-president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) is back from a 17-day tour of Russia at the invitation of the Soviet food workers' union.

VISITED PLANTS

He and four other UFAWU members visited Russian fish processing plants on the Baltic and Atlantic coasts, inspected the Russian fleets and observed work at salmon conservation farms.

"We knew, of course, that Russia was developing her fishing industry," he said in an interview.

"What I did not know until I went there was the frightening speed with which this development is taking place."

Among new vessels produced in the rapid buildup of the Russian fleet are 3,500-ton factory ships that dress and freeze fish right on the high seas.

Russian processing plants can groundfish that Canadians seldom eat and that Canadian fishermen throw back.

Mr. Suzuki said this canned groundfish makes up a significant Russian export to Asian and East European nations, "building up its influence."

The fishermen's union charges that Japan has all but cleaned out the Bering Sea and now is making a full-scale move into the Gulf of Alaska.

"We have to get out and outfish these fellows, to prove our operations can be more economical. If we intensify our fishing in the high seas, they'll think twice about theirs."

B.C. FISHERMEN WANT BIGGER SALMON SHARE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada has served notice on the United States that it wants a larger slice of the west coast salmon catch.

Informants said Wednesday the notice was filed recently when representatives of the two countries met to study technical surveys on the salmon distribution.

However, the question will not be discussed until a meeting scheduled for next spring in Ottawa.

The gist of Canada's case, which reflects concern among British Columbia fishermen, is that Canada deserves a bigger chunk of the catch because more of the salmon originate in the Fraser, Skeena and other coastal rivers. The share has been about 50-50.

Arthur Mayse

It occurred to me on Wednesday that the sight of four election candidates pitching to a bunch of university students might be edifying, so a little before 1 p.m., I set out by way of Douglas Street to observe the confrontation.

The afternoon drizzle hadn't yet started, but the clouds sat low. Frowned on by that lowering sky, the student marchers when they hove into view on Pandora looked far from home and slightly forlorn under their banners, like a children's crusade which has been too long on the road.

This, of course, was a sentimental delusion. Crusaders of a sort they were indeed; but they'd walked only a few blocks from the buses that disgorged them, and were obviously enjoying their outing.

I hooked on, well back in the lines, and after sharing the exquisite pleasure of crossing Douglas under safe conduct from a motorcycle officer in one of those popskull Japanese helmets, arrived presently at the McPherson Playhouse.

There, with a minimum of goring by placards that demanded reduced tuition fees or no fees at all, the students deployed as if by instinct toward the balconies, which were much too small to accommodate more than a portion of their number.

The leftovers comfortably filled the main floor and the boxes, offering in total an audience of present and future voters to flutter a politician's heart.

★ ★ ★

I would like to be able to report that the undergraduates got as good as they dispensed, which was a close and generally courteous hearing.

However, the impression that reached me where I lurked among the beards, duffle coats and horsy-smelling corduroys, was that they were receiving more words than substance.

What the candidates did manage to do, by a singular set of verbal gymnastics, was fail to come within a country mile of the direct, explicit question of fees, which their audience found oppressively high.

(After all, it was to seek senior opinion from the federal aspirants that the young people had cut a lecture!)

If they propose to deal much with youth, I think Mr. Brereton, Mr. Groos, Mr. Hunter and Mr. Waite must offer better fare than they did on Wednesday.

What the students wanted was honest bread; what they got, if not a stone, was something damned flinty.

Since the candidates' discourses are covered in our news columns, I will content myself with a single note:

"Nobody saying anything that matters."

★ ★ ★

Their part played, the candidates departed to address a meeting of the Silver Threads Association, whose members are at least 40 years past minimum voting age.

The meeting then got down to business, with well-liked registrar Ronald Jeffels—a self-styled political eunuch—stressing the need for an educational revolution in Canada.

Finally came Alma Mater Society president Paul Williamson, bearded like a junior apostle, to point out with the humility of which the young are sometimes capable, that "we don't claim to have all the answers."

As a start in their bid for fee adjustment, he suggested that student delegates urge the provincial government to regard this as a peak year, and next year, drop tuition charges by $56, the amount of the 1965 fall raise.

Outside, I was swept along in a group which included a beard or two, and a small, fierce girl in black Cossack boots. The pole this splinter party carried through the mournful drizzle had fixed to it a picture frame with no picture.

In view of the four no-content policy speeches to which those undergrads had listened, I found that abstract mighty significant.

CPR to Bypass B.C. Ferries

Railroad Buys War Vessel For Sidney-Vancouver Run

Canadian Pacific Railways will soon quit using B.C. ferries to transport road trailers between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

The company Wednesday confirmed the purchase of a Second World War landing ship to inaugurate a new freight run between Sidney and Vancouver.

The ship, now in Victoria for conversion and overhaul work at McKay Cormack Ltd., is expected to be in service this year.

It will carry 34 trailers on its once-a-day round trip between the Washington State Ferry slip in Sidney and the Princess of Vancouver berth in downtown Vancouver.

Company officials said this morning that the transport would carry all CPR trailers plus any private trailers wishing to use the service.

Present fares for drop-trailers using B.C. Ferries are $35 less 30 per cent for a one-way trip. The 30 per cent discount is applicable only to trailer operators who spend $1,000 over a 30-day period.

"What happens is that a trailer operator using the ferries buys a $1,000 script from us," said Ron Worley, assistant manager of the Ferry Authority. "If it is used within 60 days he only pays $700 for it."

EARLY HOURS

The CPR has not indicated what its rates will be for private operators wishing to use the new service.

Present plans call for the vessel to leave Sidney in the early hours of the morning and return from Vancouver on a late night run.

The one-way trip is expected to take approximately 4½ hours.

The 328-foot vessel has been anchored in fresh water at Portland since the end of the war.

B.C. Ferry officials said it would be impossible to comment on the effect the new service would have on the government system until CPR announced its rates.

But they indicated that they were not perturbed by the move.

DEFICIT CUT

Art Gallery Membership Sets Mark

Greater Victoria Art Gallery broke two records in the past year.

More pieces of art were added to the permanent collection than ever before, bringing the total number of pieces to 148.

And membership increased by 131, greater than at any other time.

Total membership now stands at 1,718.

At the annual meeting Wednesday night, members were told that a $5,000 deficit earlier in the year had now been reduced to $300.

Operating costs ran to $38,065 while revenue amounted to $37,760.

The gallery's endowment fund jumped from $47,800 to $84,400 as a result of a bequest from Katherin McEwen.

George Maycock was elected to replace retiring president Brian Tobin. Three new members, Gordon Brown, Jack Lort and Jack Wilson were elected to the board.

Re-elected for two-year terms were Roderick Clack, Dr. R. M. Lane, Clare Copeland, Miss Olive Heritage, Kenneth Scace, Mrs. H. R. Turner and Brian Tobin.

BUDDIES FOR 53 YEARS and now retiring the same day from the same lifelong work, Victoria Fire Chief John Abbott and Assistant Chief Ed Hume put in their last shift Friday. Chief Abbott has served the force 39 years, four months, and his assistant has given 32 years, five months' service. The pair went to school together before joining the fire department. The Second World War interrupted the chief's service.

SAILOR SEEKS DISCHARGE, FINDS JAIL

William Watt, a 20-year-old sailor, decided early today that he wanted to speed up his discharge from the navy.

To bring this to the attention of naval authorities he decided to push a policeman around, he said in court today.

"Do you mean to tell me you would resort to assault just to get out of the navy?" asked Magistrate William Ostler. "Yes," was the reply.

"In that case," said Magistrate Ostler, "I'll assist you."

He sentenced Watt to two months in prison for obstructing a policeman who was attempting to arrest a companion of Watt's for intoxication.

"I've really nothing against policemen," said Watt. "They are fine fellows."

ADMIRAL PASSES

Chin-Ups Give Navy Big Trouble

The Navy is having trouble with its chin-ups.

So, for that matter, are many in the army and air force.

This is the word from HMCS Naden, where all service personnel of the Pacific Command are now taking compulsory physical fitness tests.

And of the 3,750 who have taken the tests so far about 21 per cent have failed them.

Chin-ups are giving them the most trouble it is reported

Personnel who have acquitted themselves well on the tests include Rear Admiral M. G. Stirling, flag officer of the Pacific Coast, who is reported to have passed "with flying colors."

The tests are divided according to age:

Under 30—seven chin-ups in two minutes, 35 sit-ups in 2 minutes, and running 600 yards in 154 seconds.

Between 30 and 39—five chin-ups in two minutes, 28 sit-ups in two minutes, and running 600 yards in 154 seconds.

Forty and over—four chin-ups in two minutes, 21 sit-ups in two minutes and running 300 yards in 71 seconds.

And flunking them doesn't mean you're home free. Physical fitness classes for persons who fail the tests are compulsory until they manage to struggle through again.

Testing the remainder of the 5,000 personnel will end early next month.

Woman Admits Shoplifting For Two Years

A 57-year-old woman admitted in police court today that she has been successfully stealing from department stores since 1963.

"A frank admission such as this is rather unusual," said Magistrate William Ostler.

He remanded Mrs. Cecelia Joos, 8 Gorge Road West, to Nov. 4 for pre-sentence reports.

She appeared in court and pleaded guilty to stealing $11.83 worth of goods from a department store last Monday.

She has no previous shoplifting convictions but readily admitted she has been stealing from department stores since 1963.

The articles Mrs. Joos admitted stealing Monday, included pillow cases, a calendar, a coin-holder, crayons, mixed nuts, spray starch and a pound of butter.

First B.C. Steel Mill Hinted by U.K. Visit

Loffmark Ducks Queries on Talks

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The provincial government's years-old dream of a steel mill for B.C. may be realized soon — by British interests.

But Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark, who knows the answer, today sidestepped all questions on the possibility raised by his sudden and unscheduled recall to London, Eng., last week while on a B.C. trade mission in Germany.

"There were three transactions that suddenly became pressing and couldn't be handled by correspondence," he said today when asked for the explanation.

He said he saw numerous top British investment and industrial leaders including "several in the iron and steel industry that are very much interested in two proposals we have in respect of the iron and steel industrial protential here."

Aske if one of the B.C. proposals involve establishment of a blast furnace and steel-making mill, Mr. Loffmark said:

"No comment.

"I cannot talk about it because, although the government initiates these feasibility studies and puts up proposals, it is the private companies that must decide whether they will carry them out.

CHOOSING SITES

"There are many things involved for the companies including such things as choosing of sites, purchase of real estate and so on, and I don't think I should comment when it might embarrass their plans."

Mr. Loffmark said his London trip included private talks with Lord Amorey, governing director of the Hudson's Bay Company, which has been urged to shift its headquarters from London to Vancouver.

The possibility is known to be under study as a result of recent restrictions on overseas business operations by the British government in its moves to bolster the pound sterling.

NO COMMENT

Asked if HBC will make the shift, Mr. Loffmark smiled broadly again and repeated "no comment."

He also saw Lord Tweedsmuir, who heads various ventures involved in B.C. and was one of the directors of the Wenner-Gren Peace River Power Corporation taken over by the provincial government in a controversial and litigation-bedevilled move.

"I got no indication that he has anything but the highest goodwill for B.C. and his continuing interest in the province is very positive," replied the trade minister when asked if all had been forgiven.

Other persons seen by Mr. Loffmark in London included the Duke of Devonshire who has undisclosed interests in B.C. and plans new ones, as well as officials of the Hambro Bank which has substantial investments in B.C. mines.

He said he was not at liberty to disclose the subjects discussed but indicated they involved more heavy investments in B.C. which, he pointed out, appeared to be the prospective trend from all British interests generally.

"I also saw Lord Thomson of Fleet (a Canadian) to obtain his advice about current developments on the British scene and he was very helpful," said Mr. Loffmark.

Regarding the 18-man B.C trade mission itself, he said various businessmen in the group concluded contracts for sale of B.C. foodstuffs and chemicals but he would not elaborate.

"We found that there is a fantastic market in Europe for B.C. fish and canned foods of all kinds and a good market for basic chemical products of all types," he said.

CREW SAFE

Little Salvage Expected From Wreck

The crew of the wrecked Greek freighter Ekaterini G. have been removed to the safety of the United States naval base at Adak, Alaska.

Rescue operations took place Wednesday afternoon and evening after slackening winds made it possible for rescue craft to get close to Great Sitkin Island and the beached freighter.

Half of the 40-man crew had remained on board, the other half had scrambled ashore to spend 24 hours huddled around driftwood fires as waves continued to pound the stricken ship.

The Victoria-based Sudbury II salvage vessel remains in the area to complete a detailed examination of the freighter to see "what, if anything, can be salvaged," said Gordon Elworthy of Island Tug and Barge.

When the Ekaterini was driven ashore by gale force winds after her tow-cable snapped she was ripped from bow to midships by the rocks.

"It doesn't look good, but we shall remain up there until we find out for sure just what is salvageable," Mr. Elworthy said this morning.

The Sudbury II made a 2,400-mile trip to reach the Ekaterini but arrived too late to be of assistance. She had bucked heavy gales the entire distance.

Ald. Toone Makes Resignation Official

Ald. A. W. Toone made his year-end resignation from Victoria city council official today. He gave written notice to the mayor and council that he intends to quit his two-year term half way in order to be a candidate for mayor in December.

Scuffle Over Car Passing Ends In $35 Assault Fine

People who think other motorists drive outrageously usually drive outrageously themselves when they attempt to follow the offending vehicle, Magistrate William Ostler said today.

Malcolm Bibby of View Royal was fined $35 for assaulting another motorist in a discussion which followed an incident in which Bibby's car was forced into a lane of oncoming traffic.

Court was told Bibby was overtaking a vehicle on the Old Island Highway when the vehicle turned sharply in front of him, forcing him into the opposite lane.

He followed the car and forced it to a stop where the discussion with the other driver took place.

"This is a classic case of two wrongs don't make a right," said Magistrate Ostler.

Halloween Ghosts To Walk Saturday

Any witches, goblins, ghosts and black cats caught walking abroad next Sunday night will at best feel out of place.

Oct. 31 is Halloween, but it is also a Sunday. When Halloween falls on a Sunday Victoria's once-a-year night people do their black deeds the night before.

At least they always have; the last four times Oct. 31 has been a Sunday, in 1954, 1948, 1943 and 1937, public and private Halloween observances ended Saturday night.

A weeknight Halloween is celebrated when it falls. But something about Halloween and Sunday don't mix.

Trickers and treaters are reported begging to go out as an elephant one night and a witch the next. Very cunning, children.

But by Sunday night you can be sure the treats will be all gone — and the police won't sit still for any tricks.

And speaking of police, they want to remind Halloweeners that there is an area-wide ban in Greater Victoria this year on firecrackers.

Non-explosive fireworks may be purchased and used on private property but the type that go bang in the night may only be fired by groups or organizations under permit—and they must buy their ammunition elsewhere.

Smugglers who attempt to run in firecrackers from areas outside Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich and anyone who uses their contraband, will face prosecution.

TOPICS of the DAY

United Appeal total for today is $253,659—57.7 per cent of the goal.

But with only two more days to go before the official end of the 1965 fund drive, the picture doesn't look too bright.

An urgent request to all canvassers in the business division was sent out Wednesday by campaign chairman Hershell A. Smith.

"The next few days are the critical ones," he said.

Obstructing a policeman at the scene of an accident Wednesday cost Arthur K. Fisher $100 when he appeared in police court today.

Court was told Fisher, an occupant of one of the cars involved in the accident, insisted on arranging to pry the vehicles apart after the drivers had ordered a tow truck to do the job.

He was arrested when he refused to leave the centre of the intersection of Blanshard and Broughton.

PRESS MISHAP DELAYS PAPERS

Ask The Times

Q. Is carbon classified as vegetable or mineral? C.O.

A. Both. And you can add animal to the list too. Carbon is a major constituent of every living thing, says a Uvic professor. It exists in organic materials such as plants (vegetable) and humans (animal) and in inorganic materials such as diamonds (mineral).

Q. As newcomers to your lovely city, we two "oldsters" would like to know where you apply for a marriage licence, what the fee is and what the waiting period is? M.H.

A. You apply at the vital statistics office in the Parliament Buildings. Three full days before the ceremony is the minimum waiting period and the fee is $5.

Q. Is there any place on Vancouver Island where one can go surfing? I. B.

A. Best place, says a local SCUBA outfitter, is Long Beach—but you'll need a wetsuit to keep warm. There you can pick up 15-foot breakers from half a mile out from shore.

Other places are Pachena Bay near Bamfield and China Beach, near Jordan River.

SPORTS

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

Hal Malone

LOOKS AT SPORTS

The wonder of Norman "Bud" Poile is his approach to life. He constantly looks like a small boy who has just found a lollipop under the bed and wants the world to share his enjoyment.

He has a Dick Van Dyke impishness, a Groucho Marx wit. If he doesn't ease off the groceries he may soon have a Jackie Gleason silhouette.

Poile knows every hockey writer from Glace Bay to Lower Sooke on a first name basis and will talk at the drop of a hat. Not his. He doesn't wear one.

BUD POILE

He has a memory like an elephant which probably accounts for his longtime feud with Hal Laycoe, the resident Portland genius. The air between them has been distinctly Aklavik—freezing and colder—since 1882. Something about a player transaction which neither will discuss.

Mr. Poile was in Victoria this week with his San Francisco Seals. He is their presiding steward in charge of managing, coaching, counting the house, and providing heavy inspiration.

For 13 years he has labored in minor hockey's professional vineyard. Ten of those years were with Edmonton where his teams won the title three times and were out of the playoffs only once.

With San Francisco he took the pennant twice—in 1963 and 1964. Last year the Seals slipped into Baghdad by the Bay but Mr. Poile did not consider practicing free falls from the Golden Gate bridge without a parachute.

He had met adversity before and looked the old dame straight in the eye.

Take It and Deposit It Youknowwhere

In 1957 the Detroit Red Wings were in the market for a coach to replace Jimmy Skinner. No coaching job anywhere carries a promise of security but Detroit, above all cities in the National League's "Establishment" held the record for leaving the fewest parched bones out on the desert.

Skinner was only the fourth coach to guide the Red Wings in 30 years. There were a lot of names mentioned as his successor but there seemed to be only candidate. N. Poile.

For five years he had been entrusted with nurturing Detroit prospects with the big club's No. 1 farm team at Edmonton. He knew the personnel, the system. He filed laborious reports on every Edmonton player after every game to Jack Adams, then the lord high priest at Detroit.

The deal, in every hockey man's mind, was that Sid Abel would step in as general manager for Adams and Poile would be appointed coach.

Dedication is supposed to bring it's own rewards and usually does. But not necessarily in Detroit. Abel was given both posts and Poile was given the brush. He suggested to Detroit that they take their Edmonton job and deposit it in a well-known place.

Entree Into the NHL—The Long Way

Now, as any five-year-old knows, San Francisco has been accepted into the NHL "Club" as part of its expansion program.

The "Establishment" has condescended to permit a second division, including such outposts as Vancouver, Los Angeles and a few others. The primary consideration for membership is money. For $2,000,000 each the "new boys" will be granted franchises—and all the healthy rejects the NHL can peddle.

"It's ironic, isn't it?" Poile asked rhetorically. "I thought I was in the NHL once and then when it didn't look as if I had a chance the door opens."

Some people, notably the tart-quilled author James Kearney, believe the "new boys" have bought themselves a two million dollar migraine.

Poile doesn't buy that cauliflower.

"I know what we'll get in player help," he said. "If there are any good ones left Boston and New York would have them.

"But that isn't the point. We'll be big league in a town that won't accept less.

Personal Shopping? Watch My Smoke

"So, we won't win the Stanley Cup right off. There's 4,000,000 people in our area and they don't care where you finish, but you have to be big league.

"They'll buy us just like they go for the Giants or the 49ers or the Warriors.

"You think I'm kidding? Listen. We have the biggest advance sale ever for Pittsburgh Nov. 10. Why? Because Pittsburgh has the Pirates and the Steelers, that's why."

There are other ways San Francisco and certain other cities in the Western League could have gone first cabin.

They could have declared themselves big league and spent their $2,000,000 each on raiding the NHL. Instead they asked the NHL to admit specific cities and the NHL laid down its own set of cosy, self-enriching ground rules.

Instead of bidding for stiffs, wouldn't Mr. Poile be happier if he could take the dough and do some personal shopping?

He thought a minute.

"Give me two million bucks," he said, and I'LL show YOU a hockey club that would heat things up pretty good."

Leafs Thwarted By Henderson, Rally for Draw

By DOUG PEDEN

Long John said it, but Victoria Maple Leafs don't believe it.

Neither do most of the 2,386 fans who were at Memorial Arena Wednesday night to see the goaltending magic of John Henderson enable San Francisco Seals to grab a 3-3 tie with the Leafs in a Western Hockey League thriller.

Lauded later by coach Bud Poile and his mates, the tall man who formerly guarded National League nets for Boston Bruins and who decided this season to end a four-year retirement suggested he still wasn't at his best.

"I'll need," said Henderson, "about half a dozen games to get sharp."

The league-leading Leafs blinked when they heard about that one. Although Henderson was making only his second comeback start, the Victorians refuse to believe he can improve on Wednesday's scalpel-like sharpness.

Seals Led 3-0

By the time they had reached the middle of the second period, the Leafs were weary of watching Long John use a combination of skill, anticipation and Irish luck to block everything they could hurl his way.

While Henderson was blocking something like 21 shots, his pals up front fashioned a 3-0 lead and appeared destined to snap Victoria's unbeaten skein on home ice at two games.

But steady pounding will eventually crack any armor and the Leafs finally hammered holes in Henderson's coat-of-mail. Launched by defenceman Bill Shvetz' goal at 10:59 of the middle period, they roared back to deadlock the count with little time to spare and then settled for the 3-3 tie after a blazing and scoreless overtime period.

Henderson stopped 50 shots and his heroics appeared to partially solve one problem for Poile, who has three netminders and must quickly cut that figure to two. He indicated Henderson would continue to wear 'Frisco finery and now needs only to decide between former U.S. Olympic hero Jack McCartan and rookie Doug Favell.

Defence Disappoints

While Poile was pleased with his goalie and the work of his hustling, ever-dangerous pack of forwards, he was somewhat disenchanted by the efforts of his defence corps.

Bud was perhaps miffed most by the decision of veteran Gerry Odrowski to play the man instead of the puck while the Seals were laboring to hold a 3-2 lead against the charging Leafs with less than two minutes remaining in regulation time.

Referee Willie Papp caught Odrowski holding and the Leafs needed only five seconds to cash in on the resulting penalty. Milan Marcetta did the honors with his fifth goal of the season, poking home a rebound a fleeting instant before an off-balance Henderson was able to get a foot to an open corner.

Victoria's rearguards made fewer mistakes but they paid a big price for two of them.

Sandy Hucul delayed in passing from behind the Victoria goal. He lost the puck to Al Nicholson, who promptly set up Wayne Connelly for an easy shot and a first-period 'Frisco goal.

Fred Sets Two Up

Fred Hucul erred in the second period while the Leafs were trying to exploit a manpower advantage. Coming out near the Victoria net, Fred attempted to flip a pass over the stick of quick little Charlie Burns. He missed the puck and the rubber rolled free. Burns got to it first and wheeled a short shot past goalie Al Millar.

"That was a bonehead play," Fred said later. "I should never do that."

After Connelly clicked for his second goal of the game and Shvetz started the Victoria comeback, the Victoria captain started to make amends.

Robbed of a goal on a brilliant leg save by Henderson, Fred drew assists on the last two tallies. Both came after he had forced Henderson to stop blazing shots from the point. John Sleaver was in the right spot to poke home a rebound to make it 3-2 and Marcetta got the big one after another Hucul sizzler.

ICE CHIPS: Both goalies made eight saves in the overtime period and Millar, continuing his spectacular play, finished with 36 stops . . . Aut Erickson was a standout on the Victoria defence and veteran forward Steve Witiuk was buzzing in great style . . . Sleaver, who was clipped for three stitches above his right eye in the first period, barely missed a yawning net in the opening seconds of overtime . . . Seals collected five of the game's eight minor penalties . . .

'ANYBODY SEEN THE PUCK?'

If long John Henderson wasnt bobbing and weaving, he could usually be found kneeling at Memorial Arena Wednesday. San Francisco Seals' lanky goalkeeper, trying a comeback after four years inactivity, stopped 50 shots as Seals and Victoria Maple Leafs went to 3-3 overtime tie. That's defenceman Tom Thurlby blocking Victoria's John Sleaver out of play.

McMahon Pulls Out, Opens Door for Hume

VANCOUVER (CP)—Industrialist Frank McMahon said Wednesday his group is withdrawing its application for a National Hockey League franchise here.

The announcement left the way clear for Fred Hume, former Vancouver mayor, and his associates to go after an NHL berth. Hume owns Vancouver Canucks of the Western League.

In Portland, Ore., meanwhile, directors of Portland Buckaroos announced they won't seek a berth in the NHL but will continue to upgrade the calibre of the WHL, of which Portland is a member.

The NHL earlier this month gave provisional approval to a Vancouver franchise for 1967-68, but told McMahon and Hume to get together and place a single bid.

McMahon said in a letter his group was withdrawing its application. The letter called Hume "a life-long friend of hockey on the Pacific Coast."

The letter said the McMahon group's "sole interest has been to obtain major league hockey status for Vancouver," and wished Hume success.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said in Montreal the league planned no action at the moment, but NHL directors decided at their last meeting that the prime consideration would be a suitable building before getting a franchise.

'POSITIVE THINKER'

Howsam on Spot If Trades Fizzle

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Little-known Bob Howsam has had his troubles since becoming general manager of St. Louis Cardinals, but they are nothing compared to the spot he is on now.

Howsam replaced popular Bing Devine in August, 1964, causing an uproar among St. Louis fans that became deafening when the Cardinals went on to win the National League pennant and World Series with Devine's players.

Then in his first full season at the helm, the 1965 Cardinals finished seventh.

In the last week Howsam has traded three-fourths of the infield that carried the team to the flag.

"I guess I'm really on the spot now," he said after trading first - baseman Bill White, short - stop Dick Groat and catcher Bob Uecker to Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday for outfielder Alex Johnson, pitcher Art Mahaffey and catcher Pat Corrales.

"But I'm a positive thinker. I'm not trying to get rid of players. I'm trying to build a better ball club."

Last week, he traded third-baseman Ken Boyer, the league's most valuable player in 1964, to New York Mets for pitcher Al Jackson and infielder Charley Smith. Thus, almost half of the team that won the world championship is gone.

If Johnson, Mahaffey, Corrales, Jackson and Smith have good years in 1966, Howsam will have proved that he can meet the challenge handed him by the Cardinals and St. Louis fans. He will have won with "my team."

However, if those players fall flat, Howsam also realizes he could find himself back in Denver, where he was an insurance company executive before joining the Cardinals.

Prep Booters Moving Ahead To Titles

Victoria High and Oak Bay meet at Royal Athletic Park the next two Friday nights for two soccer titles.

Teams from the two schools meet Friday at 7 p.m. for the second division inter-high school rugby title. Vic High is the defending champion.

Friday, the following week, the schools clash again for the senior (nee first division) bauble. Oak Bay won it last year.

Vic High seniors tied Mount View 2-2 Wednesday. In the only other game, Mount Douglas tripped Esquimalt 2-1. The Claremont-Oak Bay game was postponed.

Stamps Taste Worst Defeat In Nine Years

CALGARY (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers Wednesday handed Calgary Stampeders their first shutout in nine years, a 22-0 defeat before a sell-out Western Football Conference crowd of 22,266.

The Blue Bombers' victory moved them into a tie in WFC standings with Calgary. The Bombers have finished their regular - season schedule but Calgary has one more game Sunday in Vancouver against B.C. Lions and a victory would give Calgary a first-place finish.

Should Calgary lose in Vancouver, Winnipeg will be awarded first place because they've downed the Stamps in two of the three games between the clubs this season.

Calgary last suffered a shutout against Saskatchewan Roughriders, 33-0, Oct. 27, 1956.

Fullback Art Perkins led Winnipeg to Wednesday's victory, scoring two touchdowns. End Farrell Funston picked up the third touchdown while tackle Norm Winton kicked three converts and halfback Ed Ulmer booted a single.

DEFENCE TOUGH

Bombers put up a rock-ribbed defence, rushing quarterback Eagle Day so consistently that he completed only two of 15 passes.

Perkins and barging halfback Dave Raimey found lots of running room through big holes in the Stamps defence.

Calgary linebacker Wayne Harris suffered a pulled groin muscle during the game.

Winnipeg had 22 first downs and a total offence of 343 yards while Calgary managed only six first downs and an incredibly low 51 yards on total offence. The Stamps picked up eight yards passing compared with Ploen's 160 yards passing on 12 completions out of 20 tosses.

Habs, Leafs Slip In

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens continued their winning ways and Toronto Maple Leafs ended a two-game scoring famine in National Hockey League action Wednesday night.

Jean Beliveau scored a power-play goal with less than six minutes remaining to give the Canadiens a 4-3 victory over New York Rangers before 12,477 fans at the Forum. It was Montreal's third victory in as many games.

In Boston, Frank Mahovlich scored a power-play goal at the six minute mark of the second period to give Toronto a 2-1 victory over the Bruins.

Right winger Claude Provost opened Montreal's scoring at 14:21 of the first period as he combined with Henri Richard and Jean-Guy Talbot.

However, Donnie Marshall, a former Montreal player, got that one back with less than two minutes gone in the second period as he backhanded a high shot over a sprawling Lorne (Gump) Worsley. Canadiens defenceman Jacques Laperriere was serving a penalty at the time.

RICHARD GOT LEAD

Five minutes later Richard gave Montreal the lead for the second time as New York's Rod Seiling sat out a penalty.

New York came back less than three minutes before the period ended as Gary Peters, also a former Montrealer, recorded his first goal as a Ranger.

Montreal went ahead 3-2 at 4:42 of the final period when defenceman J. C. Tremblay took a 70-foot bouncing shot that trickled between rookie goaltender Ed Giacomin's pads.

New York's Doug Robinson got behind two Montreal defenders, took a pass from winger John McKenzie and sailed in unmolested to beat Worsley cleanly.

Beliveau's marker ended the scoring although both clubs had fine chances after that.

Welsh Booters Upset Russians

(Times News Services)

The Soviet Union, already certain of a place in the World Soccer Cup finals in England next year, suffered a surprise 2-1 defeat by Wales in its final match in its qualifying group at Cardiff Wednesday night.

The Russians, with five successive victories in their earlier group matches, were shaken out of their well-drilled stride by the spirited Welshmen.

Spain sounded a warning to its World Cup rivals with a 4-1 victory over Ireland. The two teams must meet in a playoff for a place in the finals, but on Wednesday night's form, Spain seems certain to qualify.

Belgium crushed Bulgaria 5-0 and now both teams share leadership of their group. Both must play Israel and a playoff seems likely.

EIGHT MORE

Already through to the finals are: Brazil (holders), England (host nation), Argentina, Chile, Mexico, Uruguay, Hungary and the Soviet Union.

Eight more countries are to qualify.

England, the host country, Hungary and the Soviet Union are the only European countries in the finals so far. They are likely to be joined by Spain, Italy, West Germany, Portugal, and France.

South American countries have won the World Cup three out of four times since 1950—Uruguay in 1950 and Brazil in 1958 and 1962—and the European countries will be keen to break this supremacy.

L.A. Led, Then Bled . . . 10-2!

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Norm Beaudin scored three goals Wednesday night in leading Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League to an easy 10-2 victory over Los Angeles Blades of the Western League.

The game counts in the standings of both teams in their leagues.

Beaudin scored two goals in a row at the outset of the second period as the Blades' defence began to fall apart. They had battled the Hornets on even terms in the first period, which ended in a 2-2 deadlock.

The Hornets rammed in four goals in the second period and four more in the third while holding the Blades scoreless.

Brian Smith netted a goal for Los Angeles at 1:28 of the first period to give the Blades their only lead of the game.

That was short-lived as Pittsburg tied it at 1-1 when Garry Jarrett scored 73 second later.

Arthur Mayse

It occurred to me on Wednesday that the sight of four election candidates pitching to a bunch of university students might be edifying, so a little before 1 p.m., I set out by way of Douglas Street to observe the confrontation.

The afternoon drizzle hadn't yet started, but the clouds sat low. Frowned on by that lowering sky, the student marchers when they hove into view on Pandora looked far from home and slightly forlorn under their banners, like a children's crusade which has been too long on the road.

This, of course, was a sentimental delusion. Crusaders of a sort they were indeed; but they'd walked only a few blocks from the buses that disgorged them, and were obviously enjoying their outing.

I looked on, well back in the lines, and after sharing the exquisite pleasure of crossing Douglas under safe conduct from a motorcycle officer in one of those popskull Japanese helmets, arrived presently at the McPherson Playhouse.

There, with a minimum of goring by placards that demanded reduced tuition fees or no fees at all, the students deployed as if by instinct toward the balconies, which were much too small to accommodate more than a portion of their number.

The leftovers comfortably filled the main floor and the boxes, offering in total an audience of present and future voters to flutter a politician's heart.

★ ★ ★

I would like to be able to report that the undergraduates got as good as they dispensed, which was a close and generally courteous hearing.

However, the impression that reached me where I lurked among the beards, duffle coats and horsy-smelling corduroys, was that they were receiving more words than substance.

What the candidates did manage to do, by a singular set of verbal gymnastics, was fail to come within a country mile of the direct, explicit question of fees, which their audience found oppressively high.

(After all, it was to seek senior opinion from the federal aspirants that the young people had cut a lecture!)

If they propose to deal much with youth, I think Mr. Brereton, Mr. Groos, Mr. Hunter and Mr. Waite must offer better fare than they did on Wednesday.

What the students wanted was honest bread; what they got, if not a stone, was something damned flinty.

Since the candidates' discourses are covered in our news columns, I will content myself with a single note: "Nobody saying anything that matters."

★ ★ ★

Their part played, the candidates departed to address a meeting of the Silver Threads Association, whose members are at least 40 years past minimum voting age.

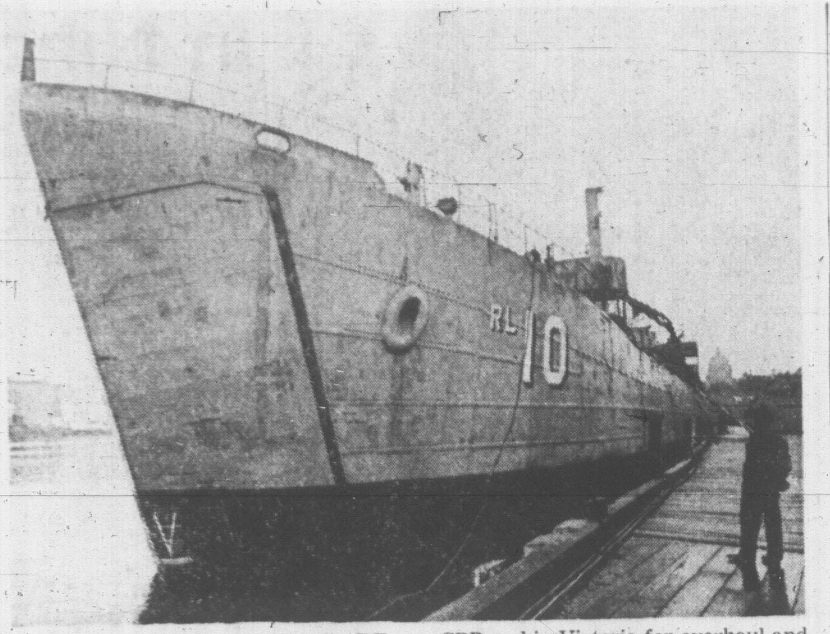
The meeting then got down to business, with well-liked registrar Ronald Jeffels — a self-styled political eunuch — stressing the need for an educational revolution in Canada.

Finally came Alma Mater Society president Paul Williamson, bearded like a junior apostle, to point out with the humility of which the young are sometimes capable, that "we don't claim to have all the answers."

As a start in their bid for fee adjustment, he suggested that student delegates urge the provincial government to regard this as a peak year, and next year, drop tuition charges by $56, the amount of the 1965 fall raise.

Outside, I was swept along in a group which included a beard or two, and a small, fierce girl in black Cossack boots. The pole this splinter party carried through the mournful drizzle had fixed to it a picture frame with no picture.

In view of the four no-content policy speeches to which those undergrads had listened, I found that abstract mighty significant.



LOOKING MORE LIKE A DESTROYER than a Landing Ship Tank, this Second World War veteran is awaiting transformation to a trailer transport. Purchased by the CPR and in Victoria for overhaul and refit, the vessel will eventually go into service between Sidney and Vancouver. It will carry 34 trailers. It has been berthed at Portland since the end of the war.

CPR to Bypass B.C. Ferries

Railroad Buys War Vessel For Sidney-Vancouver Run

Canadian Pacific Railways will soon quit using B.C. ferries to transport road trailers between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

The company Wednesday confirmed the purchase of a Second World War landing ship to inaugurate a new freight run between Sidney and Vancouver.

The ship, now in Victoria for conversion and overhaul work at McKay Cormack Ltd., is expected to be in service this year.

It will carry 34 trailers on its once-a-day round trip between the Washington State Ferry slip in Sidney and the Princess of Vancouver berth in downtown Vancouver.

Company officials said this morning that the transport would carry all CPR trailers plus any private trailers wishing to use the service.

Present fares for drop-trailers using B.C. Ferries are $35 less 30 per cent for a one-way trip. The 30 per cent discount is applicable only to trailer operators who spend $1,000 over a 30-day period.

"What happens is that a trailer operator using the ferries buys a $1,000 script from us," said Ron Worley, assistant manager of the Ferry Authority. "If it is used within 60 days he only pays $700 for it."

EARLY HOURS

The CPR has not indicated what its rates will be for private operators wishing to use the new service.

Present plans call for the vessel to leave Sidney in the early hours of the morning and return from Vancouver on a late night run.

The one-way trip is expected to take approximately 4½ hours.

The 328-foot vessel has been anchored in fresh water at Portland since the end of the war.

B.C. Ferry officials said it would be impossible to comment on the effect the new service would have on the government system until CPR announced its rates.

But they indicated that they were not perturbed by the move.

DEFICIT CUT

Art Gallery Membership Sets Mark

Greater Victoria Art Gallery broke two records in the past year.

More pieces of art were added to the permanent collection than ever before, bringing the total number of pieces to 148.

And membership increased by 131, greater than at any other time.

Total membership now stands at 1,718.

At the annual meeting Wednesday night, members were told that a $5,000 deficit earlier in the year had now been reduced to $300.

Operating costs ran to $38,065 while revenue amounted to $37,760.

The gallery's endowment fund jumped from $47,800 to $84,400 as a result of a bequest from Katherin McEwen.

George Maycock was elected to replace retiring president Brian Tobin. Three new members, Gordon Brown, Jack Lort and Jack Wilson were elected to the board.

Re-elected for two-year terms were Roderick Clack, Dr. R. M. Lane, Clare Copeland, Miss Olive Heritage, Kenneth Scace, Mrs. H. R. Turner and Brian Tobin.

BUDDIES FOR 53 YEARS and now retiring the same day from the same lifelong work, Victoria Fire Chief John Abbott and Assistant Chief Ed Hume put in their last shift Friday. Chief Abbott has served the force 39 years, four months, and his assistant has given 32 years, five months' service. The pair went to school together before joining the fire department. The Second World War interrupted the chief's service.

SAILOR SEEKS DISCHARGE, FINDS JAIL

William Watt, a 20-year-old sailor, decided early today that he wanted to speed up his discharge from the navy.

To bring this to the attention of naval authorities he decided to push a policeman around, he said in court today.

"Do you mean to tell me you would resort to assault just to get out of the navy?" asked Magistrate William Ostler. "Yes," was the reply.

"In that case," said Magistrate Ostler, "I'll assist you."

He sentenced Watt to two months in prison for obstructing a policeman who was attempting to arrest a companion of Watt's for intoxication.

"I've really nothing against policemen," said Watt. "They are fine fellows."

ADMIRAL PASSES

Chin-Ups Give Navy Big Trouble

The Navy is having trouble with its chin-ups.

So, for that matter, are many in the army and air force.

This is the word from HMCS Naden, where all service personnel of the Pacific Command are now taking compulsory physical fitness tests.

And of the 3,750 who have taken the tests so far about 21 per cent have failed them.

Chin-ups are giving them the most trouble it is reported

Personnel who have acquitted themselves well on the tests include Rear Admiral M. G. Stirling, flag officer of the Pacific Coast, who is reported to have passed "with flying colors."

The tests are divided according to age:

Under 30—seven chin-ups in two minutes, 35 sit-ups in 2 minutes, and running 600 yards in 154 seconds.

Between 30 and 39—five chin-ups in two minutes, 28 sit-ups in two minutes, and running 600 yards in 154 seconds.

Forty and over—four chin-ups in two minutes, 21 sit-ups in two minutes and running 300 yards in 71 seconds.

And flunking them doesn't mean you're home free. Physical fitness classes for persons who fail the tests are compulsory until they manage to struggle through again.

Testing the remainder of the 5,000 personnel will end early next month.

Woman Admits Shoplifting For Two Years

A 57-year-old woman admitted in police court today that she has been successfully stealing from department stores since 1963.

"A frank admission such as this is rather unusual," said Magistrate William Ostler.

He remanded Mrs. Cecelia Joos, 8 Gorge Road West, to Nov. 4 for pre-sentence reports.

She appeared in court and pleaded guilty to stealing $11.83 worth of goods from a department store last Monday.

She has no previous shoplifting convictions but readily admitted she has been stealing from department stores since 1963.

The articles Mrs. Joos admitted stealing Monday included pillow cases, a calendar, a coin-holder, crayons, mixed nuts, spray starch and a pound of butter.

First B.C. Steel Mill Hinted by U.K. Visit

Loffmark Ducks Queries on Talks

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The provincial government's years-old dream of a steel mill for B.C. may be realized soon — by British interests.

But Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark, who knows the answer, today sidestepped all questions on the possibility raised by his sudden and unscheduled recall to London, Eng., last week while on a B.C. trade mission in Germany.

"There were three transactions that suddenly became pressing and couldn't be handled by correspondence," he said today when asked for the explanation.

He said he saw numerous top British investment and industrial leaders including "several in the iron and steel industry that are very much interested in two proposals we have in respect of the iron and steel industrial protential here."

Aske if one of the B.C. proposals involve establishment of a blast furnace and steel-making mill, Mr. Loffmark said:

"No comment.

"I cannot talk about it because, although the government initiates these feasibility studies and puts up proposals, it is the private companies that must decide whether they will carry them out.

CHOOSING SITES

"There are many things involved for the companies including such things as choosing of sites, purchase of real estate and so on, and I don't think I should comment when it might embarrass their plans."

Mr. Loffmark said his London trip included private talks with Lord Amorey, governing director of the Hudson's Bay Company, which has been urged to shift its headquarters from London to Vancouver.

The possibility is known to be under study as a result of recent restrictions on overseas business operations by the British government in its moves to bolster the pound sterling.

NO COMMENT

Asked if HBC will make the shift, Mr. Loffmark smiled broadly again and repeated "no comment."

He also saw Lord Tweedsmuir, who heads various ventures involved in B.C. and was one of the directors of the Wenner-Gren Peace River Power Corporation taken over by the provincial government in a controversial and litigation-bedevilled move.

"I got no indication that he has anything but the highest goodwill for B.C. and his continuing interest in the province is very positive," replied the trade minister when asked if all had been forgiven.

Other persons seen by Mr. Loffmark in London included the Duke of Devonshire who has undisclosed interests in B.C. and plans new ones, as well as officials of the Hambro Bank which has substantial investments in B.C. mines.

He said he was not at liberty to disclose the subjects discussed but indicated they involved more heavy investments in B.C. which, he pointed out, appeared to be the prospective trend from all British interests generally.

"I also saw Lord Thomson of Fleet (a Canadian) to obtain his advice about current developments on the British scene and he was very helpful," said Mr. Loffmark.

Regarding the 18-man B.C trade mission itself, he said various businessmen in the group concluded contracts for sale of B.C. foodstuffs and chemicals but he would not elaborate.

"We found that there is a fantastic market in Europe for B.C. fish and canned foods of all kinds and a good market for basic chemical products of all types," he said.

CREW SAFE

Little Salvage Expected From Wreck

The crew of the wrecked Greek freighter Ekaterini G. have been removed to the safety of the United States naval base at Adak, Alaska.

Rescue operations took place Wednesday afternoon and evening after slackening winds made it possible for rescue craft to get close to Great Sitkin Island and the beached freighter.

Half of the 40-man crew had remained on board, the other half had scrambled ashore to spend 24 hours huddled around driftwood fires as waves continued to pound the stricken ship.

The Victoria-based Sudbury II salvage vessel remains in the area to complete a detailed examination of the freighter to see "what, if anything, can be salvaged," said Gordon Elworthy of Island Tug and Barge.

When the Ekaterini was driven ashore by gale force winds after her tow-cable snapped she was ripped from bow to midships by the rocks.

"It doesn't look good, but we shall remain up there until we find out for sure just what is salvageable," Mr. Elworthy said this morning.

The Sudbury II made a 2,400-mile trip to reach the Ekaterini but arrived too late to be of assistance. She had bucked heavy gales the entire distance.

Ald. Toone Makes Resignation Official

Ald. A. W. Toone made his year-end resignation from Victoria city council official today. He gave written notice to the mayor and council that he intends to quit his two-year term half way in order to be a candidate for mayor in December.

Scuffle Over Car Passing Ends In $35 Assault Fine

People who think other motorists drive outrageously usually drive outrageously themselves when they attempt to follow the offending vehicle, Magistrate William Ostler said today.

Malcolm Bibby of View Royal was fined $35 for assaulting another motorist in a discussion which followed an incident in which Bibby's car was forced into a lane of oncoming traffic.

Court was told Bibby was overtaking a vehicle on the Old Island Highway when the vehicle turned sharply in front of him, forcing him into the opposite lane.

He followed the car and forced it to a stop where the discussion with the other driver took place.

"This is a classic case of two wrongs don't make a right," said Magistrate Ostler.

Halloween Ghosts To Walk Saturday

Any witches, goblins, ghosts and black cats caught walking abroad next Sunday night will at best feel out of place.

Oct. 31 is Halloween, but it is also a Sunday. When Halloween falls on a Sunday Victoria's once-a-year night people do their black deeds the night before.

At least they always have; the last four times Oct. 31 has been a Sunday, in 1954, 1948, 1943 and 1937, public and private Halloween observances ended Saturday night.

A weeknight Halloween is celebrated when it falls. But something about Halloween and Sunday don't mix.

Trickers and treaters are reported begging to go out as an elephant one night and a witch the next. Very cunning, children.

But by Sunday night you can be sure the treats will be all gone — and the police won't sit still for any tricks.

And speaking of police, they want to remind Halloweeners that there is an area-wide ban in Greater Victoria this year on firecrackers.

Non - explosive fireworks may be purchased and used on private property but the type that go bang in the night may only be fired by groups or organizations under permit —and they must buy their ammunition elsewhere.

Smugglers who attempt to run in firecrackers from areas outside Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich and anyone who uses their contraband, will face prosecution.

TOPICS of the DAY

United Appeal total for today is $253,659—57.7 per cent of the goal.

But with only two more days to go before the official end of the 1965 fund drive, the picture doesn't look too bright.

An urgent request to all canvassers in the business division was sent out Wednesday by campaign chairman Hershell A. Smith.

"The next few days are the critical ones," he said.

Obstructing a policeman at the scene of an accident Wednesday cost Arthur K. Fisher $100 when he appeared in police court, today.

Court was told Fisher, an occupant of one of the cars involved in the accident, insisted on arranging to pry the vehicles apart after the drivers had ordered a tow truck to do the job.

He was arrested when he refused to leave the centre of the intersection of Blanshard and Broughton.

PRESS MISHAP DELAYS PAPERS

Due to a mechanical breakdown in the presses, several thousand Times subscribers received their home-delivered papers later than usual Wednesday. The breakdown also resulted in the removal of colored illustrations from the advertisement of Woodward's on Page 18 of the late papers.

Ask The Times

Q. Is carbon classified as vegetable or mineral? C.O.

A. Both. And you can add animal to the list too. Carbon is a major constituent of every living thing, says a Uvic professor. It exists in organic materials such as plants (vegetable) and humans (animal) and in inorganic materials such as diamonds (mineral).

Q. As newcomers to your lovely city, we two "oldsters" would like to know where you apply for a marriage licence, what the fee is and what the waiting period is? M.H.

A. You apply at the vital statistics office in the Parliament Buildings. Three full days before the ceremony is the minimum waiting period and the fee is $5.

Q. Is there any place on Vancouver Island where one can go surfing? I. B.

A. Best place, says a local SCUBA outfitter, is Long Beach—but you'll need a wet-suit to keep warm. There you can pick up 15-foot breakers from half a mile out from shore.

Other places are Pachena Bay near Bamfield and China Beach, near Jordan River.

Long John Dull Like New Blade!

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

Hal Malone

LOOKS AT SPORTS

The wonder of Norman "Bud" Poile is his approach to life. He constantly looks like a small boy who has just found a lollipop under the bed and wants the world to share his enjoyment.

He has a Dick Van Dyke impishness, a Groucho Marx wit. If he doesn't ease off the groceries he may soon have a Jackie Gleason silhouette.

Poile knows every hockey writer from Glace Bay to Lower Sooke on a first name basis and will talk at the drop of a hat. Not his. He doesn't wear one.

BUD POILE

He has a memory like an elephant which probably accounts for his longtime feud with Hal Laycoe, the resident Portland genius. The air between them has been distinctly Aklavik—freezing and colder—since 1882. Something about a player transaction which neither will discuss.

Mr. Poile was in Victoria this week with his San Francisco Seals. He is their presiding steward in charge of managing, coaching, counting the house, and providing heavy inspiration.

For 13 years he has labored in minor hockey's professional vineyard. Ten of those years were with Edmonton where his teams won the title three times and were out of the playoffs only once.

With San Francisco he took the pennant twice—in 1963 and 1964. Last year the Seals slipped into Baghdad by the Bay but Mr. Poile did not consider practicing free falls from the Golden Gate bridge without a parachute.

He had met adversity before and looked the old dame straight in the eye.

Take It and Deposit It Youknowwhere

In 1957 the Detroit Red Wings were in the market for a coach to replace Jimmy Skinner. No coaching job anywhere carries a promise of security but Detroit, above all cities in the National League's "Establishment" held the record for leaving the fewest parched bones out on the desert.

Skinner was only the fourth coach to guide the Red Wings in 30 years. There were a lot of names mentioned as his successor but there seemed to be only candidate. N. Poile.

For five years he had been entrusted with nurturing Detroit prospects with the big club's No. 1 farm team at Edmonton. He knew the personnel, the system. He filed laborious reports on every Edmonton player after every game to Jack Adams, then the lord high priest at Detroit.

The deal, in every hockey man's mind, was that Sid Abel would step in as general manager for Adams and Poile would be appointed coach.

Dedication is supposed to bring it's own rewards and usually does. But not necessarily in Detroit. Abel was given both posts and Poile was given the brush. He suggested to Detroit that they take their Edmonton job and deposit it in a well-known place.

Entree Into the NHL—The Long Way

Now, as any five-year-old knows, San Francisco has been accepted into the NHL "Club" as part of its expansion program.

The "Establishment" has condescended to permit a second division, including such outposts as Vancouver, Los Angeles and a few others. The primary consideration for membership is money. For $2,000,000 each the "new boys" will be granted franchises—and all the healthy rejects the NHL can peddle.

"It's ironic, isn't it?" Poile asked rhetorically. "I thought I was in the NHL once and then when it didn't look as if I had a chance the door opens."

Some people, notably the tart-quilled author James Kearney, believe the "new boys" have bought themselves a two million dollar migraine.

Poile doesn't buy that cauliflower.

"I know what we'll get in player help," he said. "If there are any good ones left Boston and New York would have them.

"But that isn't the point. We'll be big league in a town that won't accept less.

Personal Shopping? Watch My Smoke

"So, we won't win the Stanley Cup right off. There's 4,000,000 people in our area and they don't care where you finish, but you have to be big league.

"They'll buy us just like they go for the Giants or the 49ers or the Warriors.

"You think I'm kidding? Listen. We have the biggest advance sale ever for Pittsburgh Nov. 10. Why? Because Pittsburgh has the Pirates and the Steelers, that's why."

There are other ways San Francisco and certain other cities in the Western League could have gone first cabin.

They could have declared themselves big league and spent their $2,000,000 each on raiding the NHL. Instead they asked the NHL to admit specific cities and the NHL laid down its own set of cosy, self-enriching ground rules.

Instead of bidding for stiffs, wouldn't Mr. Poile be happier if he could take the dough and do some personal shopping?

He thought a minute.

"Give me two million bucks," he said, and I'LL show YOU a hockey club that would heat things up pretty good."

Leafs Thwarted By Henderson, Rally for Draw

By DOUG PEDEN

Long John said it, but Victoria Maple Leafs don't believe it.

Neither do most of the 2,386 fans who were at Memorial Arena Wednesday night to see the goaltending magic of John Henderson enable San Francisco Seals to grab a 3-3 tie with the Leafs in a Western Hockey League thriller.

Lauded later by coach Bud Poile and his mates, the tall man who formerly guarded National League nets for Boston Bruins and who decided this season to end a four-year retirement suggested he still wasn't at his best.

"I'll need," said Henderson, "about half a dozen games to get sharp."

The league-leading Leafs blinked when they heard about that one. Although Henderson was making only his second comeback start, the Victorians refuse to believe he can improve on Wednesday's scalpel-like sharpness.

Seals Led 3-0

By the time they had reached the middle of the second period, the Leafs were weary of watching Long John use a combination of skill, anticipation and Irish luck to block everything they could hurl his way.

While Henderson was blocking something like 21 shots, his pals up front fashioned a 3-0 lead and appeared destined to snap Victoria's unbeaten skein on home ice at two games.

But steady pounding will eventually crack any armor and the Leafs finally hammered holes in Henderson's coat-of-mail. Launched by defenceman Bill Shvetz' goal at 10:59 of the middle period, they roared back to deadlock the count with little time to spare and then settled for the 3-3 tie after a blazing and scoreless overtime period.

Henderson stopped 50 shots and his heroics appeared to partially solve one problem for Poile, who has three netminders and must quickly cut that figure to two. He indicated Henderson would continue to wear 'Frisco finery and now needs only to decide between former U.S. Olympic hero Jack McCartan and rookie Doug Favell.

Defence Disappoints

While Poile was pleased with his goalie and the work of his hustling, ever-dangerous pack of forwards, he was somewhat disenchanted by the efforts of his defence corps.

Bud was perhaps miffed most by the decision of veteran Gerry Odrowski to play the man instead of the puck while the Seals were laboring to hold a 3-2 lead against the charging Leafs with less than two minutes remaining in regulation time.

Referee Willie Papp caught Odrowski holding and the Leafs needed only five seconds to cash in on the resulting penalty. Milan Marcetta did the honors with his fifth goal of the season, poking home a rebound a fleeting instant before an off-balance Henderson was able to get a foot to an open corner.

Victoria's rearguards made fewer mistakes but they paid a big price for two of them.

Sandy Hucul delayed in passing from behind the Victoria goal. He lost the puck to Al Nicholson, who promptly set up Wayne Connelly for an easy shot and a first-period 'Frisco goal.

Fred Sets Two Up

Fred Hucul erred in the second period while the Leafs were trying to exploit a manpower advantage. Coming out near the Victoria net, Fred attempted to flip a pass over the stick of quick little Charlie Burns. He missed the puck and the rubber rolled free. Burns got to it first and wheeled a short shot past goalie Al Millar.

"That was a bonehead play," Fred said later. "I should never do that."

After Connelly clicked for his second goal of the game and Shvetz started the Victoria comeback, the Victoria captain started to make amends.

Robbed of a goal on a brilliant leg save by Henderson, Fred drew assists on the last two tallies. Both came after he had forced Henderson to stop blazing shots from the point. John Sleaver was in the right spot to poke home a rebound to make it 3-2 and Marcetta got the big one after another Hucul sizzler.

ICE CHIPS: Both goalies made eight saves in the overtime period and Millar, continuing his spectacular play, finished with 36 stops . . . Aut Erickson was a standout on the Victoria defence and veteran forward Steve Witiuk was buzzing in great style . . . Sleaver, who was clipped for three stitches above his right eye in the first period, barely missed a yawning net in the opening seconds of overtime . . . Seals collected five of the game's eight minor penalties . . .

If long John Henderson wasnt bobbing and weaving, he could usually be found kneeling at Memorial Arena Wednesday. That's defenceman Tom Thurlby blocking Victoria's John Sleaver out of play.

McMahon Pulls Out, Opens Door for Hume

VANCOUVER (CP) — Industrialist Frank McMahon said Wednesday his group is withdrawing its application for a National Hockey League franchise here.

The announcement left the way clear for Fred Hume, former Vancouver mayor, and his associates to go after an NHL berth. Hume owns Vancouver Canucks of the Western League.

In Portland, Ore., meanwhile, directors of Portland Buckaroos announced they won't seek a berth in the NHL but will continue to upgrade the calibre of the WHL, of which Portland is a member.

The NHL earlier this month gave provisional approval to a Vancouver franchise for 1967-68, but told McMahon and Hume to get together and place a single bid.

McMahon said in a letter his group was withdrawing its application. The letter called Hume "a life-long friend of hockey on the Pacific Coast."

The letter said the McMahon group's "sole interest has been to obtain major league hockey status for Vancouver," and wished Hume success.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said in Montreal the league planned no action at the moment, but NHL directors decided at their last meeting that the prime consideration would be a suitable building before getting a franchise.

'POSITIVE THINKER'

Howsam on Spot If Trades Fizzle

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Little-known Bob Howsam has had his troubles since becoming general manager of St. Louis Cardinals, but they are nothing compared to the spot he is on now.

Howsam replaced popular Bing Devine in August, 1964, causing an uproar among St. Louis fans that became deafening when the Cardinals went on to win the National League pennant and World Series with Devine's players.

Then in his first full season at the helm, the 1965 Cardinals finished seventh.

In the last week Howsam has traded three-fourths of the infield that carried the team to the flag.

"I guess I'm really on the spot now," he said after trading first-baseman Bill White, short-stop Dick Groat and catcher Bob Uecker to Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday for outfielder Alex Johnson, pitcher Art Mahaffey and catcher Pat Corrales.

"But I'm a positive thinker. I'm not trying to get rid of players. I'm trying to build a better ball club."

Last week, he traded third-baseman Ken Boyer, the league's most valuable player in 1964, to New York Mets for pitcher Al Jackson and infielder Charley Smith. Thus, almost half of the team that won the world championship is gone.

If Johnson, Mahaffey, Corrales, Jackson and Smith have good years in 1966, Howsam will have proved that he can meet the challenge handed him by the Cardinals and St. Louis fans. He will have won with "my team."

However, if those players fall flat, Howsam also realizes he could find himself back in Denver, where he was an insurance company executive before joining the Cardinals.

Stamps Taste Worst Defeat In Nine Years

CALGARY (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers Wednesday handed Calgary Stampeders their first shutout in nine years, a 22-0 defeat before a sell-out Western Football Conference crowd of 22,266.

The Blue Bombers' victory moved them into a tie in WFC standings with Calgary. The Bombers have finished their regular-season schedule but Calgary has one more game Sunday in Vancouver against B.C. Lions and a victory would give Calgary a first-place finish.

Should Calgary lose in Vancouver, Winnipeg will be awarded first place because they've downed the Stamps in two of the three games between the clubs this season.

Calgary last suffered a shutout against Saskatchewan Roughriders, 33-0, Oct. 27, 1956.

Fullback Art Perkins led Winnipeg to Wednesday's victory, scoring two touchdowns. End Farrell Funston picked up the third touchdown while tackle Norm Winton kicked three converts and halfback Ed Ulmer booted a single.

DEFENCE TOUGH

Bombers put up a rock-ribbed defence, rushing quarterback Eagle Day so consistently that he completed only two of 15 passes.

Perkins and barging halfback Dave Raimey found lots of running room through big holes in the Stamps defence.

Calgary linebacker Wayne Harris suffered a pulled groin muscle during the game.

Winnipeg had 22 first downs and a total offence of 343 yards while Calgary managed only six first downs and an incredibly-low 51 yards on total offence. The Stamps picked up eight yards passing compared with Ploen's 160 yards passing on 12 completions out of 20 tosses.

Habs, Leafs Slip In

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens continued their winning ways and Toronto Maple Leafs ended a two-game scoring famine in National Hockey League action Wednesday night.

Jean Beliveau scored a power-play goal with less than six minutes remaining to give the Canadiens a 4-3 victory over New York Rangers before 12,477 fans at the Forum. It was Montreal's third victory in as many games.

In Boston, Frank Mahovlich scored a power-play goal at the six minute mark of the second period to give Toronto a 2-1 victory over the Bruins.

Right winger Claude Provost opened Montreal's scoring at 14:21 of the first period as he combined with Henri Richard and Jean-Guy Talbot.

However, Donnie Marshall, a former Montreal player, got that one back with less than two minutes gone in the second period as he backhanded a high shot over a sprawling Lorne (Gump) Worsley. Canadiens defenceman Jacques Laperriere was serving a penalty at the time.

RICHARD GOT LEAD

Five minutes later Richard gave Montreal the lead for the second time as New York's Rod Seiling sat out a penalty.

New York came back less than three minutes before the period ended as Gary Peters, also a former Montrealer, recorded his first goal as a Ranger.

Montreal went ahead 3-2 at 4:42 of the final period when defenceman J. C. Tremblay took a 70-foot bouncing shot that trickled between rookie goaltender Ed Giacomin's pads.

New York's Doug Robinson got behind two Montreal defenders, took a pass from winger John McKenzie and sailed in unmolested to beat Worsley cleanly.

Beliveau's marker ended the scoring although both clubs had fine chances after that.

After that it was Belmont, 42 points; St. Ann's Academy, 38; Victoria High and Mount Douglas, eight each.

Welsh Booters Upset Russians

(Times News Services)

The Soviet Union, already certain of a place in the World Soccer Cup finals in England next year, suffered a surprise 2-1 defeat by Wales in its final match in its qualifying group at Cardiff Wednesday night.

The Russians, with five successive victories in their earlier group matches, were shaken out of their well-drilled stride by the spirited Welshmen.

Spain sounded a warning to its World Cup rivals with a 4-1 victory over Ireland. The two teams must meet in a playoff for a place in the finals, but on Wednesday night's form, Spain seems certain to qualify.

Belgium crushed Bulgaria 5-0 and now both teams share leadership of their group. Both must play Israel and a playoff seems likely.

EIGHT MORE

Already through to the finals are: Brazil (holders), England (host nation), Argentina, Chile, Mexico, Uruguay, Hungary and the Soviet Union.

Eight more countries are to qualify.

England, the host country, Hungary and the Soviet Union are the only European countries in the finals so far. They are likely to be joined by Spain, Italy, West Germany, Portugal, and France.

South American countries have won the World Cup three out of four times since 1950—Uruguay in 1950 and Brazil in 1958 and 1962—and the European countries will be keen to break this supremacy.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Norm Beaudin scored three goals Wednesday night in leading Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League to an easy 10-2 victory over Los Angeles Blades of the Western League.

The game counts in the standings of both teams in their leagues.

Beaudin scored two goals in a row at the outset of the second period as the Blades' defence began to fall apart. They had battled the Hornets on even terms in the first period, which ended in a 2-2 deadlock.

The Hornets rammed in four goals in the second period and four more in the third while holding the Blades scoreless.

Brian Smith netted a goal for Los Angeles at 1:28 of the first period to give the Blades their only lead of the game.

That was short-lived as Pittsburg tied it at 1-1 when Garry Jarrett scored 73 second later.

SENIOR CITIZENS WOOED

Talks Show Promise At All-Party Rally

An audience of 250 pensioners got plenty of promises from potential MPs Wednesday at an all-candidates meeting in the Senior Citizens Activity Centre.

Only one candidate didn't make a specific promise aimed at older persons.

Mrs. Vera Pipes (Social Credit, Esquimalt-Saanich) drew applause when she said:

"Principles are more important than promises. These promises on both sides — they are only promises.

"The country must be put in a solid position before these things can happen."

Eight of the nine candidates in Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich spoke for five minutes each. Frank Hunter (Social Credit, Victoria) had to leave the meeting for another engagement.

By party, the promises were:

Liberal: Universal medicare without premiums covering doctors' bills and pensions of more than $75 a month where need exists;

Progressive Conservative: Pensions increased to $100 a month for everyone over 65;

New Democratic Party: Pensions of $100 a month at 65 tied to the cost of living; nursing home care and ambulance service under hospitalization; medicare including drug coverage; adequate housing for senior citizens.

Communist candidate W. S. E. Morrison said his party has favored pensions of $125 a month for the last 15 years.

One questioner asked why the government wasn't working on medicare now rather than having an election.

James Gorst (Liberal, Esquimalt-Saanich) received boos when he said majority government is necessary to put through medicare.

Another questioner asked David Groos (Liberal, Victoria) why the government "saw us practically starve to death" with rising food prices.

The MP in the last Parliament said price control would require major legislation, and such a move would need majority government.

Four of the eight candidates who spoke addressed themselves to problems other than those involving welfare measures for senior citizens.

Len Stephenson (NDP, Esquimalt-Saanich) called for removal of nuclear warheads from Canada and placing the country's armed forces at the service of the United Nations.

Mrs. Pipes sought a "fair share" for British Columbia, saying the province is discriminated against in customs duties, railways and ferries.

J. Lloyd Brereton (NDP, Victoria) said it is "no use considering medicare or pensions if we're going to be blown to smithereens" and called for a more effective foreign policy.

And Mr. Morrison introduced a three-point platform calling for a neutral foreign policy; control by society of automation, and a new constitution guaranteeing equal treatment for French Canada.

TORY CANDIDATE in the Nova Scotia riding of Digby-Annapolis-Kings, J. Patrick Nowlan, will be trying to win the seat left vacant by the death of his father, George Nowlan. The 35-year-old lawyer will be running against Liberal John E. Shaffner who was defeated in 1963 by only 416 votes.

Only One Pelletier Now on List

OTTAWA (CP)—A potential point of confusion for voters in Montreal's Hochelaga constituency was cleared away Wednesday when one of the two Gerard Pelletiers withdrew as a candidate for the Nov. 8 federal election.

Printer Gerard Pelletier had paid his $200 nomination deposit and listed himself as an independent Liberal candidate. The other Gerard Pelletier, former editor of Montreal La Presse, is the official Liberal candidate in the riding.

Wilfred Anthony Teevens, independent candidate in Toronto St. Paul's, also withdrew Wednesday.

The two pull-outs came early enough after Monday's nomination day so that the names will not appear on ballots in the ridings on voting day.

The withdrawal in Hochelaga leaves Liberal, Progressive Conservative, New Democrat and Creditiste candidates in the running. In St. Paul's, the fight was reduced to a three-way one between the Liberals, Conservatives and NDP.

Each man loses his $200 deposit and the cancellations left the total number of candidates listed for the election at 1,011. Three of the 1,023 candidates nominated for the last federal election in 1963 pulled out between nomination day and voting day.

Court Told Of Problem With Drink

A man ended up in central court as a result of what his lawyer described as a "drinking problem."

Leslie Verhaag, 1277 Oscar, pleaded guilty to false pretences and obtaining lodgings by fraud. He was remanded for a pre-sentence report.

Evidence was that he checked into a city hotel, stayed two days and left without paying the bill. He also obtained clothes by means of a worthless cheque.

His lawyer, Dermod Owen-Flood, said Verhaag, who has a drinking problem, registered in the hotel while under the influence of liquor.

Ad Ban Threat To All Parties, Says Douglas

By MICHAEL GILLAN

HAMILTON (CP)—NDP Leader T. C. Douglas charged Wednesday night that his party has been denied freedom of speech for attacking Canada's large commercial interests. He said the issue poses a threat to all political parties.

Speaking to about 2,000 supporters in the Palace Theatre, Mr. Douglas criticized at length the private CTV network for refusing to broadcast a paid advertisement dealing with what he called misleading advertising.

The network decision, he said, had "effectively" prevented his party from showing the advertisement on the only Canadian network allowed to sell political advertising time.

(The publicly - owned CBC provides free network time to the federal parties but accepts no paid political advertising.)

"If these vast agencies of the mass media can refuse to let us present this issue, what prevents them from denying us—or some other party—the right to present any other issue which the rulers of the mass media decide should be kept from the Canadian public?" Mr. Douglas asked.

WANTS ACCOUNTING

He also said that campaign contributions are at the root of political scandal and called for a complete disclosure of money contributions to political parties.

He said the public has a right to know the sources of money so it can judge who is receiving "special handouts."

Mr. Douglas spoke in the riding of Hamilton South, held by Dr. William Howe for the NDP in the last Parliament. Candidates and supporters from three other federal ridings in the Hamilton are also were there.

Mr. Douglas' wife, who began travelling with her husband in the campaign only this week, was on the platform and will continue campaigning with him until Nov. 8.

Mr. Douglas repeated his party's policies on protecting consumers, increasing economic development and implementing a government - operated medical health care plan.

He flies today to the West Coast to speak to University of Victoria students in the afternoon and to an evening rally in the Royal Theatre.

'Others Dodging Election Issues'

REGINA (CP) — National Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson wound up his Saskatchewan campaign for the Nov. 8 federal election here Wednesday with a blast at other party leaders for dodging election issues.

He was to return to his Red Deer constituency in Alberta today.

Mr. Thompson told a party rally attended by 200 persons that majority government, election promises, and corruption in government were not election issues.

He said problems facing the Canadian people which should be discussed and are issues are federal-provincial affairs, medical care, invasion of provincial authority by the federal government, education, water resources and agricultural policies.

He spent almost one hour detailing the Social Credit stand on each of these policies at the rally.

At an afternoon press conference, he called for an inquiry into farm machinery costs at home and abroad. He said farm machinery made in Canada can be bought cheaper in France than farmers pay for it on the Prairies, and suggested it was possible the farmer is "subsidizing the manufacturer" of farm machinery so the manufacturer can sell cheaper in the international market.

On his arrival here, he spoke to about 250 university students at the University of Saskatchewan's new Regina campus.

He said two issues are whether Canada will continue to be a strong, autonomous, and independent nation and whether the rights of minorities will be protected.

MINE MOST GOLD

South Africa expects to mine 30,000,000 fine ounces of gold in 1965.

'Pacific Rim Neglected By Ottawa'

TRAIL (CP)—Premier W.A.C. Bennett of British Columbia said Wednesday night that federal trade policies are designed only to protect industry in Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Bennett, addressing 850 persons at the largest political meeting held so far in southeastern B.C. during the federal election campaign, said far more attention must be paid by the federal government to the Pacific rim.

The Pacific rim, faced only by the province of B.C., offers enormous trade possibilities but is being ignored in favor of the Atlantic rim, faced by five eastern and Maritime provinces, the premier said.

Books, Records Seized in Toronto Probe of Bankruptcy Racket

TORONTO (CP)—Books and records were seized by police this week from 10 businesses and four homes in raids which police linked with a Montreal bankruptcy ring.

The raids climaxed investigations begun last April into fraudulent bankruptcies, arson, burglaries and insurance fraud in the Toronto area.

Metropolitan Police Chief James Mackey said the raids were connected with a Montreal bankruptcy ring but not with the ring that recently killed four men in Quebec and buried the bodies in quicklime.

Deputy Chief Joseph Thurston refused to name companies or individuals but said "there's a relation" between the Toronto probe and rackets in Quebec.

"We don't know whether we have any evidence involving fraudulent bankruptcies," he added. "We won't know until we examine books and records."

The Toronto investigations originated from a claim by the Quebec justice department last year that a fraudulent bankruptcy ring was operating in Quebec, Ontario, New York City and South America.

Police arrested two Toronto brothers last December in connection with the bankruptcy of Montreal Wholesale Co.

The men, Miklos Koves, 40, a partner in Arcadia Import Co. of Toronto, and Sandor Katz, 43, were charged with conspiring with a number of persons in Ontario and Quebec to defraud creditors through bankruptcies.

However, they jumped bail in Montreal in April and disappeared. Police say they know their whereabouts—both are in foreign countries.

Today bankruptcies in Ontario stood at $80,000,000 by mid-summer, compared with $71,186,000 for the whole of 1964. Quebec showed $91,468,000 in bankruptcy liabilities in 1964.

Lucien Mercier, internal auditor of the Quebec revenue department, said the Quebec government lost $5,400,000 in taxes through phoney bankruptcies between Jan. 1, 1959 and Feb. 1, 1965.

DR. W. G. WELLINGTON
... world-wide acclaim

Promotion Awarded Researcher

Dr. William G. Wellington of the Forest Research Laboratory, Victoria, has been promoted to principal research scientist—a newly-created position.

"This is in recognition of Dr. Wellington's exceptional accomplishment in research on the effects of weather and climate on forest insects and diseases in Canada," a spokesman for the federal forestry department said Wednesday.

"The new position recognizes the research contributions of leading scientists."

LOOK TO HIM

The spokesman said forestry department laboratories across Canada look for advice and direction from Dr. Wellington on research involving the behavior of insects and the influence of weather upon them.

Dr. Wellington has been in Victoria since 1963 and resides with his family at 2080 Renfrew. He was born in Vancouver and educated at the University of British Columbia and the University of Toronto.

ACCLAIMED

For some time past, he has worked closely with other members of the laboratory on insect problems in the forest industry.

"Through the success of his research, Dr. Wellington has received world-wide acclaim," the forestry spokesman said

Keystone Cop Dies at 80 In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of the last of the legendary Keystone Kops was found dead in his Vancouver hotelroom Monday.

It was bad news for countless friends of Leslie Harold Mitchell, 80, who long ago was forced to give up Hollywood.

Born in 1885 near Brandon, Man., "Mitch" was left an orphan early in life and found his way to the movie lots, where he worked as a bootblack and newsboy.

His portly 250 pounds caught the eye of a movie scout and he captured a job as a Keystone Kop when Mack Sennett's slapstick comedy of the bumbling men in blue was reaching its peak. From that day in 1911 he worked in dozens of the movies. But in 1918 a doctor warned him that the bright studio lights could make him permanently blind because of an eye condition.

CIVIC INTEREST

He came here in 1921, kept bar for many years, and in his retirement was a welcome visitor at brewery offices and beer parlors.

Brewery executive George Fitch, one of many who liked to chat with Mitch, said Tuesday they would discuss civic problems or politics once or twice a week.

"I found him to be a great guy. He was truly an honest and honorable person."

List Narrows For Chief Of Planning

Interviews for the city's new planning department head begin in two weeks.

The list of 41 original applicants has been trimmed to seven.

Selection committee Monday decided to have personal interviews with candidates from as far afield as Cleveland, California and Alberta.

The new department to be concerned with overall development of community resources, building permits, land use, beautification and other long-range planning aspects, will be the first of its kind for Victoria.

Its director will have the status of department head and be responsible to city council.

Qualifications for the position are stringent. The applicant must have a master's degree in planning, or better, with a bachelor's or equivalent standing in related study.

He must also have had 10 year's experience in the field, including four years as director of a planning agency or deputy director in a large organization with broad responsibilities and senior administrative experience.

'RESTORE FAITH IN NATIONAL INSTITUTIONS'

Integrity, Unity Main Election Issues

By ROGER STONEBANKS
(Sixth in a Series)

Integrity in government and national unity are the major election issues, says the Esquimalt-Saanich MP in the last Parliament.

"It is not so much wrongdoing of individuals but the attitude of government towards wrongdoing," says George Chatterton.

"It is most important to restore the faith of people in their national institutions."

On national unity, he believed both major parties want this "but I think our party's approach is the sound one—to call a new constitution conference, a new Charlottetown conference."

CHATTERTON
. . . seeks re-election

* * *

The Progressive Conservative candidate did not believe the people of Quebec are unreasonable, that the country must accept two cultures but within the same spirit of confederation.

Two other important issues are the handling of natural resources and education, he said.

"There is an awful temptation to make a ready buck," he said.

Water was probably Canada's most valuable resource, and the country should establish a long-term policy for its use and also for power.

The former Saanich reeve and chairman of the Saanich school board said he is a candidate because he has been interested in government for years.

* * *

"It was logical for me, from local government, to go into political life," said Mr. Chatterton, first elected an MP in 1961.

Born in South Africa, the 49-year-old agriculturalist is married and with his wife, Katherine, and children Drewie, Sharlie, Peter and Valerie lives at 500 Normandy Road.

I asked him why an Esquimalt-Saanich voter should cast a ballot for him and the Progressive Conservative party.

"Without trying to be superior, I have tried to do a job thoroughly," he replied.

"I have the 100 per cent support of my wife and family which is very important for a public figure.

"I have attended to my constituency business meticulously."

"From a party point of view, I believe our party has the best program I've run across."

Mr. Chatterton added one postscript.

"I hope we can avoid an election now for four or five years," he said.

"People are fed up with politics. I have had four elections in four years. The sad part is the imposition on the people."

Liquor Tests Questioned During Trial

Calculations of a man's blood-alcohol percentage by police doctor E. L. McNiven were described as "nonsense" in court Wednesday by another doctor.

Dr. J. G. Patterson made the statement in testifying on behalf of Thomas Drysdale, 150 Croft, was has pleaded not guilty to impaired driving.

Dr. Patterson said dilated pupils by themselves were not evidence of impairment and that bloodshot eyes came normally the morning after liquor had been consumed.

Drysdale was then asked to repeat in court one of the tests Dr. McNiven had asked him to perform at the time of the arrest.

The test called for Drysdale to stand with his heels together, eyes closed and arms outstretched.

When he swayed noticeably Dr. Patterson remarked: "If this is a test for drunkenness, then he is drunk right now."

A policeman testified Drysdale was arrested shortly after 7 p.m. Sept. 23.

He said he began following a car after he noticed the driver's face was flushed and his eyes were half-closed.

NO FLAG, BOAT FINED

LA ROCHELLE, France (Reuters) — A fisherman who failed to hoist the French flag on his boat when President de Gaulle visited Les Sables Dolonne, near here, last May, was given a suspended 100-frank ($25) fine by a maritime court Tuesday. All the other ships were flying their colors by order of the maritime authorities.

Pope Gives Final Approval To 10 Decrees

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul and the bishops of the Vatican ecumenical council proclaimed five decrees today. They included promises of a drastic overhaul of the government of the Roman Catholic Church and a new and friendlier approach to Jews and other non-Roman Catholic Christians.

By almost unanimous votes the council gave final approval to the decrees, which brought to 10 the total number issued since the council first met in 1962. Six more remain to be enacted.

Pope Paul told the council assembly in St. Peter's Basilica that the decrees raised no question of changing the basic nature of the church or reducing it to the level of secular culture.

"The question is rather to render the church more capable of developing its mission of good in the renewed conditions of human society," the Pope said. ". . . The church is thinking, the church is speaking, the church is growing, the church is building itself up."

He said the decrees created new obligations for Catholics and added that he hoped the "consequences . . . would be salutary for souls and for the life of the church of tomorrow."

ASKS CONTEMPLATION

The Pope said he hoped non-Catholic Christians would "wish to contemplate" the new decrees as a manifestation of his church's "renovated faith."

He said he hoped for similar contemplation from non-Christians, especially Jews, who he described as people "certainly not of reprobation or distrust, but of respect, love and hope."

By their action in the public council meeting, the Pope and his bishops moved to modernize the structure of church government that has grown up since the inquisition in the middle ages.

The longest decree, a 10,000-word document eitlred "concerning the pastoral office of bishops in the church," endorses a synod or senate of bishops to advise the pope and urges a reorganization of the predominantly conservative Vatican curia—the central administration of the church—to make it more representative of the entire church.

A third decree, "on Christian education," suggests that parochial schools be included in any subsidies given to education by the state. It also goes into general principles of education, proposing among other things that children be given a "positive and prudent" sex education.

DEAL WITH ORDERS

The other two decrees deal with the modernization of priestly training in seminaries and of life in religious orders.

With their promulgation the decrees were made public for the first time since the council started work on them. However, most of the essentials had become known during the lengthy council sessions of debate and voting.

The text of the declaration on the Jews and other non-Christians had aroused more controversy than any other single document placed before the council. But there were no surprises in the full text published today. A directive to Roman Catholics to "live . . . in peace with all men," it was almost identical with an official summary issued last month.

In the decrees on the bishops and Christian education, however, there was much more than had been revealed earlier.

Referring to the synod of bishops, which Pope Paul already has announced, the decree on the bishops says the synod will act "in the name of the entire Catholic episcopate."

The decree's guidelines for reform of the Vatican curia had been awaited with particular interest.

As expected, the decree calls for a more international representation in the curia, which has been largely Italian. But it had a surprise, saying that diocesan bishops — those living outside Rome—should also "be chosen as members" of curia departments.

Such bishops presumably would continue to head their dioceses outside of Rome, unlike present curia members, who take up residence in the Italian capital.

Viet Cong Smash 40 U.S. 'Copters in Two Raids

'SUICIDE ATTACK'

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas struck two lightning blows at United States air installations in the northern provinces of South Viet Nam Wednesday night and damaged or destroyed 40 helicopters and seven jet aircraft.

In what a marine spokesman described as a suicide attack, two squads of guerrillas assaulted the main helicopter base at Marble Mountain, east of Da Nang, destroying 18 helicopters and damaging 22 others.

A second Viet Cong attack on Chu Lai air strip, 60 miles south of Da Nang, was less successful—destroying two A-4 Skyhawk jets and damaging five others.

Altogether, 39 Viet Cong were killed in Wednesday night's attacks.

A marine patrol ambushed 100 Viet Cong near Da Nang a few hours before the guerrilla raid, killing 15.

Three hours before the attacks on Marble Mountain and Chu Lai, marines were warned that an estimated battalion of Viet Cong—roughly 600 men — was approaching Da Nang air base. Marine artillery immediately opened fire on the suspected approach route.

Reports from Phu Yen province, 200 miles north of Saigon, said 383 Viet Cong had been killed in a major South Vietnamese assault that began more than two weeks ago.

A spokesman said about 340 other Viet Cong have been killed in the operation, but he added that this figure was not confirmed.

U.S. paratroopers killed 37 Viet Cong near the port city of Qui Nhon in an operation to destroy an enemy sniper pocket. The paratroopers were airlifted into battle Wednesday and tangled with a Viet Cong force of 150 men.

U.S. troops swept abandoned enemy positions around the special forces camp at Plei Me and found 37 more Viet Cong bodies. This raised to 201 the number of guerrillas confirmed dead.

Computer a Time-Saver Making Out Water Bills

First sign of computerized accounting at Victoria city hall comes in January with the issue of bi-monthly water bills.

The task of setting up a water billing data processing program that machines will handle in future started Oct. 12 with the employment of Frank Grealy, 36.

He is head of what will be a civic department of data processing, or supervisor of computer programming.

Despite his age, he has had nearly half a lifetime of experience in the field of data processing, making him a pioneer in this area.

DIFFERENT USES

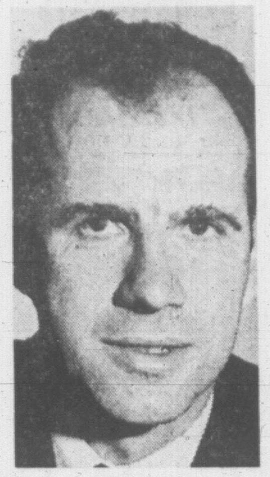
"I'm a great believer in data-processing and the fact that it can be applied to so many different phases of operation, especially in government," Mr. Grealy said.

It probably will be two or three years before city hall has its own computer, but ancilliary machines will start arriving in December.

These will include an accounting machine, reproducer and card punch machine, sorter and collator. Later there should be added a document printing machine for such things as property tax bills and ledgers.

Water users will detect little difference in the appearance of their bills, Mr. Grealy predicts, although the arrangement of information it contains may be new.

Programmed information will be sent to a computer centre for processing until city hall obtains its own computer.



GREALY
. . . skys the limit

Water bills will then be run off in a time-saving operation and may be posted to customers instead of delivered by hand.

The next application of data-processing for civic use may be for payroll preparation.

After that, the sky's the limit.

There could be many other accounting and treasury department uses of programmed information as well as in diverse civic operations such as engineering, police department and library services.

But specific uses require more sophisticated machines than are used to perform everyday services such as billing and inventories.

A typical machine with built-in versatility must be ordered 18 months before delivery and costs about $2,200 a month to rent.

No additional staff will be required to operate the new services, and existing employees will be integrated after learning new tasks. Comptroller's department personnel, for example, are being trained to operate card punchers, the key to the new system.

Two members of the city hall staff are taking introductory courses in data processing at night school, on their own time.

"I am happy with the interest and co-operation shown by the staff in the computer department," the new director said.

"This has impressed me because often older employees are a little suspicious of new things."

Mr. Grealy was born in Newcastle, England, and has lived in Victoria 18 years. He worked previously in the provincial finance department and has had experience in data processing for sales and property tax, health and welfare functions.

INTERNS SLAVE LABOR

TORONTO (CP) — Chief Judge Nelles V. Buchanan, chairman of the board of Archer Memorial Hospital, Lamont, Alta., told a meeting of hospital trustees Tuesday hospital interns are used as "slave labor" so doctors "can have their meals on time."

He said senior doctors don't end this abuse because they had to go through it themselves.

Judge Buchanan, a former chief judge of the northern district of Alberta, was speaking to the trustees section of the Ontario Hospital Association's annual convention.

Quebec A-G Promises Probe of Bribe Papers

QUEBEC (CP)—Dr. Guy Marcoux passed over a number of documents Tuesday to Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner, and the minister promised action by his department.

Mr. Wagner said criminal complaints will be brought if the documents are found adequate basis for such action.

Where the documents are not sufficient for the lodging of a complaint, then the Quebec Provincial Police will make an investigation on the basis of whatever information they afford.

Dr. Marcoux, who was a Social Credit MP in the last Parliament, was reported in Ottawa to have told the RCMP Sunday he had evidence of perjury and bribery concerning a group of former Social Credit MPs.

Acting Justice Minister Pennell said Dr. Marcoux was told the matter came under Quebec provincial jurisdiction. He said Dr. Marcoux planned to get in touch with Mr. Wagner.

1,400 Federal Employees, Wives Deprived of Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—Civil service leaders are complaining about an anomaly in the Canada Election Act that will prevent at least 1,400 government employees and their wives from voting Nov. 8.

The act makes provision for servicemen stationed abroad to vote in federal elections but none for civilian government employees posted outside Canada, from ambassadors to embassy cipher clerks.

"These people are being deprived of their vote," T. F. Gough, secretary - treasurer of the Civil Service Association of Canada, said in an interview Wednesday. It was a case of taxation without representation.

He said the association protested to Prime Minister Pearson after the 1963 election and he referred the problem to the Commons elections committee.

"Apparently the committee hit a snag and could not find a solution after two years," Mr. Gough commented. He said his group will press again for an amendment to the election act after the Nov. 8 vote.

Wendell Hewitt-White, executive secretary of the Civil Service Federation, said his group "absolutely" wants the franchise for civil servants posted abroad.

"I can see no reason why the vote could be given to servicemen but not to civil servants," he said in an interview. "There is no logic in this."

The bureau of statistics reports that about 1,400 federal civil servants were stationed in other countries in July. Most of them are employed by the external affairs, trade and immigration departments.

$500 Fine Levied On Driver

The unusualy heavy fine of $500 was imposed Wednesday on Ian Houston, 1727 Redfern, when he was sentenced in central court on a charge of having care of a vehicle while impaired.

Magistrate William Ostler permitted him to retain his licence for business purposes but otherwise prohibited him from driving for 12 months.

The magistrate said Houston is one of that "queer breed" of persons who are careful drivers when on company time and seem to disregard the law when in their own vehicles.

He also upbraided Houston for the "outrageous and insulting" language he used to police when they arrested him on Douglas Street in the early hours of July 31.

Magistrate Ostler said Houston was "well served" by his lawyer, Brian Smith, who appealed to the magistrate to allow the accused to continue driving on business even if a heavier than usual fine were to be imposed. The usual fine for impaired drivers is $300.

Hearing of an impaired driving charge against Thomas Drysdale, 150 Croft, was adjourned to Friday. He was charged Sept. 23.

TO MARK CENTENNIALS

Alaska, B.C. Plan Joint Celebrations

British Columbia centennial planners hope to extend 1967 birthday festivities to the land of the midnight sun.

Deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace, chairman of the provincial centennial committee, said his directors will meet Alaska government officials at Prince Rupert Monday.

"B.C. and Canada are marking the centenary of confederation in 1967.

"At the same time, Alaska is celebrating the centenary of the United States purchase of its territory from Russia.

"It seemed a good time for a get-together," he said.

Mr. Wallace said there are hopes that this province and the northernmost state can arrange such joint projects as a student exchange.

He said also that plans are afoot in the Peace River for celebration of the 25th anniversary of the opening of the Alaska Highway.

"It is possible we will discuss a caravan along a route from the U.S. through Edmonton and Dawson Creek and into Alaska," he added.

He said there is also hope that touring centennial shows will be able to make side trips into Alaska from northern B.C. points.

This will be feasible by 1967 when the B.C. ferry system connects Vancouver Island and Prince Rupert, linking with the new Alaska ferries operating between Prince Rupert and Haynes, Alaska.

The ease of travel will provide opportunity for visiting between the two areas and a mingling of the people of two nations on a wide scale.

He pointed out that heads of government of Alaska, Yukon and British Columbia have been meeting in conferences since 1960 and an excellent groundwork has been developed.

"It's difficult to say what may materialize. But that's what the meeting will cope with Monday."

Landlubber Goes to Sea And Causes Quite a Splash

Times' desk editor Pete Sallaway earlier this week spent a day aboard HMCS Margaree as she went through refit trials in Juan de Fuca Strait. Nonchalantly leaning on a rail, he set off a chain of events he won't soon forget. Here is his report:

By PETE SALLAWAY

"You just tossed a man overboard."

Those electrifying words by Capt. Robert McLean hit me hard as I stood on the pilotage bridge of HMCS Margaree during her refit trials in Juan de Fuca Strait the other afternoon.

It was with a great relief to see a big smile break out on the skipper's face as he said: "Don't worry one little bit, you have just given the ship an honest-to-goodness unscheduled exercise."

Minutes later the executive officer appeared on the scene and also told me not to worry as nothing serious had occurred.

Only then did I have the courage to ask just what I had done.

HIT SIGNAL

While leaning on the rail of the bridge I had leaned against the automatic "man overboard" signal. Immediately a rating on the stern heaved two light-bearing lifesaving rings overboard.

At the time the ship was travelling over a measured mile at five knots. It was not until a return trip at the same slow speed that the fighting vessel was able to retrieve the rings.

By that time, word of the surprise exercise had spread over the ship and I was the subject of some good-natured ribbing.

PROUD SHIP

On the more serious side the Margaree is a proud ship and not only because of the tradition that goes with her name.

Manned mainly by officers and men from the east coast, the crew has shown a willingness to work exceptionally hard to complete her trials ahead of schedule and start the long cruise for her home port of Halifax.

Many of her complement are aboard a DE for the first time and this alone makes them determined to make her a tight ship.

Last of the St. Laurent Class destroyers to be converted on the West Coast, Margaree now boasts a landing platform and hangar for an anti-submarine helicopter.

After her arrival in Halifax, Margaree will take aboard her helicopter and from then on Capt. McLean and his crew will refer to their ship as a "carrier."

On leaving the ship in the early evening I realized my experience had not established me as a jinx when several of the officers called out: "Come back and visit any time."

Of course they knew I am not planning a trip to Halifax.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY and SON

Our old friend, Hard Luck Joe, is back with us again. This time he lost two finesses and a no-trump game. Here is his tale of woe:

Opening lead—♠ J

"Sixteen points opposite 11 with every suit stopped twice would mean a slam for some people. For me this means down one at three no-trump. Things started out nicely, too. West opened the jack of spades and I took my queen. Then I tried the diamond finesse only to have East pop up with the king. A spade came back. I ducked once, but had to win the next spade. I ran off my diamonds and then had to try the club finesse. It lost too and two spade tricks set me."

Joe had his usual hard luck. Both finesses were wrong. He also had thrown game and rubber out the window.

Joe had to win the first spade lead. Then he should have stopped to think before trying the diamond finesse. If he had gone through this process he would have realized that West was far more likely to hold the long spades than East and that it behooved him to keep West from getting the lead after spades were established.

Then Joe could have gone over to dummy with a heart and taken the club finesse. It would have lost, but Joe could duck one round of spades, win the next spade and lose the diamond finesse. East would be in but without a spade to lead to his partner. Joe would wind up making four no-trump instead of going down at three.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

According to information received from below the line, ABC-TV's Peyton Place is so far down the list of the latest National Television Ratings that there could be thought given to erasing the land of sordid living.

Stephen

Not only Peyton Place but even other program series with a soap opera flavor are struggling in the numbers morass.

Last season, Peyton Place with its twice-weekly presentation was the talk of the industry and on the must-see list. It has since added a third episode a week.

This week the ratings showed that the episodes of Peyton Place in the measured two weeks finished 43rd, 49th and 66th among all shows.

NBC-TV this season took its one-hour Dr. Kildare series and divided it into a twice-weekly half-hour continuing soap opera plot series. According to the ratings, Dr. Kildare in its new format finished 70th and 76th.

In addition, ABC-TV this season gave Ben Casey sub-plots in the soap opera way to continue the story from week to week. "Ben Casey" finished 90th.

The new ABC-TV series, "The Long, Hot Summer," is also tinged with the soap opera mark. It finished 82nd.

Is it any wonder that the fine actor, Edmond O'Brien, could see the writing on the wall and quit the series?

It is hoped the networks concerned will put their best brains on the problem, realize the public is not all that gullible and come up with program fare worthy of a viewer's time.

It's a sure bet that if the shows continue to dominate the lower rungs of the ratings ladder they won't be around for too much longer.

HOW TO SUCCEED
IN SELLING
YOUR HOME

1) BE HONEST. Don't conceal defects. You'll gain the prospect's confidence and he'll be inclined to do business with you.
2) BE OBJECTIVE. Put yourself in the prospect's shoes. Are you aware of his needs? KNOW the adaptability of your home through alteration or addition and its cost.
3) BE INFORMED. Above all know the mortgage field. Two-thirds of selling homes is financing them. There are probably 6 ways of financing your home catering to all down payments. Know them or a qualified buyer will slip through your fingers.
4) OR JUST RELAX. Real Estate Brokers are successful in selling homes. So—if you really want to sell, but just don't have the time, experience or specialized training to do it yourself, let your Broker sell it for you. You'll get top dollar, plus the quickest sale possible, without any aggravation, strain or pressure on yourself by calling:

HOME GARDEN

Long-Term Planning Crucial Near Winter

By JACK BEASTALL

Successful gardening depends very much on preparations made well in advance, and at this time of year it is wise to anticipate some of the things that may be needed during winter.

Jack

One thing that is always difficult to find after the beginning of November is some dry compost to sprinkle around plants which have been heaved by frost, or washed out of the soil by heavy rain.

Some gardeners will have a compost pile ready for use and this should now be covered to prevent saturation by fall rains.

Others may have to dig to the bottom of a half-rotted heap to find material that is decomposed enough to use.

Such material should be removed from the heap, put through a coarse screen and then stored in a convenient place.

While in storage the soil should never be allowed to become dust dry because all life would then be exterminated. Some moisture must be maintained at all times to keep the soil organisms alive.

If a warm place can be found, around 45 deg. F., bacterial activity will continue, but this is not essential.

Soil can be stored in a box, or tub, left outdoors but covered with a sheet of plastic, or it can be placed in an open shed or carport.

As long as it is kept reasonably damp and readily accessible, it will prove a boon to have on hand. Quite often it means the saving of a precious plant that would otherwise succumb to some unexpected winter condition.

Martin Backs Thant Stand On Chinese

HALIFAX (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said today Canada will support Red China's admission to the United Nations only if Peking displays a willingness to negotiate peaceful settlements to Indochinese conflicts.

Mr. Martin told a press conference the UN must have universal membership and he supports Secretary - General U Thant's efforts in this regard.

"Certainly the world organization must be universal," but first Peking must abandon attempts to set up a competing body and be willing to sit down to talks, he said.

A vote by Canada to admit Communist China to the UN would not necessarily mean recognition of the regime.

"Outer Mongolia was admitted to the United Nations three years ago, but we did not recognize her until last year."

'Routine Story,' Says Magistrate, 2 Minors Fined

Magistrate William Ostler heard an old familiar story in central court Wednesday.

And he said "I don't believe it."

Two minors who pleaded guilty to unlawful possession of liquor told the magistrate that a man bought the liquor for them at a liquor store and they did not know his identity.

Magistrate Ostler said this is now the "routine story" given by minors. He said, "Everyone says it . . . I don't believe it."

The magistrate suggested police keep a close watch on liquor stores. He imposed $35 fines on Patrick Lindseth, 435 Richmond, and Stanley Emerick, 1140 Queens.

Emerick, 20, was caught with a bottle of whisky at the White Spot Restaurant, and Lindseth, 19, was found in possession of two bottles of wine on the grounds of University of Victoria.

LONG NIGHT FOR VILLAGE

VARESE, Italy (AP)—The long winter night began Tuesday night for the village of Cremanaga. It won't see the sun again for 3½ months. The village on the Italian-Swiss frontier is in a deep valley whose western cliffs cut off the low winter sun from late October until mid-February. Most of the 500 villagers move up the valley to a section where the mountains are lower and the sun shines in.

ELECTION TRAIL

Songs, Jokes Part of Show At NDP Meet

New Democratic Party campaigners plan to back up their star attraction with some foot-stampin' music tonight.

National party leader T. C. Douglas and other speakers won't take the stage at the Royal until 8 p.m. But doors will open at 7 p.m. and in the interim there are plans to keep the crowd mellow.

As soon as there's a "house" say the organizers, colored folk singer Jimmy Johnson and his accompanist Harry Aoki will take over. Later there will be community singing with song sheets provided.

There are no reserved seats and party officials anticipate a capacity crowd.

Those not politically minded who just want to be entertained will find Mr. Douglas also can keep listeners laughing. Line for line, say reporters who have covered his speeches, he tells more jokes than any other politician in the business.

Mr. Douglas was to arrive at Victoria airport at 12:25 p.m. He was to address Uvic students at 2 and attend a press conference at 3:30 p.m.

Provincial leader of the NDP Robert Strachan will chair the meeting tonight. All Island NDP candidates will be present.

* * *

Victoria Social Credit candidate Frank Hunter is coffee partying tonight and next week but Friday night he'll drop the dignified mien of the man who made a career as Victoria's city clerk.

Friday it's a hootennany at party headquarters in the old Y building. Guests and entertainers are Uvic students who will bring their instruments and music in exchange for coffee and donuts.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant, through illness, has had to cancel an appearance at a public meeting at headquarters Friday—but the meeting will be held anyway.

The Socreds have signed up the Hometowners to add musical spice to the Premier Bennett meeting Wednesday.

Liberal candidate Dave Groos holds a coffee klatch tonight at Colonial Inn. Tuesday he speaks to a public meeting at 8 p.m. at Sir James Douglas School annex and Thursday he speaks at 8 p.m. at War Amputees' Hall.

Saturday Mr. Groos will sell hotdogs at a non-political bazaar at Norfolk House School which three of his daughters attend.

* * *

Victoria Conservative candidate Clifford Waite starts a campaign for the workingmen's vote Friday. He'll be up with the birds and will take station at the gates of various local shipyards and HMC Dockyard then and during next week to shake hands and chat with workbound employees.

Tonight he speaks at Boilermakers' Hall, 802 Esquimalt Road. Monday his meeting is at War Amputees' Hall and next Thursday at Norway House. Friday, Nov. 5 he speaks at Seamen's Hall. All meetings are set for 8 p.m.

* * *

Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal campaigners wonder whether Victoria Socred candidate Hunter plans to run in their riding too. They report Hunter campaign posters have appeared on Gorge Road at Heath and at Harriet, well inside the bounds of the wrong riding.

* * *

Tonight at 8:30 p.m., Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate Jim Gorst will speak at McMorran's Seaview Room, Cordova Bay. Wednesday at 8 p.m. he'll be at Mill Bay Community Hall and Thursday at 8 p.m. at Sooke Community Hall.

* * *

Edward Milne Junior - Senior Secondary School is planning a mock election — but with real politicians making the speeches. Each room will be a constituency and candidates will be nominated by students. But the school is contacting the real candidates for Esquimalt-Saanich to ask them to speak. NDP candidate Len Stephenson has promised to make himself available. Others have still to reply.

* * *

The Victoria all-candidate meeting planned for Wednesday has been definitely cancelled but Esquimalt - Saanich candidates are all expected to appear at a joint meeting at Sidney Monday at 8 p.m. in the K of P Hall.

DESERVES NOTHING BUT SCORN

Show-Off Most Dangerous Driver

Indianapolis veteran Bob Harkey this week is talking traffic safety to city high school students. His visit here is sponsored by the Times and the Champion Spark Plug Co.

By BOB HARKEY
(Fourth of a series)

We have talked about the gabby driver, the slow driver and the slovenly fellow who drives like an accident going some place to happen, but in my book the most dangerous person on the road, one whose driver's licence should be lifted for a long stretch on first offence, is the show-off.

I'm not talking particularly about the teen-ager. We have show-offs of all ages and the older they are the heavier should be the sentence. You have seen them. They pull away from the curb with screeching rubber leaving a smoke screen worthy of war combatants. They weave in and out of high speed traffic, sometimes on two wheels. They tailgate. Nearly every action while they are behind the wheel of a car is dangerous.

Harkey

No matter what their age, any competent psychiatrist would immediately classify them mental juveniles. And there is no place on our highways today for that type of driver. Unfortunately, when they are involved in accidents, as they must be at some time or another, it generally is the innocent party, caught in an inescapable trap who is seriously or fatally injured.

The courts of the land are showing no mercy to the adult show-off who compounds his offensive driver habits with liquor. And in the last few years they are taking a sterner look at the tire burner (creating a disturbance), the lane weaver (driving without due regard) and any other driver who attracts attention in some manner outside the normal driving rules.

Actually these people are in a minority and I have often thought their actions are the fault of the majority. When people pay attention, yes, even condone unorthodox car handling, they encourage the show-off to do it again.

* * *

Instead, if that same majority would condemn, even to the point of calling the attention of law enforcement people to these law scoffing motorists, they would be doing the entire community a service.

The Plymouth sports car I drive on the Champion Highway Safety program carries lettering identifying me as an Indianapolis race driver. Quite often, as I sit wating for a light to change I am challenged by some show-off. He deserves and gets nothing but scorn from me. I know one thing. He's the first fellow who would flunk a driver's test at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

TAKING A TIP from the top is motor vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield. To show no-one's ever too good to learn, Mr. Hadfield went back to school Wednesday to learn about car safety. Strapping him in during a demonstration at Esquimalt Senior Secondary School is Indianapolis driver Bob Harkey.

PICKETING BANNED

Labor Dispute Ends At B.C. Hydro Dams

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor disputes affecting B.C. Hydro and Power Authority dams under construction on the Arrow Lakes and Duncan Lake have been settled, a spokesman for the authority said Wednesday.

Work is continuing as normal, the spokesman said, following the firing of 13 men at the High Arrow site and the issuing of a court order restraining the oil workers union which picketed Duncan Lake.

"We don't anticipate any more trouble," the spokesman said.

Six picketers shut down construction on the $17,000,000 Duncan Lake project Tuesday because the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union (CLC) objected to B.C. Hydro using products from the strike-bound British American Oil Co.

The injunction bans the union from picketing at any of the province's power projects.

B.C. Hydro told the court there is no strike at the project and the per-day loss at Duncan Lake and at the Mica Creek project—where it was feared the picketing might spread—could total "substantially higher" than $65,000.

The Duncan dam, a joint U.S.-Canada project, must be completed by April, 1968. If it is not completed by that date, the daily loss in downstream benefits and flood control payments will be up to $25,000.

The court was told Red Star Petroleum Ltd., a subsidiary of B.C. Hydro, is under contract with the power authority to supply petroleum products to the Duncan and Mica projects. Red Star was under contract with BA to provide the products.

British American makes the deliveries in its own tank trucks to the Duncan job, the court was told.

The Hydro spokesman said the "almost 700" men employed at Arrow Lake were at work Wednesday — allaying fears they would walk off their jobs in sympathy for the 13 men who were fired Tuesday.

"The 13 men violated the no-strike agreement between Hydro and the unions by not going to work and were therefore fired," he said.

NO ALTERNATIVE

"A thing like this should be handled by a regular grievance committee. When the men refused to work there was no alternative except to fire them."

The men, all boat crew members, are paid for eight hours work daily and wanted parity with Internatinal Union of Operating Engineers (AFL-CIO) members who are paid portal to portal and for nine hours work daily.

The hydro spokesman said work on barges placing fill on the river bottom to level contours had been halted with the firing of the 13 men. He said that "minor" phase of the operation would resume when new men were hired.

He said the main work is continuing and the authority has "no indication" of any future problems.

French Envoy To Give Awards

Annual awards of the French government to University of Victoria undergraduate students will be presented Friday by Francois Leduc, French ambassador to Canada.

Winners are Terry Gail Guernsey of Victoria, a third year student who won the French government medal for high academic standing; Leonard Schmidt, of Osoyoos, a second year student who won a book prize for his standing: and Pauline Owens, winner of a second book prize who is now taking post-graduate studies in France.

Harbor Master Criticizes B.C. Ministers

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver's harbor master Wednesday accused one provincial minister of irresponsible misinformation and said charges of another were based on ignorance.

Capt. B. D. L. Johnson in an interview strongly criticized Education Minister Peterson and Trade Minister Loffmark for their attack on Vancouver harbor operations.

Mr. Loffmark charged the harbor is being throttled by lack of foresight, inability to plan and the refusal of the federal government to invest in facilities.

Mr. Peterson said the port's facilities are a disgrace and suggested the provincial government be given jurisdiction over the harbor.

Both charges were made in federal election meetings.

UNFAMILIAR

Capt. Johnson said Mr. Peterson has shown himself to be unfamiliar with the port.

"I think the statement by Mr. Peterson is one of the most irresponsible pieces of misinformation I have ever run across."

He said the port handles more dry cargo than any other on the Pacific coast of the United States and Canada.

He said facilities, far from being inadequate, enable the port to compete with any three others on the coast for cargo handling.

MATTER OF ECONOMICS

Mr. Loffmark had remarked that wharfage dues are double those of any other Canadian port. He charged there is gross discrimination against Vancouver in the levying of rates that are more than those levied in eastern Canada, making the city a more expensive port to ship from.

Capt. Johnson said it is true Vancouver charges more per ton for all shipping than other ports. But the charge was only levied on the first five times a ship enters port each year, all other entries being free. Thus regular callers to the port benefitted.

It was correct that it was cheaper to ship goods from trans-Pacific ports to Montreal than to Vancouver. But that was largely a matter of shipping company economics.

CAOUETTE URGES NATIONAL FARM POLICY

'Eastern Farmers Need Help'

ST. ANDRE AVELLIN, Que. (CP) — Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said Wednesday night that Canada needs a national farm policy to help raise income of Eastern farmers to the same level as that of those in the West.

Speaking before 250 persons at an election rally for his son Gilles in this farming community 60 miles west of Montreal, Mr. Caouette said Western farmers have an annual income of $6,500 compared to the $1,500 income in the East.

He said inspectors were exploiting the farmers by grading their products B and C and then selling the same products to the consumer as grade A. "It is time we had a farm policy, just as we have a labor policy."

Mr. Caouette said that if we had a sensible farm policy the young people would stay on the farm rather than go to the urban areas to find work.

TORY URGES BUILDING TAX ABOLITION

DUNCAN — A Conservative government would abolish the 11 per cent federal sales tax on building materials, said George Chatterton in Duncan Wednesday night.

The Tory member for Esquimalt-Saanich in the last parliament said his party would also allow up to $500 of local property tax to be deducted from a person's income tax.

A third party plank, said Mr. Chatterton, would be allowance of NHA loans for buying or selling older homes.

Speaking in support of Walter Matthews, Conservative candidate for Cowichan-Newcastle-The Islands, Mr. Chatterton said a Conservative administration would keep the West Coast shipbuilding industry strong.

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes unveils plaque.

Stairs Leading to Blank Wall Heals Broken, Bruised Bodies

By PETE LOUDON

A stairway that leads into a blank wall, a bicycle that won't move no matter how hard you pump and a bed that sinks underwater . . .

Imagine a couple of hundred prominent citizens examining such wonders and admiring them.

Yet that was the scene Wednesday at the formal opening of the new F. E. Winslow wing at Gorge Road Hospital here.

And the admiration of the visitors was merited. The stairs, the bike and the submersible bed are all part of a vital new physiotherapy facility that will return maimed bodies to active life in Greater Victoria.

You might not have been at the opening. But the chances are good that if you should ever require treatment following an accident, you will admire the new Gorge services also.

1,200 TREATED

Last year the Gorge treated 1,200 patients sent there by St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee and other hospitals on the Island as well as numerous out-patients.

Mainly they were people who received surgery or bone setting in acute treatment centres then were sent to Gorge for restoration of muscles and joints by trained therapists. It's the road back for many stroke victims too.

"This is now the most comprehensive facility for general rehabilitation in British Columbia," said administrator W. E Morrison.

TRIBUTES

It received similar tributes from Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes who unveiled a plaque and declared the unit open. (He walked out in the rain in a courtyard to do it while the crowd stayed indoors and watched through the windows.)

The lieutenant-governor's enthusiasm was echoed by the president of the board, Mrs. C. C. Warren, and the president of the women's auxiliary, Mrs. E. R. Owen, who presented a $15,000 cheque to the hospital toward the new pool.

Deputy Minister of Hospital Service, Donald M. Cox, pointed out that the new $250,000 wing had been financed 50 per cent by the provincial government and 25 per cent by Ottawa. Ald. Lily Wilson brought the official congratulations of city council.

It was the third step forward by the hospital in 20 years. It now plans to triple the number of outpatients it can restore to full health.

It started as Victoria Nursing Home in 1945, a 41-bed rest home in what had been a fine private home built in 1887 by N. P. Snowden and later the residence of Edgar Crowebaker once an MP for Victoria.

The president of the Victoria Nursing Home Society was F. E. Winslow, who died in 1962 and had been a driving force in its development.

In 1954 he had achieved, with great assistance from two city aldermen now deceased, Mrs. Margaret Christie and Frank Milliner, creation of a new 104-bed hospital adjoining the old nursing home. It cost $450,000 and was designed for care of chronic, convalescent and terminal patients.

In 1961 the hospital assumed its present role as a rehabilitation centre completing the work begun in acute hospitals. Now patients are of all ages and the staff includes the largest number of physical therapists on the Island.

Mrs. Wilson complimented the staff for its dedication to the cause of community health.

And that's really where the stairs lead.

Planning Lack Blamed For Poor Attendance

Members of Victoria's Hungarian community are disturbed over a suggestion they failed in their duty by not attending a meeting last Saturday to commemorate the 1956 uprising against Hungary's Communist government.

"Many of us were not present because we were never informed of the meeting," said Mrs. John Viszlay. "I heard about it at 6 p.m., two hours before the meeting."

The commemorate celebrations were held at Chez Marcel Restaurant, Old Island Highway. About 20 freedom fighters were present.

Albert Bekes, restaurant owner, was upset by the poor attendance. He felt his fellow countrymen should have made it their duty to be present.

"The small attendance in no way reflects a lack of interest in the uprising," said Zoltan Magyar. "We were not informed of the meeting in time. It was poorly organized."

Geza Benko, who chaired the meeting, agreed the small attendance was due to poor organization.

"I have received many telephone calls from Hungarian Canadians complaining they knew nothing about the celebrations," he said. "I guess I must take part of the blame."

He said last minute arrangements were made to commemorate the uprising and many members of the community were never informed of the event.

"You can rest assured, Hungarians are interested in the fate of their country," he added.

U.S. Rejects 'One-Sided' Arms Proposal by Soviet

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — U.S. sources today brushed off a Soviet offer to resume the Geneva disarmament talks on terms that would ban creation of a NATO nuclear force. The Americans said the Soviet proposal was one-sided and unacceptable.

Russia called on the General Assembly's main political committee Wednesday to support and refer to the Geneva disarmament committee a proposed Soviet treaty designed to block creation of a nuclear fleet under auspices of the Atlantic Alliance.

U.S. sources said the new Soviet resolution showed no softening of the Russian stand on how to check the spread of nuclear weapons. They said it seemed to be an attempt to strengthen the Soviet bargaining position in Geneva with UN endorsement of Moscow's treaty draft.

The United States has submitted to the political committee a resolution also calling for resumption of the Geneva talks. But it asks that both the U.S. and Soviet treaty proposals be used as a basis for discussion.

Elsewhere in the UN:

India continued its boycott of Security Council debate on the Indian - Pakistani conflict despite private appeals that it return to the council chamber.

CANADA'S FIRST NATIONAL PLAN FOR EDUCATION

Our greatest resource is our human resource—the genius, the skills, the cultures, the dreams and the ideas that are distinctively Canadian. A Progressive Conservative government faces squarely the need to develop this resource, and the importance to our country that our young people be trained to build for tomorrow.

We will bring massive assistance to the entire field of education from coast-to-coast. Your son and daughter will have a better chance for the education they deserve.

- LOWER TUITION FEES
  Canada's first "National Plan for Education" means doubling of federal grants to universities, and is aimed at lowering tuition fees. It will assist new building and provide more money for research in medicine, science and the humanities.
- VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS
  Hundreds of thousands of young Canadians received technical and vocational skills through Progressive Conservative assistance to vocational school construction across Canada. This program has lagged. A Progressive Conservative government will put new life and new enthusiasm into this program, so that your children will have a chance. Canada needs their help.
- AGRICULTURAL SCHOOLS
  A Progressive Conservative government will aid in the construction of agricultural school facilities across Canada, and help our young farmers to receive the training they must have to face today's scientific farming economy.
- HOMEOWNERS TAX DEDUCTION
  As part of a national plan for education, a Progressive Conservative government will immediately allow a deduction of municipal taxes up to $500, from taxable income, for federal tax purposes. Rising school costs have put an unfair share of tax burden on the home-owners—almost to the breaking point. This deduction means a federal sharing of educational costs with the provinces and municipalities.
- DEPARTMENT OF YOUTH AFFAIRS
  A new federal department will be formed to coordinate the many federal activities in youth affairs.

Chant Answers Critic

No further work will be carried out on Duncan courthouse until late November.

Public Works minister W. N. Chant made this reply today in answer to criticism from Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber Wednesday decided to seek an interview with Mr. Chant to find out why work on the new courthouse building had come to a halt.

Chamber president Sam Keeble said he had been told by Vancouver alderman and professional town planner R. A. Williams that the courthouse was one of several B.C. contracts to be cut back.

Mr. Chant today denied this. He said the department is waiting for calling of tenders on the second phase of the project—provincial government offices.

Until the tenders have been called Nov. 8, and a contract accepted, no more work remains to be done on the courthouse.

Finishing touches to both buildings will be carried out at the same time.

ISLAND DIGEST

DUNCAN — After blasting local Indians, Will Dobson Wednesday suggested the Cowichan band be invited to appoint a representative to the Chamber of Commerce.

Attacking a recent announcement about development of reserve land here, Mr. Dodson said: "I don't know what the Indians are planning and, from long experience, feel they don't know themselves."

One of the main factors holding back the city of Duncan is the Indian failure to make use of their vast acreage, he said.

Mr. Dobson said if the chamber cannot get satisfaction at the local level an approach should be made to the Indian provincial commissioner or the local MP.

He said: "For 100 years the Indians have done nothing and this is a denial of progress. We can't let it go on much longer."

Chairman Sam Keebel said inviting an Indian delegate to the chamber board was a "terrific idea," and the board endorsed it.

NORTH COWICHAN — Reeve Donald Morton today welcomed the unanimous support from Somenos Community Centre Association for the $300,000 centennial ice arena.

The Fullers Lake site was expected to arouse opposition in the south end of the municipality.

But Somenos, heart of the south end and Reeve Morton's home district, gave the project firm backing.

At an association meeting this week, Mrs. Clayton Thorne was re-elected president and other officers are: Clifford Boothroyd, vice-president; Mrs. Margaret Wadsworth, secretary; Mrs. Floyd Stockford, treasurer, and Marshall Haslam, Vern Lundahl, B. Richter and Mrs. Peter Mattin, trustees.

DUNCAN — Realtor Harold Allman Wednesday night was elected president of Duncan Kiwanis Club.

Sam Koffski will be vice-president, and other officers are: Barry Brade, treasurer, and directors, Vic. Billings, Al Falt, Rev. Edward Greenhalgh, Doug. Greenwood, William Jameson, Ted Shaw and Charles Torhjelm.

YOUTH RAPES, THEN ROBS WOMAN, 75

NANAIMO — An intensive manhunt was still on here today for a youth who Wednesday raped and robbed a 75-year-old Wellington woman.

A team of five RCMP officers and Saanich police dog Wednesday afternoon combed the area around the widow's home in search of clues.

Meanwhile, the grey-haired woman was undergoing emergency surgery following the attack.

She was in satisfactory condition in hospital here today.

After raping her, her attacker escaped with $20 in cash, taken from the woman's purse.

Cars Crash Head On, Man Killed

COURTENAY — Wilfred Robertson, 41, died immediately Wednesday night when his car was in head-on collision with another car on the Island Highway 12 miles north of here.

The Richmond man was heading south in his 1963 rear-engine car when the accident occurred.

Driver of the other car, Robert James Hume of 828 Courtney Street, Victoria, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Comox, with minor injuries.

He was in good condition today.

Police are still not sure how the accident occurred.

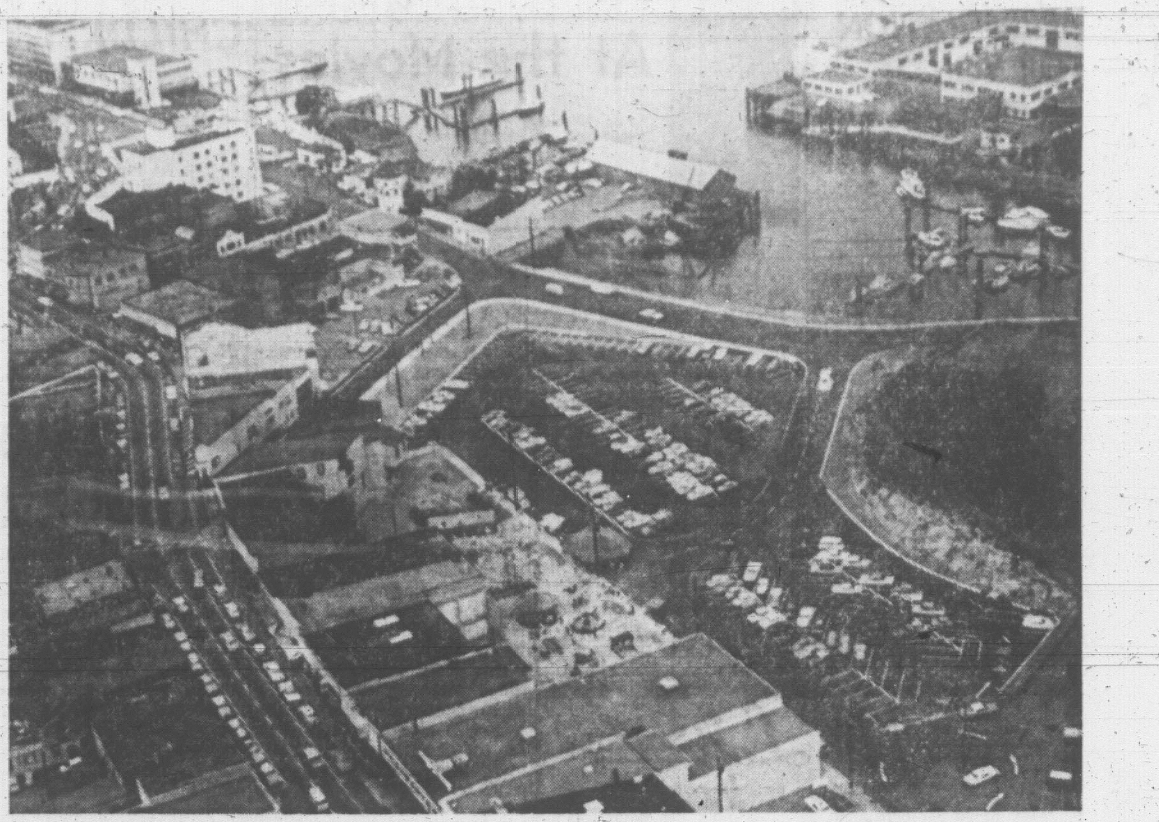
But after meeting head-on, the two cars ended up facing the same way.

Robertson's car was found lying in the ditch with the driver's door open. He was thrown out during the accident.

Hume's car was on the road, its front end smashed in.

The accident happened at 8:15 p.m.

An inquest was to open later today.



CITY CENTRE PARKING LOT for Nanaimo has cut down congestion in city's twisting main street. The municipal lot is built on what was formerly Commercial Inlet. Many tons of fill were used to reclaim the former swamp-type land. Opened earlier this year, the lot is a boon to shoppers and businessmen while relieving local police of what was formerly a daily headache.

Chamber at Duncan Hunting Men To Serve on Recreation Group

DUNCAN — Dick Benzies told the Chamber of Commerce here Wednesday that Duncan is the only major centre on the Island without a recreation commission.

The chamber had accepted a city council challenge to find men to serve on a commission.

Mr. Benzies advocated handing the matter back to council with the three names so far collected.

He said: "If there is a municipal contest in Duncan, recreation could be an issue and the chamber should not become involved."

The committee, when seeking members for the commission, labored under the misapprehension that they must be owner-electors in the city.

Without even mentioning the name, the chamber unanimously voted against the Fuller Lake site for North Cowichan's centennial ice arena.

Will Dobson prompted the meeting to go on record "in favor of a central ice arena" for the district.

He said businessmen would be upset if they had to pay for two recreation buildings in the district.

Duncan city council has not yet announced a Centennial project.

Now 1832 is the name of a whisky.

More properly Gooderham's 1832 fine Canadian Whisky.

We didn't pull that date out of a hat.

It's been in the back of our minds for about 133 years now. That's how long ago we started making whisky. (But you can read all about it on our label.)

1832 is worth reading about. And worth tasting.

Well over a century of Gooderham's distilling experience goes into every bottle.

What comes out is a whisky that goes down remarkably smooth.

A light yet surprisingly mellow rye. On the rocks. With mixed drinks. With water.

Wonderful isn't it?

Here you thought 1965 was turning out to be just another year. Then 1832 came along.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832.

British Thriller
Odeon Theatre

Here is a new breed of spy hero.

British secret service agent Michael Caine is a scruffy, non-university type who finds himself chained to a desk in Whitehall, eyeing the girls through thick spectacles and a jungle of red tape.

He is much more human than James Bond and a good deal more subtle, having been rescued from jail for black market practices while serving with the British Army in Germany.

His superiors feel that, on his record, he is unscrupulous enough to be of value to the British Intelligence Service.

He replaces an agent who was killed while guarding a scientist who was being spirited behind the Iron Curtain. And his assignment is to get the scientist back.

One of Caine's associates is killed after he discovers the enemy is able to brain-wash and hypnotize scientists who work for the enemies of democracy.

Caine is taken prisoner and winds up in what appears to be a prison in Albania, where he is subjected to more brain-washing and hypnosis as well.

Sidney Furie, who directed the film, makes espionage exciting and employs many novel camera angles to keep it alive and sparkling. The cameras peep through keyholes, parking meters and through a dangling lampshade at the reduced figure of a corpse!

Here is a witch's brew of espionage, drama and satire, with the emphasis on surprise and intrigue.

The photography is superb and the production imaginative. It is one of the brightest films to cross the Atlantic since Tom Jones.

Jayne's Juliet Next?

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Jayne Mansfield might one day play Juliet to save the Royal Shakespeare Company from bankruptcy, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia suggests.

The newspaper was commenting on the London Philharmonic Orchestra's invitation to comedian Danny Kaye to conduct it in a special performance, although he cannot read a note.

"Perhaps in order to avoid bankruptcy, the Royal Shakespeare Company will invite the Hollywod sex bomb Jayne Mansfield to play Juliet." It adds:

"And Covent Garden might invite Elizabeth Taylor to play Aida. It doesn't matter that she can't sing."

Cleric Urges Start Of Book Review Board

A clergyman and spokesman for the committee of 150, the Canadian affiliate of the Cincinnati-based Citizens for Decent Literature, advocated before a dinner meeting of the Lions Club (Chinatown) that a review board similar to Alberta's Advisory Committee on Publications be created in B.C.

Rev. H. T. Allen speaking at the Peking House Wednesday said that "a well-heeled, unscrupulous and international body of publishers" has flooded B.C., by mail and through normal channels of distribution, with varieties of obscene literature.

Mr. Allen said young people were particularly vulnerable to this literature "designed to pervert."

"Pressure must be brought to bear on the attorney-general's department to create an advisory committee whose function it would be to review current publications and to bring legal action against those which are obscene."

The Alberta committee, he said, has taken 150 publications off the stands in that province. "This is not censorship," he argued, "but the effective enforcement of existing law; that is, section 150 of the Criminal Code of Canada."

Mr. Allen asked club members to join him in petitioning the provincial government for the formation of a similar committee, empowered to define which publications were "obscene" and which were not.

A film Perversion for Profit was shown.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1965—PAGE 35

One of the most popular stalls at the annual bazaar of the Norfolk House School Mothers' Auxiliary will be the one convened by the fathers. The proceeds from the affair, beginning at 2 p.m. on Saturday in the school, will be used for the completion of the school science program and library project. Conveners are Mrs. C. G. Heisterman, Mrs. Hugh Hamersley and Mrs. L. M. Evans. Above, looking over last-minute arrangements for the dads' stall, are, left to right, D. S. Campbell, M. P. B. Wrixon and Cmdr. M. F. Oliver, RCN.

Jammed Doors and Popped Fuses

Where do we go from here? This is the question the 40-member Victoria Chapter of Hadassah is asking today after Wednesday's bazaar in Holyrood House which netted $2,500.

Publicity convener Mrs. R. Barer reports enthusiastically: "It's the highest amount we've made during the 15 years we've had the bazaar. The first few years we held it in the synagogue, then we moved to the Sirocco and then, the Royal Canadian Legion Hall. None of them were big enough, so we came to Holyrood House. The space is good—but we've popped fuses all day, trying to keep up with the demand at our snack bar!"

Mrs. Morris L. Greene convened the successful affair which saw crowds jamming the entrance at 10:15 a.m., anxious for the official opening at 11 a.m. to be over so that they could sample the delicious food which has made this bazaar a 'must' on every discerning Victoria woman's calendar.

The bazaar was opened by Mrs. Malcolm G. Taylor, wife of the president of the University of Victoria. She was introduced by Mrs. Greene and given a certificate which commemorates the planting of a tree in her name. The planting will be done in the Canadian forest in the state of Israel.

For the third year in succession the snack bar proved to be the 'star' of the bazaar. Home-made vegetable soup was judged a perfect complement to the corned beef on rye sandwiches that were sold out in record time. Cheese blintzes and kenishes, home-made dill pickles, cabbage rolls and sweet and sour meat balls provided the guests with taste treats worthy of any gourmet. Co-convening the bar were Mrs. L. Shaffer and Mrs. G. Conn. They were assisted by Mrs. M. Berman, Mrs. B. Packford, Mrs. Barer and Mrs. L. Bloomfield.

Hundreds of guests postponed sampling culinery creations until later in the day, buying from the seemingly mountain-high, long tables that held a variety of breads, yeast doughs and every cake that's ever been catalogued in a cook book. Mrs. Helen Alexandor and Mrs. M. Menkes convened this bake stall, being assisted by Mrs. A. Alexandor, Mrs. A. H. Wilson, Mrs. Esther Levi, Mrs. M. L. Raels, Mrs. A. Bernard and Mrs. S. Rose.

Fish antipasto — a tantalizing blending of fish, spices, onions and not-to-be-revealed ingredients—was a newcomer to the delicatessen.

Other items included dill pickles, home-made sauerkraut, smoked turkey and cans of orange juice, specially imported from Israel for the occasion. Delicatessen convener was Mrs. A. Klenman. She was assisted by Mrs. H. Kramer and Mrs. M. Luxemburg.

Others who contributed with baked goods were Mrs. E. Ratson, Mrs. J. Argel, Mrs. B. Caine, Mrs. N. Nuttall, Mrs. A. Cramer, Mrs. N. Loomer, Mrs. S. Fisher, Mrs. R. Loeb, Mrs. M. Gray, Mrs. S. Ruskin, the Misses Gertrude Cohen and Jennie Albhouse.

Nosegays of fall flowers centred the tables for a tea convened by Mrs. H. Israel. On her committee were Mrs. G. Fleischer, Mrs. R. Rose, Mrs. S. Kirkham and Mrs. R. Elek.

Chapter president Mrs. M. Shafron convened a new feature stall that displayed Israel patina wear (items made of enamel superimposed on copper). Passover dishes and Chanukah Menorahs drew wide attention.

Items ranging from aprons to toys sold fast at a handicraft stall, convened by Mrs. A. Libby. Helping to deal with the rush of customers were Mrs. J. Krasney and Mrs. S. Lewis.

Good used clothing sold almost as fast as the snack bar "starlets" when guests discovered the French Room and white elephant stall convened by Mrs. R. Krasney. Helping her were Mrs. B. Levine, Mrs. A. Shapiro and Mrs. R. Tzegedi.

Mrs. A. Gordon was in charge of three popular raffles, being assisted by Miss Dora Albhouse. Mrs. J. Krasney was in charge of tickets.

Mr. Greene and Mr. S. Levy were in charge of finances and two other men, Mr. A. Libby and Mr. L. Shaffer, assisted the chapter by looking after door receipts.

Proceeds from the bazaar will be used to further Hadassah's main objective of rescuing children from Iron Curtain countries and re-establishing them in Israel. Wheat, lumber, salmon, clothing and medical supplies will be bought in Canada and sent to Israel.

The Davis Trio will play for dancing.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

Today is the 77th birthday of a woman who has given to her community and country in greater measure than most of her counterparts. Mrs. Harry P. Hodges is better known to Victorians as "Our Nancy." This term is a small indication of the affection shown for the life-long clubwoman and advocate of women's rights.

Her decision to retire as senator this year, owing to ill health, ended a career of public service rarely equalled.

When serving as women's editor of this paper, Nancy Hodges was persuaded to run for the provincial legislature in 1937. She was defeated and returned to her desk. She ran again in 1941, this time being elected and becoming the first woman the Victoria district had sent to the legislature. On taking over the Speaker's chair in February, 1949, Mrs. Hodges became the first woman speaker in the Commonwealth.

Today was a quiet one at the Runnymede Avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. Hodges. One of her gifts was a decorated cake, made in the shape of a book. It was given her by her nurse, Mrs. Margaret Scott, "because it fits her life, full of purpose, enriching and worthy of record."

Canadians Get Own Dictionary

Canadianisms, the English idiomatic to the Canadian people, is virtually ignored by both the English and the American lexicographers making up dictionaries.

This was pointed out by Dr. M. H. Scargill, Wednesday afternoon when he spoke to the Women's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel on "Making a Canadian Dictionary". Dr. Scargill is head of the department of linguistics at the University of Victoria and president of the Canadian Association of Linguistics. He is also co-editing a new Dictionary of Canadianisms.

Generally, when anything which is Canadian is used, the definition is vague, he said. "For example," continued the speaker, "the word 'Eskimo' is defined as an Indian tribe native to North America and inhabiting the far north of America. Nothing is said of Canada."

NEWCOMERS' GUIDE

Dr. Scargill and several others interested in linguistics believed there was a need for a dictionary of Canadianisms, not only to preserve the language but for a guide to new Canadians. "When I first came here from England," he remembered, "I was surprised at the number of words which apply strictly in this country!"

The new Dictionary of Canadianisms, several rough pages of which Dr. Scargill passed among the assembly, will give a list of some 12,000 entries of words, supported by historical evidence, with the definition used in this country. It is scheduled for publication in 1967, to coincide with the centenary of Confederation.

"Originally," said the speaker, "we'd planned to make it a Canadian-English edition, but that would involve such a huge amount of terms and take so much time and research. Next, we thought we'd limit it to words having their origin in Canada, but that would have necessitated digging far back into history and we still couldn't be positive whether they were really original.

"Finally we decided to use words and phrases which were distinctively Canadian, and the examples we have been sent are mounting into the one hundred thousands."

When a new country is formed, said Dr. Scargill, new words are made for new types of climate, different terrain, or taken from the natives already inhabiting the area — Chinook winds, for example.

Other terms or expressions come from a combination of English or American terms — "provincial parliament" and "legislative assembly" are meaningless except in Canada.

Still other words are taken from other languages and through the years are changed.

Dr. Scargill was introduced by president Miss Elizabeth Forbes and thanked by Mrs. W. Davenport.

A Shop of Disguises Is Full of Surprises

By Penny Saver

Halloween masquerades can be fun if you have a costume, and can sit back and relax until the night of the frolic. But, if you are caught without a disguise a day or so beforehand, the situation can be hazardous.

I walked casually into a shop the other day, and was confronted with an original Burmese war mask. "This shop," I thought, "must have the answer to that problem."

Hanging on racks at the back of the store were brilliant clown suits in vivid colors and patterns. These suits can be rented for $3. Primeval Indian costumes and dainty ballerina dresses in blue and pink can be obtained for $3.50.

If you let your imagination run away with you, there is no end to the creatures that you can create with a little stage make-up. A stick of "clown white" and red make-up, and you have a ready-made clown.

"North American Indian" is a mixture of red and brown, perfect for complementing the Indian costume. These sticks of make-up sell at 40 cents for a small stick, or 60 cents for the large.

A jar of English imported cold cream, used to put the make-up on, and to take it off, sells at $1.25 the jar.

Nose putty, used to alter the shape of the nose, comes in a flesh-colored stick, selling at 50 cents the stick. With a touch of make-up, the nose is yours for the evening, and who would know the difference?

Put your ingenuity to a test by styling your own beard. A length of crepe hair, which is enough to fashion a full beard, sells at 35 cents. Spirit gum, to glue the beard in place, comes in bottles for 25 cents the bottle.

I wondered about the strength of the glue, thinking of the embarrassment if the beard should slip off. "We've never had any complaints," the proprietor assured me. "As a matter of fact, we've had people come back with half a beard, frantic because they can't pry the other half off." In this case, I was told, one should apply a hot cloth to the beard. This moistens the glue, and the beard just peels off.

Should Mother Take Job? What Is Your Opinion

Lowman

I might as well stick my head in a lion's mouth as write about what I am going to write about today, because it is such a controversial subject. Should a mother of young children take a job outside her home? The following are quotations from readers' letters concerning this subject.

"Thank you for your column today with the jewel of a thought: 'There is no job in the world that is so demanding as being a housekeeper, a wife and a mother.' Much has been written recently about working mothers who must get out of the house in order to keep their sanity. I do not believe there is any such thing as a working mother. You are either a woman who holds a job OR a mother."

Another: "I think if a woman is temperamentally unfitted to cope with the constant companionship of young children, even her own, often she, her husband and her children profit if she takes a job and leaves the children part of the day in competent hands."

Another: "I don't think any woman should work outside her home unless it is necessary for financial reasons. This should hold even when children are of school age. It is even more important to be at home when teen-age children return in the afternoon."

Another: "I have young children and I have a job. I feel that my children and I have a type of companionship which is just as close, and perhaps closer, than if I were around all day long saying 'don't do this' or 'do do that.' We really enjoy the time we spend together. I am not exhausted and can really listen and talk and think and play with them during the time we have together."

Another. "I have three children but when I take them to parks, museums, the beach and the like, I usually take six or more along. My children enjoy their friends and their friends wouldn't get to go to those places otherwise because their mothers work."

Another: "No amount of money can buy the wonderful closeness that is achieved by being a mother and just being around when needed."

I am sort of a middle-of-the-roader on this subject. I feel strongly that both the mother and the children miss so very much happiness when the mother goes to work. I think it is unfortunate when a mother of young children must be away from home all day long. A part-time job for a few hours a few days a week might be good for everyone.

What do you, my readers, think about whether or not a mother should take a job? Do write and tell me! It would be interesting to hear from some fathers too.

With firecrackers banished to the "never, never land," Halloween parties will loom larger than ever on the calendars of Moms with pint-sized "witches" and "skeletons". This trick-and-treat cake is good insurance that your party will be the best on the block.

Jaunty Pumpkin Gives Haunting Party Taste

The "Trick and Treat Cake" can't even say "Boo" but it can make your guests say "Ahh."

Make your cake from a package of chiffon or angel cake mix. Slice the cake crosswise into three layers.

Here is a trick to help when making this treat. Before cutting the layers make a notch in the cake completely down one side — then just line up the notches after spreading the layers with the prune filling. Your cake will be even.

The frosting is sweetened, colored whipped cream marked to resemble a pumpkin. Plumped, pitted prunes cut in triangles form a pumpkin face.

TRICK AND TREAT CAKE

One package angel food or chiffon cake mix, 2 cups prunes, 1 cup water, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, ½ teaspoon pumpkin pie spice, 1 pint whipping cream, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar, orange food coloring, plumped prunes.

Make cake according to package directions: cool. Pit prunes. Combine with water and salt. Bring to boil and simmer, covered 15 minutes. Remove from heat; add sugar and spice. Blend in blender until smooth (2 or 3 minutes). Cool.

Cut cake crosswise in two places to make three layers. Spread half the prune filling on first layer, half on second layer. Cut off top rim edge of cake on slant to form pumpkin shape. Fill centre with cut cake pieces.

Whip cream with sugar and coloring, and frost cake.

Decorate cake with plumped prunes by removing pits and cutting pieces for eyes, nose, mouth and stem. With a small spatula or knife starting at the base make ridges in frosting to simulate pumpkin shape.

Makes 10 servings (filling 1½ cups).

DEAR ABBY . . .

Seek Help—Now!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am sure you have never received a problem like this in your entire career. I am a 24-year-old divorcee, and the mother of two children, ages 5 and 3. I live alone, support myself and up until I met this young man I have lived a very respectable life. The young man I am in love with is 16 years old. He is a nice person and lives at home with his family, who know nothing of this. I am well aware that this is completely wrong, and I make no apologies for it, but I can't help myself. I love him. I suppose you are wondering how a 24-year-old woman in her right mind could be "in love" with a 16-year-old kid. Believe me, I am sane and am not a tramp.

The problem is that I think I am expecting his child. I don't want to hurt this boy in any way, Abby. I would die before I would reveal his name. He is much too young to marry, but if I am pregnant, I want to keep the baby in hopes of marrying him later. If this is found out, could I be put in jail and my children taken from me? I would go to a lawyer but I am afraid he might press charges. Help me?

"LOOKS LIKE 17"

DEAR LOOKS: GO TO A LAWYER. He will protect you and advise you of your rights and obligations. Confide in him and have no fear.

DEAR ABBY: I have not been able to find a satisfactory answer to something that has bothered me for a long time. Maybe you can help me. How does a person know when to tip and when not to?

For instance, the carry-out boys at the supermarket. Do they get paid by the market, or do they expect tips? How about doormen at swanky restaurants and hotels who do nothing but open the door for you?

I once spent the weekend at the country home of a friend. The maid made my bed and pressed my clothes and I felt that I should have given her something, but I wasn't sure it was proper so I didn't. Also I tried to tip a hairdresser once and he informed me indignantly that he was the OWNER of the shop and didn't accept tips. Is there any rule to follow?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: Yes. Common sense. If you assume that almost everyone who serves the public depends on tips, you'll be right. (I happen to dislike the system, but it's true nevertheless.) When in doubt, ask.

Doormen should be tipped if they perform a special service such as hailing a taxi, or handling luggage. All beauty operators should be tipped. (Most shop owners will decline.) Servants in the home of friends deserve a gratuity for extra service. (It's not expected, but usually appreciated.) If there is a "no tipping" sign, don't attempt to violate it.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the southpaw problem: Can you tell me if Vladimir Horowitz, Arthur Rubinstein or Leonard Pennario are ambidextrous? Also, can you tell me if Jascha Heifetz, Yehudi Menuhin and Gregor Piatigorsky are left-handed?

If those hard-working people can accomplish such miracles with both hands and equal ease, can't those natural-born lefties master the simple art of writing with their right hands without developing an assortment of emotional problems?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: We would all probably amaze ourselves with the "talents" we could develop if we had to. When one loses a right hand, he can learn to write with his left. If both hands are gone, even the feet can substitute. But few can learn Braille until they're sightless.

DEAR ABBY: What would you say about a man who was married to a woman for eight years and didn't know the color of his wife's eyes?

SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE.

DEAR SEEMS: I say it's time he took a good look at her driver's licence.

Confidential to PUZZLED: It is said that "Diogenes struck the father when the son swore." Does that answer your question?

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif.

GAGLARDI ENTERS VOTE FRAY

Dynamic Society Export Advocated

Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi spread the word Wednesday night — the dynamic society's heading east.

On one of his flying visits to the capital, Mr. Gaglardi got in the Social Credit punch phrase at least four times in the course of a short, snappy speech.

Addressing 78 people at a rally for Esquimalt-Saanich Social Credit candidate Mrs. Vera Pipes, Mr. Gaglardi said.

"Canada needs dynamic leadership—now.

". . . It's time for a change and a new voice in Ottawa: You've got to start somewhere."

Having deftly dismissed Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker as "mud-slingers" and "finger pointers" he proceeded to describe NDP leader Tommy Douglas as "the man who couldn't make it in Saskatchewan."

"He came here and we gave him a pension and sent him to Ottawa."

BEATS DRUM

Beating his own party's drum, Mr. Gaglardi told his enthusiastic audience: "We've never made so much progress as we've made in B.C. under Social Credit."

Canada, he said, is not a nation of international prestige—"but it should be. Our leadership has been found wanting."

He raised a laugh when he said: "Mr. Diefenbaker said he'd develop the north a few years ago.

"We're frozen looking north."

And another with his comment: "LBJ will have a man on the moon before we have our Trans-Canada Highway at this rate."

ATTACKS LAING

Taking a side-swipe at Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing, Mr. Gaglardi said:

"This fellow Laing wants to steal our (oil) rights from us. Kick him out."

Asked what would happen if Quebec failed to pay back the $100 milion loan advanced by Premier Bennett last year, Mr. Gaglardi joked:

". . . We'll take them over."

Turning to Canada's immigration policy, Mr. Gaglardi said he would like to see more skilled people attracted to the country—"This is what we need today for our development."

If the highways minister's speech was short, Mrs. Pipes' speech was short, Mrs. Pipe's was even shorter.

She spoke for just seven-and-a-half minutes.

LAUDS FERRY

The grey-haired candidate concentrated on the B.C. ferry system, saying: "We wouldn't have had the ferry if it hadn't been for this government.

". . . I can't remember anyone going to Ottawa and speaking for the ferry. Is this being a good Canadian and a good British Columbian?"

She added: "All we're asking for is our share.

"If we're voting Social Credit provincially then we should vote Social Credit federally."

The meeting was held in Belmont Secondary School, Langford.

Humans Get Pesticides From Farms

TORONTO (CP)—The amount of antibiotics and pesticides being used "widely and wildly" by farmers is becoming an "increasing worry" to doctors, the Ontario Hospital Association was told Tuesday.

The antibiotics and pesticides are getting into animals' systems and showing up in the human body.

Dr. Harding Le Riche of the University of Toronto epidemiology and biometrics department listed these dangers:

—"It is possible to sensitize a person to penicillin from the penicillin in milk."

—Autopsies on humans have revealed DDT in body fat, showing that "we are permeated with the stuff."

—Most meat is infected with salmonella, a bacteria which caused an outbreak of food poisoning in Canada last year.

Dr. Le Riche suggested that hospital bacteriologists examine swabs taken from both fresh and cooked meat, particularly poultry — "You would be surprised at what you would find."

He recommended thorough cooking of leftovers, as well as meats and custards. "I am not an advocate of the underdone steak."

Washed Up Uniforms Explained

LONDON (CP)—The mystery of the Canadian naval uniforms washed ashore on the coast of Cornwall has been cleared up.

A Royal Navy spokesman in Plymouth said Wednesday the clothing came from the destroyer HMCS Nipigon, hit by fire last week during a NATO exercise. Three seamen were fatally burned in the blaze.

The spokesman said a Royal Navy investigation has determined the clothing was apparently thrown or lost overboard during a clean up at sea aboard Nipigon after the fire.

The tide and currents carried the material ashore near Portscatho in Cornwall, where it was found Monday night by a resident. Police were called and an investigation begun.

Among items found were two great coats, a life jacket, a pair of leather gloves and a haversack, all with at least partial Canadian identification attached.

Strike Called Off

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) Left wing parties Tuesday night called off a strike that has depleted government office staffs here while hope returned that the Dominican Republic's latest crisis is nearly over.

The strike, to protest against United States intervention, has crippled the provisional government's operation.

B.C. HOTELMEN WANT STIFFER LAW

'Let Us Eject Undesirables'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia hotel owners want to make it easier to get rid of undesirable guests.

A resolution passed Wednesday at the B.C. Hotels Association convention asked that steps be taken to establish legal authority for the ejection of a guest "due to intoxication, immoral, profane, lewd or brawling activities which may disturb the peace and comfort of guests or patrons."

Hotelmen claim the law is not clear on the subject.

Other resolutions ask for the preservation of Boundary Bay as a recreational area, highway beautification, lower ferry tolls, larger letters to identify licenced premises, improvement of the highway between Vernon and Sicamous, and the approval of bar girls in cocktail lounges.

Motel and resort owners asked for free passage for pedestrians on the Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay ferry because it is part of the Trans - Canada Highway, the government to charge for campsite use or sell the sites to private operators, and that all government campsites be supervised and carry a $1 charge per vehicle per night.

"I didn't believe the saleslady, when she said that Just Fabulous stockings last twice as long. They looked so wildly sheer. Naturally, I bought them. Well, those fragile-looking stockings turned out to be almost non-runnable. (They're knit with a special lock-stitch.) They have a comfortable ribbed top that fends off garter-snag. And a clever run-guard toe. That was three weeks ago Monday, and I've worn the same pair of Just Fabulous day and night. (They're flattering as a wink.)

WILSON EMBARRASSED; PRESS CARTOONISTS GO ALL OUT

Wave of Protest Hits Church Leader's Force-If-Necessary View

LONDON (AP) — Controversy boiled today over the Archbishop of Canterbury's suggestion that Christians should support military action against Rhodesia's white settlers if they declare independence without Britain's approval.

Critics ranging from Conservative members of Parliament to the socialist president of the Methodist conference, Lord Soper, denounced the suggestion as irresponsible.

The Church of Scotland, with a long history of African missionary work, dissociated itself from the archbishop's views and from a resolution supporting the archbishop passed by the British Council of Churches in Aberdeen. Salvation Army leaders also dissented.

The archbishop, Dr. Michael Ramsey, is spiritual leader of the Church of England. Addressing the British Council of Churches Tuesday, he compared Britain's responsibility to Rhodesia's Negroes with its 1939 treaty obligations to Poland.

"This country had its obligations to Poland," he said. "It was necessary to use force in fulfilling them.

"Our country has obligations to Rhodesia . . . if our government thought it practicable and desirable to use force in discharging not a new but a continuing obligation to Rhodesia, then as Christian people, unless we are pacifists, it would be right to say that force should be used."

The council, representing all denominations except the Roman Catholics, voted 60 to 5 to urge the government "to take whatever measures might be necessary" to establish fully representative government in Rhodesia.

There were signs that the archbishop's statement had caused some embarrassment to Prime Minister Wilson, now in Rhodesia trying to reach an agreement with the white minority government assuring ultimate political control for the Negro majority. Wilson has privately ruled out the use of British troops against the white settlers, most of whom are immigrants from Britain or of British descent.

Publicly, government and Conservative leaders kept silence. But a chorus of protest went up from Conservative backbenchers.

Bernard Braine and Gilbert Longden wrote in a letter to The Times:

"It is incomprehensible that such intemperate language should be used at the very moment when our prime minister is seeking to secure a peaceful and honorable settlement on the spot."

Peter van der Byl, Rhodesian deputy minister of information who now is in London, issued a statement saying:

"None of us in Rhodesia who 20 years ago fought with Britain against the common foe could ever have foreseen a time when the Primate of All England would publicly support the dispatch of our former comrades-inarms to shoot down kith and kin."

The Policies of the Liberal Party

GENERAL ELECTION 1963

The purpose of this statement is to give you a clear understanding of what you will be doing by entrusting the country's affairs to a new Liberal government

FULL EMPLOYMENT AND NEW INDUSTRY

✓ Set up a Federal Department of Industry

The department will work out, industry by industry, what can be done to promote new production in Canada at economic costs.

✓ Reform taxes

Taxes will be reviewed, in order to make them fairer and to encourage enterprise and lower the barriers to business expansion. Special tax incentives will be provided to new industries in areas where new job opportunities are most needed, and also to companies that increase their exports.

✓ Expand trade

A new Liberal government will work with Britain, the United States, European and other free countries in programmes for progressively reducing the barriers to trade.

✓ Set up a National Development Corporation

underway

This corporation will seek capital from the public so that investors and the government will work together to finance new enterprises in Canada. The aim of the corporation will be to increase Canadian production and to reverse the trend toward absentee ownership of Canadian industry.

✓ Make loans and grants for municipal services

We need better streets and roads to reduce traffic congestion, better public transit, less pollution, more schools and parks. A Municipal Development and Loan Fund will be established to provide capital for sound municipal improvements which provincial governments approve but for which financing is at present inadequate. The fund will play a big part in creating new jobs.

✓ Increase construction of low-rental homes

New homes for rent are the positive side of slum clearance. A new Liberal government will join with the provinces and municipalities in a major campaign. It will give special attention to the housing needs of old-age pensioners.

Extend National Housing legislation to provide insured mortgages for the purchase of existing homes as well as for building new homes

This broadening, under proper safeguards, will enable more Canadians to become home-owners and to move more easily to new jobs.

Improve rural housing

A new Liberal government will extend National Housing legislation for the improvement of farm homes and other dwellings in rural areas.

✓ Set up a National Economic Council

A National Economic Council will be set up to assess the needs and potentialities of the economy, to analyze what is going on and what is planned, and to recommend measures to bring the activity of our economy up to its full potential. The Council's members will have a wide variety of experience in business, in labour matters, in farming and in government, and they will be assisted by an expert staff.

INVESTMENT IN SKILL

✓ Training for better jobs

A new Liberal government, at the request of the provinces, will provide expert and full-scale assistance in operating wide-ranging services for job training. Training courses will be open to all Canadians, men and women, who want to learn new skills. A new organization will be set up to direct this programme.

✓ Assist re-training courses within industry

In co-operation with the National Economic Council, the proposed organization will look ahead to see which jobs will offer more opportunities in future and which—because of automation or trade changes or for other reasons—will offer fewer opportunities. At the same time it will work with industry in setting up training courses, so that workers can obtain the necessary broadening of skills before, not after unemployment strikes.

✓ Pay supplementary benefits for re-training and to the long-term unemployed

In order to overcome the effects of automation and to enable people to broaden their opportunities of employment, workers will get financial help while training and in meeting the expenses of moving. This help will come from general government revenues; it will not be an additional demand on the unemployment insurance fund. It will be continued after re-training, if a man or woman who is the main support of a household remains unavoidably unemployed.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUTH

✓ Extend family allowances beyond the age of sixteen for boys and girls who remain students. Establish Canada Scholarships for university education

underway

Scholarships each valued at $1,000 a year for four years of study will be made available to able students who need assistance to go to university. The awards will be open to all and will be made on merit. The administration of the plan will be independent of government.

✓ Set up a student loan fund

All qualified university students will be able to borrow if necessary for genuine educational needs. The fund will be independently administered. Loans will be interest free during the period of study and for the first year afterwards, and will then be repayable, plus interest, within a reasonable period.

✓ Improve public financing for the universities

This is a continuation of established Liberal policy. It is an increasingly important investment for the conditions of today and the progress of the country.

PENSIONS

✓ Establish a national contributory pension plan

The plan will provide pensions in addition to the existing federal pension. It will not be financed from taxes but from contributions, of a small percentage of earnings, from all employers and employees and from self-employed people if they choose to join. Both the contributions required and the pensions available under the plan will build up over a ten-year period. This transition period will enable existing pension schemes to be fitted smoothly with the new plan, without loss of rights in the existing schemes. Pension benefits will be made fully portable when people change their jobs.

Make possible retirement on half pay at 65

Canada Pension Plan Implemented

People will soon be able to choose when, between the ages of 65 and 70, they wish to start drawing the pension based on their contributions plus the existing federal pension. The contributory benefit will be based on average earnings during the best years of working life. If the federal pension begins at age 65, the pension will be about one-third less than it would be if begun at age 70.

For a man of about average earnings—$360 a month—the total pension including the federal pension available at 65, for himself and his wife, will be $180 a month; that is, half his earnings while working. If he continues to work after 65, the pension available will rise to $250 a month at age 70. For a single person the equivalent pension, when the plan is in full effect, will be $135 at age 65, or $185 at age 70.

For a man whose earnings have been lower, the total pension will be a bigger proportion of earnings. For example, from earnings of $240 a month it will be, at age 65, $150 for a couple or $105 for a single person. Or, at age 70, it will be $210 for a couple or $145 for a single person. If earnings have been $500 a month (the maximum covered by the plan) the pension at age 65 will be $215 for a couple or $170 for a single person; or at age 70 it will be $296 for a couple or $231 for a single person.

In the case of couples, the wife's portion of the pension will be paid to her directly as it is at present.

These pension rates will be reached in ten years. The rates for people who retire in the interval will be steadily raised towards the new levels.

✓ Provide pensions for the disabled and for widows and orphans

The contributory plan will make provision for people who are disabled, and unable to work, before reaching 65. In the event of death, the widow or orphans will receive the benefits. These provisions of the plan will be submitted to the provinces for constitutional agreement.

✓ Encourage self-employed people to contribute to the pension plan

The self-employed will not have to join the plan but will be able to do so on terms which will be very worthwhile for people with small or moderate incomes.

✓ Establish a new national minimum of $75 a month pension

To help people already retired, who have not had the chance to contribute under the new Liberal plan, a minimum supplementary pension of $10 a month will be paid, from the start, out of the pension fund established by contributions. This will raise the total old-age pension to $75 for a single or widowed person, $140 for a married couple.

✓ Increase old-age assistance to $75 a month

Assistance is available in cases of need, for people aged 65 to 69. To cover the transition period until the contributory pension plan is in full effect, this assistance will be increased in co-operation with the provinces.

Make the $75 old-age assistance available to single women and widows at age 60

Many companies retire men at 65 but women at 60. Earlier assistance will therefore be made available to women, in co-operation with the provinces.

✓ Increase allowances for the blind and disabled to $75 a month

In co-operation with the provinces, these allowances will be raised in line with pensions and old age assistance. There will be an increase in the amount of other income permitted.

HEALTH CARE

✓ The objective of the Liberal Party is to establish, in co-operation with the provinces, a medical care plan for all Canadians.

The plan will enable everyone to get health care at the time it is needed, without fear of crippling medical bills. There will be no restrictive conditions. The patient will be free to choose his doctor on a fee-for-service basis.

The medical care plan will cover costs of doctors' and diagnostic services, in the office, home or hospital, by general practitioners, surgeons and specialists. The federal plan will pay for all these services to children up to the time they leave school, and for people over the age of 65. For other Canadians the plan will cover doctors' bills above $25 per person a year (for a somewhat higher figure for those with large incomes.)

A Liberal government would co-operate with the provinces and the doctors. The Liberal plan will be put to a federal-provincial conference and thoroughly discussed with the medical profession and other interested organizations.

LABOUR

Encourage Industrial Councils

There is urgent need for better relations between management and workers, working together to improve industrial efficiency as well as pay and conditions, and to increase employment and improve job security. A new Liberal government will vigorously encourage the formation of industrial councils for these purposes and will consult with labour organizations about appointments to government councils and boards.

✓ Speed up conciliation procedures

With the help of trade unions and industry, a new Liberal government will improve conciliation without lessening freedom of negotiation. Liberalism is opposed to limits on the right to strike and upholds the right of reinstatement at the conclusion of a strike.

✓ Provide collective bargaining for federal civil servants

underway

All federal employees should have the right to collective bargaining procedures with provision for binding arbitration.

✓ Restore the unemployment insurance fund

The fund was designed to deal with short-term unemployment. It has been depleted, because long-term unemployment has become chronic. A new Liberal government will restore the fund and with policies of economic expansion, return it to its proper function. In fairness to all workers, a new Liberal government will be firm in preventing abuse of the fund by people who are not genuinely seeking jobs.

✓ Pay unemployment benefits to people who are out of work because of illness

This will be done on the same basis as unemployment benefits for people who lose their jobs for other reasons.

The coverage of unemployment insurance

Those who need coverage include many farm workers and groups in the service trades, as far as is administratively practicable. The coverage formerly given to casual workers will be restored.

BETTER MARKETS FOR FARMERS

✓ Make National marketing possible

underway

A new Liberal government will promptly seek agreement with the provinces on a plan which would enable marketing boards and co-operatives to operate on a national scale. Under this plan, the government would give leadership in cases where farmers desire such organizations for orderly marketing. A new Liberal government will provide loans and other encouragement for the efficient development of producer co-operatives.

✓ Provide market guidance and assist independent research

A new Liberal government will work with the provinces to provide more complete price and marketing information for the benefit of small farmers. It will also assist research aimed at expanding both home and foreign markets for Canadian farmers, developing industrial uses for farm products, improving quality and efficiency in processing and marketing.

✓ Encourage farm export sales

A new Liberal government will establish a revolving fund to finance farm exports. This fund will be available to the Wheat Board and other farm marketing organizations, to support the vigorous expansion of export markets by developing credit sales.

THE FARM

✓ Give federal backing to crop insurance

Present legislation has prevented the provinces from giving wide coverage in crop insurance because it has left too much financial risk to provincial governments. A new Liberal government at Ottawa will re-insure soundly based provincial measures of crop insurance. Where crop insurance is not in effect or not practicable, P.F.A.A. will be improved.

✓ Improve supports for farm prices and income

Supports must be fair, realistic and flexible; they must be based on principles, not on expediency. Where appropriate, a new Liberal government will provide deficiency payments that will protect farmers in seasons of price declines by calculating payments on a quarterly instead of annual basis. Where appropriate, also, support prices will be put on a regional basis.

✓ Assist livestock improvement

A new Liberal government will work with the provinces in vigorously expanding action for the improvement of livestock. More credit will be made available to farmers building up their herds, as well as for such purposes as drainage and the restoration of pasture.

FISHERY DEVELOPMENT

✓ Establish a 12-mile limit for off-shore fishing

This is necesary for the adequate protection of our Canadian fishery.

✓ Create a fishery credit agency

Low-cost loans are needed for the construction and improvement of boats with modern equipment and gear.

✓ Undertake research and training

This is needed to promote increased exports, study co-operative purchasing and marketing, and improve fishing methods.

CANADA'S DEFENCE

✓ Work well with our friends

A nuclear war cannot be won. With two great power blocs capable of destroying each other, the only defence is to prevent war starting. Until there is mutual disarmament, with effective inspection and control, this means that we must have sufficient strength to make sure that no one will attack, because the aggressor knows that he will be destroyed along with his victim. To provide such deterrent strength, we must co-operate closely with our friends in the free world. A country such as Canada cannot defend itself alone. Our defence effort means our contribution to the North Atlantic Alliance. It is collective defence, not defence in isolation. In our policies for external affairs and defence we therefore must get on well with our friends and work closely with them. We intend to honour our commitments to our friends and will therefore provide defensive nuclear ammunition to fulfill the role to which the present government has committed us.

L. B. Pearson says:

More than anything else, Canada needs a government with purpose . . . a government with clearly-stated objectives for the country's economic future and for the people's well being. That kind of government — purposeful and decisive — can only come from a party that knows where it's going.

Our objectives are clear:

1. ✓ To provide decisive government so that Parliament can do its job.
2. ✓ To harness the energies and brains of labour, management, farm groups and government in an expanding economy that will create the jobs and job-security that all Canadians must have.
3. ✓ When this has been accomplished, to make sure that all Canadians share fairly the benefits of economic growth.

We ask for this great responsibility, knowing that the job to be done is an enormous and difficult challenge. We ask you to join with us on election day so that a decisive Liberal government can get down to business, and achieve these objectives.

In this spirit I ask you to vote for your Liberal candidate on Monday, April 8.

All items marked (✓) have been done or are underway. This is proof that your Liberal government lives up to its promises. Vote Liberal Nov. 8th!

Additional Accomplishments

(1) New Labour Code
(2) A distinctive flag
(3) Free trade in automobiles

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Sue Cheney, age 13, of Lansing, Mich., for her question:

What causes a blimp to operate?

Blimps are related to balloons and dirigibles and are indirectly kin to ships and floating rafts. A blimp has engines to guide it, and a balloon does not—but both stay aloft for the same reason. A power driven ship floats for the same reason that a motorless raft bobs on top of the waves.

A blimp is operated by lifting force and thrusting power. Its lifting power is a whopping bag of gas that is lighter than the surrounding air. A balloon also lifts aloft because it is filled with lighter-than-air gases. These hulls of gas rise in the air for the same reason a cork floats on top of the water. They are pushed up because they are lighter or less dense than the air or water around them. This force is called buoyancy.

A high-riding balloon must drift at the mercy of the breezes, but a blimp has engines and propellers to steer it. The pilot can turn it and keep it on course in calm weather and against gentle winds. The equipment that provides this guiding and thrusting power is in the car or gondola that hangs under the bulky, gas-filled hull. The pilot, the crew and the passengers also ride in the gondola.

The blimp is the simplest of the gas-filled airships. Its hull is merely a rubbery skin with no supports, and when the gas is removed between flights it collapses. At first it was called a limp because on the ground it is as limp as a rag. This was in the First World War when British fliers used it to bomb enemy targets. Their preferred model was the B-type limp—which quite naturally became known as the blimp.

Used to Guard Ships

The hulls of certain larger airships are supported with metal spines and nose cones. These semi-rigid types also collapse between flights. The entire hull of a huge dirigible, however, is supported with a metal skeleton. It keeps its shape whether empty or filled with lifting gas.

We all have stopped to gape at a low-flying blimp. The whole city spells out the letters of its advertising signs and watches its winking lights at night. Many of us have taken sightseeing tours in a blimp. But the duties of the bulky blimp are not limited to signs and sights. Behind the scenes, it does faithful defence patrol to protect us in both war and peacetime.

Super aircraft and anti-aircraft have made the blimp useless as a front-line soldier. It can no longer bomb cities, but it can guard ocean-going convoys. On anti-submarine patrol, it can spot enemy subs and drop depth charges to destroy them. The blimp is also used to gather weather data, and it has a glamorous role in our Early Warning system of defence.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Millie Gunn, age 10, of Pierson, Iowa, for her question:

What is gypsum?

Sometimes a deposit of gypsum is spread on the surface of the land. Chances are you would mistake it for a stretch of fine, white sand. The famous White Sands Desert of New Mexico is actually made of gypsum crystals. Gypsum is also the mineral used to make plaster of Paris. In nature, it is a white mineral so soft that you can scratch a line on it with your fingernail.

The mineral gypsum is a chemical compound of calcium and sulphur blended with generous amounts of water. In many places deposits were made when the water evaporated from ancient seas and left the salty chemicals behind. Gypsum in the ground tends to make our water hard, and mined gypsum is used to add limy fertilizer to the soil.

'Most Hung Up Generation'

By JACK HUTTON

Douglas Ward, president-elect of the Canadian Union of Students, looked down at several thousand faces before him, the intense, questioning faces of fellow students.

"This," he said quietly, "is the most hung-up generation in the history of our country."

His words, uttered at the historic teach-in earlier this month at the University of Toronto, went beyond his immediate audience to more than 100,000 students on campuses in every other province and parts of the U.S.

Millions of adults, listening on FM radio sets, also heard the message. And none who listened to even a portion of the international assembly could doubt Ward's assessment.

Revolution

The three-day meeting was intended to probe the different viewpoints behind a world of revolution. When is revolution legitimate? (Both the U.S. and Russia began with revolutions.) When is it moral to intervene, and how much effect does international law have on internal struggles?

After sitting through almost all the sessions, I felt we saw something more important than the conflict between old and new nations. We saw a mirror held up to the dilemma of a generation.

There were more than 6,000 students at the teach-in, the latest of its kind to look at foreign policy in the atmosphere of a university campus. I counted more than 1,300 students from the U.S. among them.

And you could see one question reflected in almost all of them: when does a generation speak up to protest what another generation has been doing?

The struggle was more obvious among the U.S. students.

A Canadian student might agree or disagree with his country's foreign policies. But he isn't required to serve in the military service to support them either.

Boos Deafening

The student from New York, Texas or Seattle is. And it made all the difference in how he responded at the three-day session. When he objected, the boos were deafening; when he applauded, you heard it a block away.

Mr. Ward, a young man who is obviously going to give strong leadership to on-campus students across Canada this coming year, made a point that we've repeated continually in this column.

The student generation of the 1950's, he said, was one that felt little involvement in what was happening in the world. It couldn't change things, so why react? This was the era of the true beatnik—the young person who wanted to escape from harsh realities.

It's different today. And if that upsets our elders that's too bad. The student today belongs to the 1960's generation that wants to have a voice in what will happen in the next decade.

The methods of this generation are sometimes rude. If it's the only way to be heard, you heckle. If you can't be noticed any other way, you march or hold a public rally.

These are the lessons of history. And who in the elder generation can object if this generation is just discovering them. Not only discovering them, but putting them into effect.

Seventy-seven-year-old Lord Fenner Brockway told the story that I thought went most directly to the mood of the student audience.

"When I was a young man I was privileged to have George Bernard Shaw (the Irish author) as a friend," he said. "And I remember telling him that a great many people my age wanted to do something with our lives."

"I asked him what we should do. I've never forgotten his answer.

"Shaw said young people should discover the life force behind their generation, regardless of what generation it was. Then identify yourself with it, he said, and work for it."

What is the life force behind this generation in Canada? The venerable British leader of protest for the last 50 years didn't venture to say. But anyone who attended the three-day teach-in or heard it can't help having a few guesses.

4,000 A MONTH

Refugee Pact By Cuba, U.S.

HAVANA (CP)—Premier Fidel Castro today cut off the sea exodus of Cubans from the port of Camarico as a prelude to a U.S.-Cuban agreement to bring 3,000 to 4,000 refugees a month to the United States by air.

(In Key West, Fla., a U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said hundreds of Cubans have set sail for Florida despite bad weather. Waves 10 feet high were reported in the Florida Straits which separate Cuba and the U.S.)

The agreement is expected to be announced in Washington and Havana Friday.

The announcement cutting off the Camarioca exodus at midnight tonight came after a post-midnight meeting between Castro and Emil Stadelhofer, the Swiss ambassador to Havana.

The Swiss embassy represents U.S. interests in Cuba. Stadelhofer returned Wednesday from conferences in Washington.

Informed sources said the agreement calls for Cubans with relatives in the United States to be flown from Varadero airport, 85 miles east of Havana.

American planes — probably two a day carrying fewer than 100 persons each—will make the flights to airports in Florida, the sources said.

More than 3,000 refugees have sailed across the Florida Straits since Castro announced his open door policy earlier this month. They sailed in small boats piloted by their relatives in the United States.

Canada, U.S. Forest Pact 'In Works'

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP) — Negotiations for a Canada-U.S. forest products pact similar to the automobile agreement will begin after the Nov. 8 federal election, Jack Davis, Liberal candidate in Coast-Capilano, said Wednesday.

Mr. Davis, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Pearson in the last parliament, said the pact is "definitely in the works."

"It is being actively explored on both sides of the border," he told an all-candidates meeting of this logging community 40 miles north of Vancouver.

"Right now there are no formal discussions but I would expect negotiations to be initiated right after the election."

Mr. Davis said a forest products pact would mean British Columbia would be able to send not only newsprint and pulp to the U.S., but more manufactured paper products, particularly fine papers.

'MADE UP LOST GROUND FOR RHODESIA'

(See story page 40.)

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said today remarks Tuesday night by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, "more than made up lost ground for Rhodesia."

He referred to Dr. Ramsey's speech to the British Council of Churches in which the Anglican primate said Christians should support the use of British force in Rhodesia if the British government decided it was necessary.

His comments provoked a storm of criticism.

"I suppose I must be grateful for the worthy gentleman's remarks," Smith said today. "I gather we lost a little bit of ground when we restricted former prime minister Mr. Garfield Todd. Now we have more than made up for the lost ground."

Hopes Dim For Agreement On Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters)—British Prime Minister Wilson lunched today with Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia and the British leader prepared to meet later with the colony's two African nationalist heads.

It was the third meeting between the two key figures in the protracted Rhodesian crisis precipitated by Smith's threat to declare independence unilaterally and Britain's counter-threat of economic retaliation.

(In London the British cabinet met as hopes for the success of Wilson's mission dwindled. Informed sources said it appeared almost certain that Wilson would return Saturday without making any progress in his negotiations with Smith.)

Earlier today, Smith continued meetings with his cabinet while Wilson received a 26-man delegation of the provincial council of chiefs representing Rhodesia's 208 African chiefs and 400 headmen.

The council claims to represent the majority of the country's 4,000,000 Negro population, in opposition to the claims of African nationalist leaders Joshua Nkomo and Rev. Ndabanidni Sithole.

Wilson met the two Wednesday while Negroes staged demonstrations in the capital, and scheduled further talks with them today.

WON'T MEET LEADERS

After a 3½-hour meeting with his cabinet, Smith told reporters he would not sit around a table with Nkomo and Sithole. At an impromptu press conference on the doorstep of his office, he said: "Our position is quite clear on this. We have said on many occasions that we can't sit around a table with these people.

Wheat Sale to China May Reach Record Size

ALL SMILES are Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, centre, and Chief Commissioner W. C. McNamara of the Canadian Wheat Board as Te Tsien Ting puts away his pen after signing three to five-year wheat agreement in Montreal. Tsien Ting is manager of the China Resources Company. Big deal was announced today in Winnipeg. (CP Wirephoto.)

'Escalation' Clause in Pact

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian wheat board today announced a three-year agreement with China for the sale of at least 112,000,000 bushels of wheat starting next Aug. 1, and added it may be renegotiated for a much as 466,000,000 bushels over a five-year term.

The announcement was timed to coincide with the arrival here of Trade Minister Sharp, who said its value could range from a minimum of $200,000,000 in three years to $900,000,000 if the maximum five-year deal is worked out.

"On this basis," said the trade minister, "this would be the largest single wheat agreement ever concluded by the Canadian wheat board."

PLAN MORE TALKS

The board statement said the immediate agreement, signed earlier in Montreal, is for a minimum of 112,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 186,700,000 bushels over a three-year period beginning Aug. 1, 1966. Specific quantities, prices and shipping periods are to be negotiated periodically.

Before next May 1, however, "consideration will ge given" to two alternatives:

1. Increasing the quantity of the three-year agreement to a minimum of 168,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 280,000,000 bushels;

2. Extending the agreement to five years, involving a a minimum of 280,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 466,000,000 bushels.

Terms are similar to that in the current three-year agreement, expiring next July 31, under which China already has ordered the maximum 187,000,000 bushels worth about $336,000,000.

They call for 25 per cent cash at the time of loading with the balance in 18 months, with interest.

EXPECTS BIG SALE

Mr. Sharp's statement said past experience with the Chinese indicates quantities purchased will be "closer to the maximum figure" allowed in the contract.

The deferred-payment provision was made possible by a Canadian government guarantee to the wheat board.

"A revolving credit level of over $200,000,000 was required to facilitate this agreement and the government was pleased to provide the necessary credit guarantee which makes this business possible."

Coinciding with the deal, the annual export limit of "sensitive items" to Canada from China is increased to $10,000,000 from $7,000,000.

Said the minister:

"The Chinese corporation discussed with me their efforts to maintain and develop their market in Canada for various items. It is of course in our mutual interest to provide them with an opportunity to do so, subject to appropriate safeguards to avoid market disruption and damage to Canadian producers.

PRODUCERS PROTECTED

"Canadian producers of sensitive items are protected by individual quota restrictions. These are to be determined later by agreement between the two parties."

Grades of wheat involved in the deal were not announced but bulk of the final contract under the current three-year agreement, announced July 21, was lower grades—No. 4 northern,

Maritimes Promised New Deal

Area Forgotten By Grits: Dief

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker Wednesday night emptied a bag of Maritime promises to the largest political rally held in New Brunswick in this campaign.

Close to 3,500, a few hundred less than capacity, cheered the Tory chief who was making his second foray into the Atlantic provinces.

Today he campaigns in Prince Edward Island, the only province which he has not yet visited.

On the eve of Diefenbaker's visit the mayors of Halifax and Dartmouth in Nova Scotia and Saint John and Fredericton in New Brunswick released the text of a letter they had sent in August to Industry Minister Charles Drury asking that their areas be given 90 per cent of grants available to designated areas.

Diefenbaker said the Liberals had discriminated against the Maritimes and a Tory government would designate all the four areas so they could get the full grant.

"FORGOT MARITIMES"

"What was the attitude of the Liberals for 22 years?" he asked.

"They forgot that the Maritimes existed. We acted."

A Conservative government would:

- Restore shipbuilding subsidies which the government has frozen for several months.
- Revamp the Atlantic Development Board and provide necessary funds to continue its work. (The Liberals gave the fund $100 million.)
- A special case would be made for Maritime universities where the number of student per population was far higher than in the rest of Canada.
- Make a full and careful study of the long-suffering Chignecto Canal project and promote plans for the Bay of Fundy tidal power project.

NATIONAL SYMBOLS

And deep in red ensign territory he again scored the government for whittling away at national symbols.

Not one new flag was in the hall and the crowd roared approval when Diefenbaker said:

"I am not ashamed of the stand I took on that issue."

One of the first things a Tory government would do would be to remove any reference of the off-shore mineral rights ques-

'FIRST RETREAT IN CAMPAIGN'

By IAN MacDONALD
Ottawa Bureau Staff Writer

TORONTO — Bandsmen in bright red uniforms blared out "Put On a Happy Smile."

Prime Minister Pearson threaded his way towards a platform through an estimated 14,000 people gathered in the world's largest covered shopping plaza.

A girl cleared her throat in readiness to sing O Canada.

A party spokesman leaned into the microphone to make the opening announcement.

There was silence.

In unbelieving horror, David Greenspan tapped the mikes and made another try.

Nothing.

And from that moment on—about 8:08 p.m.—developed the wildest, and most certainly, wackiest meeting of the campaign.

WOMEN FAINTED

There was noise, confusion, chaos, heat, fainting women, a handful of chanting, bearded peaceniks, pushing and waving placards, bands blaring in competition, a lone but loud piper, screaming cheer leaders, and some very confused people who had only come to Yorkdale Plaza to shop.

Some Liberal officials wore tight-lipped smiles, while others had end-of-the-world looks.

But Pearson kept a happy, if perspiring, face.

His big show Wednesday night in the modern, multi-million dollar setting had been let down by a simple electronics failure.

He didn't get mad; he didn't quit and he didn't lay blame.

He went down into the milling mob to shake hands, surrounded by plainclothes police who were almost swamped by the excited crowd.

PEOPLE CRUSHED

The people had come to see and hear Pearson—his planned speech was only to have lasted about 12 minutes and was a "let's-go-out-and-win" thing.

But nothing went right. He made three attempts to speak to the crowd through a hand

ANOTHER VOTE NEXT YEAR?

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said today that if the Liberals don't win a majority in the Nov. 8 election there will be another election next year.

He made the statement as an off-the-cuff remark to workers in the campaign headquarters of David Hahn, Liberal candidate in Toronto Broadview.

He said the Liberals are the only party with a chance to win a majority.

"There will be another election next year if we don't," he said.

Four U.S. Spacemen To Try Rendezvous

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two U.S. astronauts will blast off into orbit in December, and two more spacemen will try to rendezvous with them about 10 days later, it was learned today.

Leading off will be Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, who are scheduled to take off from Cape Kennedy on Dec. 8 on a record 14-day, 209-orbit journey around earth.

If all goes well, Gemini 6 pilots Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford, grounded earlier this week in the nation's first attempt at a "chase in space," will be launched from the same Cape Kennedy firing pad, to try to catch up with their buddies.

The two spaceships will attempt to manoeuvre within a few feet of each other. There will be no space-walking in this flight.

Tory Strength 'Fantastically Low'

By PETER REGENSTREIF

VANCOUVER—A precipitate decline of Conservative strength is the major development of the electoral battle in British Columbia.

From the vantage point of 1965, it is extremely difficult to recall that it was here in this city of Vancouver that John Diefenbaker first really caught fire in 1958.

"Follow John" was his slogan then and so powerful was his appeal that the only opposition remaining after the dust had settled across the province was a lonely four CCFers from hard-core working-class areas.

Conservative fortunes have waned with each successive election since then and by now they have plummeted to a fantastic low.

Diefenbaker is almost no longer even an issue. He is simply out of the running. If Pearson could exert any sort of a personal attraction here, that would settle the question and the Liberals would be pulling away. They are not.

The major element in Liberal favor is prosperity. British Columbia is booming. While the Social Credit provincial administration of Premier Bennett gets some credit, the federal government gets its share too.

What originally damaged Diefenbaker here in 1962 was unemployment. The electorate still remembers and this also hurts Tory chances. The new pension plan also helps the Liberals.

As a 52-year-old draftsman in Vancouver Quadra put it: "I'd vote Conservative right off the bat if it weren't for Diefenbaker. But, you know, I may be voting Liberal because if the Conservatives get back in, they might upset this pension thing. That's one big point. And things are very good now. That's another issue for you."

In Burnaby-Richmond, a first-time voter briefly analyzed his Liberal intentions as follows: "I think they've done a lot for the country as far as unemployment is concerned."

However, with Douglas and Thompson running ahead of

WE WERE RIDING ALONG . . . . . . WHILE DINNER COOKED

Lift the Hood, Mother, the Roast Is Done

By DOROTHY CRANDALL
Boston Globe Food Editor

BOSTON (AP)—Chalk one up for women drivers: They are cooking under the hood of the car, with the youngsters in the back seat and the wheel rolling.

"Forget about the oil, just check the roast," one pioneer chef told her filling station attendant. Sure enough there it was, a foil-wrapped package riding on the exhaust manifold, hottest spot under the hood.

We tried it, following the lead of Norma Bidwell, Canadian housewife who has been roasting-while-rolling all summer. Mrs. Bidwell, food editor of the Hamilton Spectator, said:

"My husband scoffed the first time I handed him a three - pound foil wrapped package of raw meat and said, "we'll cook it under the hood."

"But 10 minutes after we arrived at the cottage the six of us were munching happily on hot roast beef sandwiches with tender-crisp onions and seasoning with cook-on sauce.

The rules for road cooking:

Wrap a two-to-three pound roast, not over two inches thick (for a three-hour drive) in a large sheet of extra-heavy-duty foil, fold edges together twice to make a lock seam;

Use a wire hanger to anchor the meat to the manifold;

Stop halfway to your destination to turn the roast;

Don't stop to visit with friends for your roast needs three hours driving time:

Don't try turkey.

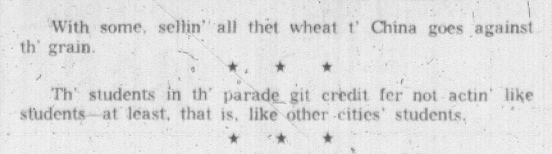
"During the early stages of a turkey's cooking, it gets bouncy. It sticks its elbows out and pushes away from the heat. You try to push it back and its sticks a drumstick through the foil."

This means trouble — like grease burning on the manifold.

In Hamilton, Mrs. Bidwell said she got the idea from an Edmonton story last May about an army chef who sizzled a beef roast on a 200-mile drive from Edmonton to Calgary.

Warrant Officer Bert Quaintance experimented with under-the-hood cooking after watching a demonstration in which a cake was baked with the heat of only three candles.

Mrs. Bidwell said she described the method at a conference of newspaper food editors in Chicago and was told it was the first new idea in cooking they had heard in years.



With some, sellin' all thet wheat t' China goes against th' grain.

New Bleaching Process Produces Whiter Paper

QUEBEC (CP)—A Toronto chemist has described a new bleaching process which he said will influence pulp and paper production throughout the world.

Dr. W. Howard Rapson, who received the R. S. Jane Medal of the Chemical Institute of Canada for his achievement, said the process is the result of 25 years of research and has been tested in three Canadian pulp mills as well as a number in the United States.

He told reporters attending a congress of Canadian chemical engineers at Laval University that the bleach, chlorine dioxide, produced a stronger and whiter paper at a lower cost than bleaches now in use.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATOR TELLS HEARING

B.C. Tel Earnings Below Average

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Telephone Company should be allowed to make a profit of between 6.5 and 7.25 per cent of invested capital, it was suggested Wednesday to the Board of Transport Commissioners.

This range was proposed by Dr. J. T. Nicholson, professor of business administration at University of Western Ontario, who said this would give B.C. Tel permissive earnings in line with those of other telephone and utility companies in Canada.

He pointed out that authorization of this level of earnings would be no guarantee the company could achieve even the minimum figure.

Dr. Nicholson, who holds a doctorate in business administration from Harvard University, introduced evidence showing that the average Canadian utility company has been earning at the 6.5-to-7.25 rate over the last decade.

B.C. Tel's earnings have been below these levels. Company earnings were 6.44 per cent of invested capital in 1968 and 6.28 per cent in 1963.

The board, a federal agency empowered to regulate the level of earnings of B.C. Tel, is considering the basis on which the company's permissive level of earnings may be authorized.

Telephone rates are not at issue, but the board is considering a request by the B.C. Federation of Labor that they be reviewed at the end of the hearing.

Allan Bryce, B.C. Tel's director of revenue requirements, told the board the company's gross investment in telephone plants throughout the province stood at $412,870,000 at Aug. 31 this year, compared with $217,952,000 at the end of 1958 and $393,360,000 at the end of 1964.

MARKET SUMMARIES

A.T. and T. Hits Low On News of Probe

American Telephone and Telegraph broke to a new low on Wall Street today following news of a U.S. government investigation of its rates.

AT & T, the most widely-held stock of all, was down about 1½ and was pacing the big board on vloume.

Others of the biggest stocks on the New York exchange, followed "Telephone's" example. General Motors sank a full point, Standard Oil (New Jersey) almost a point.

Prices were mixed in trading today at Toronto.

AT NEW YORK as the list backed away from two days of historic highs, many of the glamor stoocks in television, electronics, office equipment and aerospace took fairly sharp losses.

Xerox dropped 4, Texas Instruments 3, Polaroid and Magnavox about 2 each, Zenith and Boeing about a point.

Eastern Airlines held a 2-point gain while lossses of a point or so were shown by National Airlines and KLM Airlines.

AT TORONTO CPR led the advance with a gain of ¾ to 70½ while National Drug was up the same amount to 13¾. Bank of Montreal tacked on ½ to 61¾ while Inglis and Imperial Oil were ahead ⅜ each to 8⅜ and 54⅝.

MacMillan, Bloedel was off ⅝ to a 1965 low of 26¾ and Algoma Steel ⅝ to 63¾.

Pine Point declined ½ to 85½ and Rio Algom ¼ to 19½ as base metals moved lower. Falconbridge maintained a gain of 1¼ at a record 112.

AT MONTREAL industrials were up but most other sections declined fractionally in active trading. Utilities were off. Trans-Mountain Pipe Line dropped ¾ to 19 and Bell Telephone ⅛ to 70½.

AT LONDON the market was quiet but firm although business was selective. Gilt-edged shares were better with interest centred on the medium and short-dated issues.

Dollar stocks were firm, reflecting Wall Street's tone overnight, and leading Canadians to advance included Abitibi, Algoma, Aluminium, BA Oil, Hollinger, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, International Nickel and Brazil Traction.

AT VANCOUVER Consolidated Mining and Smelting hit a 1965 high on the industrial section of the Vancouver stock exchange before noon today rising .50 to $50 on 2,288 shares.

MacMillan, Bloedel dropped $1 to a 1965 low of $26.50.

In the mines, Ace rose .05 to .33 and Silver Standard put on .03 to $1.08. Utica gained .05 to $1.65 and Mt. Pleasant dipped to a 1965 low of .85, dropping .15. Lornex was off 10 to $1.25.

Japan Sets Deadline On Coal Deal

FERNIE (CP)—Japanese interests have given Crows Nest Industries Ltd. a February deadline to quote a price on 2,000,000 tons of coal a year.

W. R. Prentice, Crows Nest vice-president, said confirmation of coal requirements from the company's newly-discovered Balmer seam came in a letter from S. Furuyam, spokesman for eight steel mills.

The company has said new methods applied to mining and rail transportation can reduce costs sufficiently to make it possible to ship coal to Japan without the help of the present Canadian government subsidy of $2.73 a ton.

"This subsidy has filled an interim need for the coal industry in Western Canada but it now is limiting growth to a level which is inconsistent with Canadian export goals," said Mr. Prentice.

"The Japanese want 2,000,000 tons of coal. The government is prepared to subsidize a maximum of 800,000 tons a year from all western mines.

"Obviously if we want to fill our order we have to get costs down to a level where we don't need a subsidy. And that's what we are going to do."

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—November rapeseed jumped 15 cents in early trade and was at the high near the close today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Rapeseed advances were attributed to light hedging sales.

Flax was ahead two cents or more, stimulated by rapeseed advances and a firm Chicago soybean market.

Oats and barley were firm in light domestic trade. There was some shipping demand.

Rye edged higher, reflecting a steady Chicago market and a modest sale to Japan.

Arthur Mayse

It occurred to me on Wednesday that the sight of four election candidates pitching to a bunch of university students might be edifying, so a little before 1 p.m., I set out by way of Douglas Street to observe the confrontation.

The afternoon drizzle hadn't yet started, but the clouds sat low. Frowned on by that lowering sky, the student marchers when they hove into view on Pandora looked far from home and slightly forlorn under their banners, like a children's crusade which has been too long on the road.

This, of course, was a sentimental delusion. Crusaders of a sort they were indeed; but they'd walked only a few blocks from the buses that disgorged them, and were obviously enjoying their outing.

I hooked on, well back in the lines, and after sharing the exquisite pleasure of crossing Douglas under safe conduct from a motorcycle officer in one of those popskull Japanese helmets, arrived presently at the McPherson Playhouse.

There, with a minimum of goring by placards that demanded reduced tuition fees or no fees at all, the students deployed as if by instinct toward the balconies, which were much too small to accommodate more than a portion of their number.

The leftovers comfortably filled the main floor and the boxes, offering in total an audience of present and future voters to flutter a politician's heart.

★ ★ ★

I would like to be able to report that the undergraduates got as good as they dispensed, which was a close and generally courteous hearing.

However, the impression that reached me where I lurked among the beards, duffle coats and horsy-smelling corduroys, was that they were receiving more words than substance.

What the candidates did manage to do, by a singular set of verbal gymnastics, was fail to come within a country mile of the direct, explicit question of fees, which their audience found oppressively high.

(After all, it was to seek senior opinion from the federal aspirants that the young people had cut a lecture!)

If they propose to deal much with youth, I think Mr. Brereton, Mr. Groos, Mr. Hunter and Mr. Waite must offer better fare than they did on Wednesday.

What the students wanted was honest bread; what they got, if not a stone, was something damned flinty.

Since the candidates' discourses are covered in our news columns, I will content myself with a single note:—"Nobody saying anything that matters."

★ ★ ★

Their part played, the candidates departed to address a meeting of the Silver Threads Association, whose members are at least 40 years past minimum voting age.

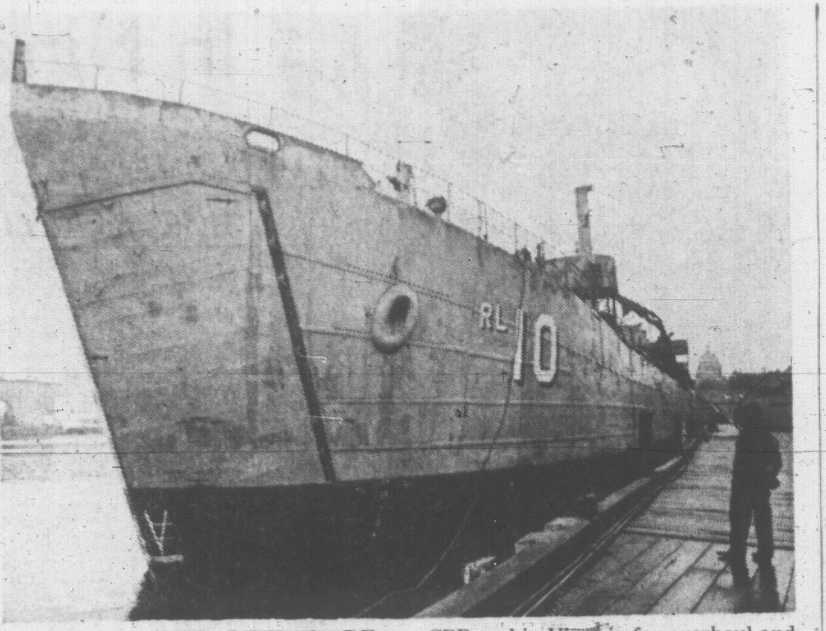
The meeting then got down to business, with well-liked registrar Ronald Jeffels — a self-styled political eunuch—stressing the need for an educational revolution in Canada.

Finally came Alma Mater Society oil president Paul Williamson, bearded like a junior apostle, to point out with the humility of which the young are sometimes capable, that "we don't claim to have all the answers."

As a start in their bid for fee adjustment, he suggested that student delegates urge the provincial government to regard this as a peak year, and next year, drop tuition charges by $56, the amount of the 1965 fall raise.

Outside, I was swept along in a group which included a beard or two, and a small, fierce girl in black Cossack boots. The pole this splinter party carried through the mournful drizzle had fixed to it a picture frame with no picture.

In view of the four no-content policy speeches to which those undergrads had listened, I found that abstract mighty significant.



LOOKING MORE LIKE A DESTROYER than a Landing Ship Tank, this Second World War veteran is awaiting transformation to a trailer transport. Purchased by the CPR and in Victoria for overhaul and refit, the vessel will eventually go into service between Sidney and Vancouver. It will carry 34 trailers. It has been berthed at Portland since the end of the war.

CPR to Bypass B.C. Ferries

Railroad Buys War Vessel For Sidney-Vancouver Run

Canadian Pacific Railways will soon quit using B.C. ferries to transport road trailers between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

The company Wednesday confirmed the purchase of a Second World War landing ship to inaugurate a new freight run between Sidney and Vancouver.

The ship, now in Victoria for conversion and overhaul work at McKay Cormack Ltd., is expected to be in service this year.

It will carry 34 trailers on its once-a-day round trip between the Washington State Ferry slip in Sidney and the Princess of Vancouver berth in downtown Vancouver.

Company officials said this morning that the transport would carry all CPR trailers plus any private trailers wishing to use the service.

Present fares for drop-trailers using B.C. Ferries are $35 less 30 per cent for a one-way trip. The 30 per cent discount is applicable only to trailer operators who spend $1,000 over a 60-day period.

"What happens is that a trailer operator using the ferries buys a $1,000 script from us," said Ron Worley, assistant manager of the Ferry Authority. "If it is used within 60 days he only pays $700 for it."

EARLY HOURS

The CPR has not indicated what its rates will be for private operators wishing to use the new service.

Present plans call for the vessel to leave Sidney in the early hours of the morning and return from Vancouver on a late night run.

The one-way trip is expected to take approximately 4½ hours.

The 328-foot vessel has been anchored in fresh water at Portland since the end of the war.

B.C. Ferry officials said it would be impossible to comment on the effect the new service would have on the government system until CPR announced its rates.

But they indicated that they were not perturbed by the move.

DEFICIT CUT

Art Gallery Membership Sets Mark

Greater Victoria Art Gallery broke two records in the past year.

More pieces of art were added to the permanent collection than ever before, bringing the total number of pieces to 148.

And membership increased by 131, greater than at any other time.

Total membership now stands at 1,718.

At the annual meeting Wednesday night, members were told that a $5,000 deficit earlier in the year had now been reduced to $300.

Operating costs ran to $38,065 while revenue amounted to $37,760.

The gallery's endowment fund jumped from $47,800 to $84,400 as a result of a bequest from Katherin McEwen.

George Maycock was elected to replace retiring president Brian Tobin. Three new members, Gordon Brown, Jack Lort and Jack Wilson were elected to the board.

Re-elected for two-year terms were Roderick Clack, Dr. R. M. Lane, Clare Copeland, Miss Olive Heritage, Kenneth Scace, Mrs. H. R. Turner and Brian Tobin.

The Second World War interrupted the chief's service.

SAILOR SEEKS DISCHARGE, FINDS JAIL

William Watt, a 20-year-old sailor, decided early today that he wanted to speed up his discharge from the navy.

To bring this to the attention of naval authorities he decided to push a policeman around, he said in court today.

"Do you mean to tell me you would resort to assault just to get out of the navy?" asked Magistrate William Ostler. "Yes," was the reply.

'In that case," said Magistrate Ostler, "I'll assist you."

He sentenced Watt to two months in prison for obstructing a policeman who was attempting to arrest a companion of Watt's for intoxication.

"I've really nothing against policemen," said Watt. "They are fine fellows."

ADMIRAL PASSES

Chin-Ups Give Navy Big Trouble

The Navy is having trouble with its chin-ups.

So, for that matter, are many in the army and air force.

This is the word from HMCS Naden, where all service personnel of the Pacific Command are now taking compulsory physical fitness tests.

And of the 3,750 who have taken the tests so far about 21 per cent have failed them.

Chin-ups are giving them the most trouble it is reported.

Personnel who have acquitted themselves well on the tests include Rear Admiral M. G. Stirling, flag officer of the Pacific Coast, who is reported to have passed "with flying colors."

The tests are divided according to age:

Under 30—seven chin-ups in two minutes, 35 sit-ups in 2 minutes, and running 600 yards in 145 seconds.

Between 30 and 39—five chin-ups in two minutes, 28 sit-ups in two minutes, and running 600 yards in 154 seconds.

Forty and over—four chin-ups in two minutes, 21 sit-ups in two minutes and running 300 yards in 71 seconds.

And flunking them doesn't mean you're home free. Physical fitness classes for persons who fail the tests are compulsory until they manager to struggle through again.

Testing the remainder of the 5,000 personnel will end early next month.

Woman Admits Shoplifting For Two Years

A 57-year-old woman admitted in police court today that she has been successfully stealing from department stores since 1963.

"A frank admission such as this is rather unusual," said Magistrate William Ostler.

He remanded Mrs. Cecelia Joos, 8 Gorge Road West, to Nov. 4 for pre-sentence reports.

She appeared in court and pleaded guilty to stealing $11.83 worth of goods from a department store last Monday.

She has no previous shoplifting convictions but readily admitted she has been stealing from department stores since 1963.

The articles Mrs. Joos admitted stealing Monday included pillow cases, a calendar, a coin-holder, crayons, mixed nuts, spray starch and a pound of butter.

First B.C. Steel Mill Hinted by U.K. Visit

Loffmark Ducks Queries on Talks

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The provincial government's years-old dream of a steel mill for B.C. may be realized soon — by British interests.

But Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark, who knows the answer, today sidestepped all questions on the possibility raised by his sudden and unscheduled recall to London, Eng., last week while on a B.C. trade mission in Germany.

"There were three transactions that suddenly became pressing and couldn't be handled by correspondence," he said today when asked for the explanation.

He said he saw numerous top British investment and industrial leaders including "several in the iron and steel industry that are very much interested in two proposals we have in respect of the iron and steel industrial protential here."

Aske if one of the B.C. proposals involve establishment of a blast furnace and steel-making mill, Mr. Loffmark said.

"No comment.

"I cannot talk about it because, although the government initiates these feasibility studies and puts up proposals, it is the private companies that must decide whether they will carry them out.

CHOOSING SITES

"There are many things involved for the companies including such things as choosing of sites, purchase of real estate and so on, and I don't think I should comment when it might embarrass their plans."

Mr. Loffmark said his London trip included private talks with Lord Amorey, governing director of the Hudson's Bay Company, which has been urged to shift its headquarters from London to Vancouver.

The possibility is known to be under study as a result of recent restrictions on overseas business operations by the British government in its moves to bolster the pound sterling.

NO COMMENT

Asked if HBC will make the shift, Mr. Loffmark smiled broadly again and repeated "no comment."

He also saw Lord Tweedsmuir, who heads various ventures involved in B.C. and was one of the directors of the Wenner-Gren Peace River Power Corporation taken over by the provincial government in a controversial and litigation-bedevilled move.

"I got no indication that he has anything but the highest goodwill for B.C. and his continuing interest in the province is very positive," replied the trade minister when asked if all had been forgiven.

Other persons seen by Mr. Loffmark in London included the Duke of Devonshire who has undisclosed interests in B.C. and plans new ones, as well as officials of the Hambro Bank which has substantial investments in B.C. mines.

He said he was not at liberty to disclose the subjects discussed but indicated they involved more heavy investments in B.C. which, he pointed out, appeared to be the prospective trend from all British interests generally.

"I also saw Lord Thomson of Fleet (a Canadian) to obtain his advice about current developments on the British scene and he was very helpful," said Mr. Loffmark.

Regarding the 18-man B.C trade mission itself, he said various businessmen in the group concluded contracts for sale of B.C. foodstuffs and chemicals but he would not elaborate.

"We found that there is a fantastic market in Europe for B.C. fish and canned foods of all kinds and a good market for basic chemical products of all types," he said.

CREW SAFE

Little Salvage Expected From Wreck

The crew of the wrecked Greek freighter Katerini G. have been removed to the safety of the United States naval base at Adak, Alaska.

Rescue operations took place Wednesday afternoon and evening after slackening winds made it possible for rescue craft to get close to Great Sitkin Island and the beached freighter.

Half of the 40-man crew had remained on board, the other half had scrambled ashore to spend 24 hours huddled around driftwood fires as waves continued to pound the stricken ship.

The Victoria-based Sudbury II salvage vessel remains in the area to complete a detailed examination of the freighter to see "what, if anything, can be salvaged," said Gordon Elworthy of Island Tug and Barge.

When the Ekaterini was driven ashore by gale force winds after her tow-cable snapped she was ripped from bow to midships by the rocks.

"It doesn't look good, but we shall remain up there until we find out for sure just what is salvageable," Mr. Elworthy said this morning.

The Sudbury II made a 2,400-mile trip to reach the Ekaterini but arrived too late to be of assistance. She had bucked heavy gales the entire distance.

Ald. Toone Makes Resignation Official

Ald. A. W. Toone made his year-end resignation from Victoria city council official today. He gave written notice to the mayor and council that he intends to quit his two-year term half way in order to be a candidate for mayor in December.

Scuffle Over Car Passing Ends In $35 Assault Fine

People who think other motorists drive outrageously usually drive outrageously themselves when they attempt to follow the offending vehicle, Magistrate William Ostler said today.

Malcolm Bibby of View Royal was fined $35 for assaulting another motorist in a discussion which followed an incident in which Bibby's car was forced into a lane of oncoming traffic.

Court was told Bibby was overtaking a vehicle on the Old Island Highway when the vehicle turned sharply in front of him, forcing him into the opposite lane.

He followed the car and forced it to a stop where the discussion with the other driver took place.

"This is a classic case of two wrongs don't make a right," said Magistrate Ostler.

Halloween Ghosts To Walk Saturday

Any witches, goblins, ghosts and black cats caught walking abroad next Sunday night will at best feel out of place.

Oct. 31 is Halloween, but it is also a Sunday. When Halloween falls on a Sunday Victoria's once-a-year night people do their black deeds the night before.

At least they always have; the last four times Oct. 31 has been a Sunday, in 1954, 1948, 1943 and 1937, public and private Halloween observances ended Saturday night.

A weeknight Halloween is celebrated when it falls. But something about Halloween and Sunday don't mix.

Trickers and treaters are reported begging to go out as an elephant one night and a witch the next. Very cunning, children.

But by Sunday night you can be sure the treats will be all gone — and the police won't sit still for any tricks.

And speaking of police, they want to remind Halloweeners that there is an area-wide ban in Greater Victoria this year on firecrackers.

Non - explosive fireworks may be purchased and used on private property but the type that go bang in the night may only be fired by groups or organizations under permit—and they must buy their ammunition elsewhere.

Smugglers who attempt to run in firecrackers from areas outside Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich and anyone who uses their contraband, will face prosecution.

TOPICS of the DAY

United Appeal total for today is $253,659—57.7 per cent of the goal.

But with only two more days to go before the official end of the 1965 fund drive, the picture doesn't look too bright.

An urgent request to all canvassers in the business division was sent out Wednesday by campaign chairman Hershell A. Smith.

"The next few days are the critical ones," he said.

Obstructing a policeman at the scene of an accident Wednesday cost Arthur K. Fisher $100 when he appeared in police court today.

Court was told Fisher, an occupant of one of the cars involved in the accident, insisted on arranging to pry the vehicles apart after the drivers had ordered a tow truck to do the job.

He was arrested when he refused to leave the centre of the intersection of Blanshard and Broughton.

Ask The Times

Q. Is carbon classified as vegetable or mineral? C.O.

A. Both. And you can add animal to the list too. Carbon is a major constituent of every living thing, says a Uvic professor. It exists in organic materials such as plants (vegetable) and humans (animal) and in inorganic materials such as diamonds (mineral).

Q. As newcomers to your lovely city, we two "oldsters" would like to know where you apply for a marriage licence, what the fee is and what the waiting period is? M.H.

A. You apply at the vital statistics office in the Parliament Buildings. Three full days before the ceremony is the minimum waiting period and the fee is $5.

Q. Is there any place on Vancouver Island where one can go surfing? I. B.

A. Best place, says a local SCUBA outfitter, is Long Beach—but you'll need a wet-suit to keep warm. There you can pick up 15-foot breakers from half a mile out from shore.

Other places are Pachena Bay near Bamfield and China Beach, near Jordan River.

4,000 A MONTH

Refugee Pact By Cuba, U.S.

HAVANA (CP)—Premier Fidel Castro today cut off the sea exodus of Cubans from the port of Camarico as a prelude to a U.S.-Cuban agreement to bring 3,000 to 4,000 refugees a month to the United States by air.

(In Key West, Fla., a U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said hundreds of Cubans have set sail for Florida despite bad weather. Waves 10 feet high were reported in the Florida Straits which separate Cuba and the U.S.)

The agreement is expected to be announced in Washington and Havana Friday.

The announcement cutting off the Camarioca exodus at midnight tonight came after a post-midnight meeting between Castro and Emil Stadelhofer, the Swiss ambassador to Havana.

The Swiss embassy represents U.S. interests in Cuba. Stadelhofer returned Wednesday from conferences in Washington.

Informed sources said the agreement calls for Cubans with relatives in the United States to be flown from Varadero airport, 85 miles east of Havana.

American planes — probably two a day carrying fewer than 100 persons each—will make the flights to airports in Florida, the sources said.

More than 3,000 refugees have sailed across the Florida Straits since Castro announced his open door policy earlier this month. They sailed in small boats piloted by their relatives in the United States.

Canada, U.S. Forest Pact 'In Works'

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP) — Negotiations for a Canada-U.S. forest products pact similar to the automobile agreement will begin after the Nov. 8 federal election, Jack Davis, Liberal candidate in Coast-Capilano, said Wednesday.

Mr. Davis, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Pearson in the last parliament, said the pact is "definitely in the works."

"It is being actively explored on both sides of the border," he told an all-candidates meeting of this logging community 40 miles north of Vancouver.

"Right now there are no formal discussions but I would expect negotiations to be initiated right after the election."

Mr. Davis said a forest products pact would mean British Columbia would be able to send not only newsprint and pulp to the U.S., but more manufactured paper products, particularly fine papers.

'MADE UP LOST GROUND FOR RHODESIA'

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said today remarks Tuesday night by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, "more than made up lost ground for Rhodesia."

He referred to Dr. Ramsey's speech to the British Council of Churches in which the Anglican primate said Christians should support the use of British force in Rhodesia if the British government decided it was necessary.

His comments provoked a storm of criticism.

"I suppose I must be grateful for the worthy gentleman's remarks," Smith said today. "I gather we lost a little bit of ground when we restricted former prime minister Mr. Garfield Todd. Now we have more than made up for the lost ground."

Hopes Dim For Agreement On Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters)—British Prime Minister Wilson lunched today with Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia and the British leader prepared to meet later with the colony's two African nationalist heads.

It was the third meeting between the two key figures in the protracted Rhodesian crisis precipitated by Smith's threat to declare independence unilaterally and Britain's counter-threat of economic retaliation.

(In London the British cabinet met as hopes for the success of Wilson's mission dwindled. Informed sources said it appeared almost certain that Wilson would return Saturday without making any progress in his negotiations with Smith.)

Earlier today, Smith continued meetings with his cabinet while Wilson received a 26-man delegation of the provincial council of chiefs representing Rhodesia's 208 African chiefs and 400 headmen.

The council claims to represent the majority of the country's 4,000,000 Negro population, in opposition to the claims of African nationalist leaders Joshua Nkomo and Rev. Ndabanidni Sithole.

Wilson met the two Wednesday while Negroes staged demonstrations in the capital, and scheduled further talks with them today.

WON'T MEET LEADERS

After a 3½-hour meeting with his cabinet, Smith told reporters he would not sit around a table with Nkomo and Sithole. At an impromptu press conference on the doorstep of his office, he said: "Our position is quite clear on this. We have said on many occasions that we can't sit around a table with these people.

'FIRST RETREAT IN CAMPAIGN'

By IAN MacDONALD
Ottawa Bureau Staff Writer

TORONTO — Bandsmen in bright red uniforms blared out "Put On a Happy Smile."

Prime Minister Pearson threaded his way towards a platform through an estimated 14,000 people gathered in the world's largest covered shopping plaza.

A girl cleared her throat in readiness to sing O Canada.

A party spokesman leaned into the microphone to make the opening announcement.

There was silence.

In unbelieving horror, David Greenspan tapped the mikes and made another try.

Nothing.

And from that moment on—about 8:08 p.m.—developed the wildest, and most certainly, wackiest meeting of the campaign.

WOMEN FAINTED

There was noise, confusion, chaos, heat, fainting women, a handful of chanting, bearded peaceniks, pushing and waving placards, bands blaring in competition, a lone but loud piper, screaming cheer leaders, and some very confused people who had only come to Yorkdale Plaza to shop.

Some Liberal officials wore tight-lipped smiles, while others had end-of-the-world looks.

But Pearson kept a happy, if perspiring, face.

His big show Wednesday night in the modern, multi-million dollar setting had been let down by a simple electronics failure.

He didn't get mad; he didn't quit and he didn't lay blame.

He went down into the milling mob to shake hands, surrounded by plainclothes police who were almost swamped by the excited crowd.

PEOPLE CRUSHED

The people had come to see and hear Pearson—his planned speech was only to have lasted about 12 minutes and was a "let's-go-out-and-win" thing.

But nothing went right. He made three attempts to speak to the crowd through a hand

ANOTHER VOTE NEXT YEAR?

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said today that if the Liberals don't win a majority in the Nov. 8 election there will be another election next year.

He made the statement as an off-the-cuff remark to workers in the campaign headquarters of David Hahn, Liberal candidate in Toronto Broadview.

He said the Liberals are the only party with a chance to win a majority.

"There will be another election next year if we don't," he said.

Four U.S. Spacemen To Try Rendezvous

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two U.S. astronauts will blast off into orbit in December, and two more spacemen will try to rendezvous with them about 10 days later, it was learned today.

Leading off will be Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, who are scheduled to take off from Cape Kennedy on Dec. 8 on a record 14-day, 209-orbit journey around earth.

If all goes well, Gemini 6 pilots Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford, grounded earlier this week in the nation's first attempt at a "chase in space," will be launched from the same Cape Kennedy firing pad, to try to catch up with their buddies.

The two spaceships will attempt to manoeuvre within a few feet of each other. There will be no space-walking in this flight.

Tory Strength 'Fantastically Low'

By PETER REGENSTREIF

VANCOUVER—A precipitate decline of Conservative strength is the major development of the electoral battle in British Columbia.

From the vantage point of 1965, it is extremely difficult to recall that it was here in this city of Vancouver that John Diefenbaker first really caught fire in 1958.

"Follow John" was his slogan then and so powerful was his appeal that the only opposition remaining after the dust had settled across the province was a lonely four CCFers from hard-core working-class areas.

Conservative fortunes have waned with each successive election since then and by now they have plummeted to a fantastic low.

Diefenbaker is almost no longer even an issue. He is simply out of the running. If Pearson could exert any sort of a personal attraction here, that would settle the question and the Liberals would be pulling away. They are not.

The major element in Liberal favor is prosperity. British Columbia is booming. While the Social Credit provincial administration of Premier Bennett gets some credit, the federal government gets its share too.

What originally damaged Diefenbaker here in 1962 was unemployment. The electorate still remembers and this also hurts Tory chances. The new pension plan also helps the Liberals.

As a 52-year-old draftsman in Vancouver Quadra put it: "I'd vote Conservative right off the bat if it weren't for Diefenbaker. But, you know, I may be voting Liberal because if the Conservatives get back in, they might upset this pension thing. That's one big point. And things are very good now. That's another issue for you."

In Burnaby-Richmond, a first-time voter briefly analyzed his Liberal intentions as follows: "I think they've done a lot for the country as far as unemployment is concerned."

However, with Douglas and Thompson running ahead of

'Escalation' Clause in Pact

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian wheat board today announced a three-year agreement with China for the sale of at least 112,000,000 bushels of wheat starting next Aug. 1, and added it may be renegotiated for much as 466,000,000 bushels over a five-year term.

The announcement was timed to coincide with the arrival here of Trade Minister Sharp, who said its value could range from a minimum of $200,000,000 in three years to $900,000,000 if the maximum five-year deal is worked out.

"On this basis," said the trade minister, "this would be the largest single wheat agreement ever concluded by the Canadian wheat board."

PLAN MORE TALKS

The board statement said the immediate agreement, signed earlier in Montreal, is for a minimum of 112,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 186,700,000 bushels over a three-year period beginning Aug. 1, 1966. Specific quantities, prices and shipping periods are to be negotiated periodically.

Before next May 1, however, "consideration will ge given" to two alternatives:

1. Increasing the quantity of the three-year agreement to a minimum of 168,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 280,000,000 bushels;

2. Extending the agreement to five years, involving a a minimum of 280,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 466,000,000 bushels.

Terms are similar to that in the current three-year agreement, expiring next July 31, under which China already has ordered the maximum 187,000,000 bushels worth about $336,000,000.

They call for 25 per cent cash at the time of loading with the balance in 18 months, with interest.

EXPECTS BIG SALE

Mr. Sharp's statement said past experience with the Chinese indicates quantities purchased will be "closer to the maximum figure" allowed in the contract.

The deferred-payment provision was made possible by a Canadian government guarantee to the wheat board.

"A revolving credit level of over $200,000,000 was required to facilitate this agreement and the government was pleased to provide the necessary credit guarantee which makes this business possible."

Coinciding with the deal, the annual export limit of "sensitive items" to Canada from China is increased to $10,000,000 from $7,000,000.

Said the minister:

"The Chinese corporation discussed with me their efforts to maintain and develop their market in Canada for various items. It is of course in our mutual interest to provide them with an opportunity to do so, subject to appropriate safeguards to avoid market disruption and damage to Canadian producers.

PRODUCERS PROTECTED

"Canadian producers of sensitive items are protected by individual quota restrictions. These are to be determined later by agreement between the two parties."

Grades of wheat involved in the deal were not announced but bulk of the final contract under the current three-year agreement, announced July 21, was lower grades—No. 4 northern,

Maritimes Promised New Deal

Area Forgotten By Grits: Dief

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker Wednesday night emptied a bag of Maritime promises to the largest political rally held in New Brunswick in this campaign.

Close to 3,500, a few hundred less than capacity, cheered the Tory chief who was making his second foray into the Atlantic provinces.

Today he campaigns in Prince Edward Island, the only province which he has not yet visited.

On the eve of Diefenbaker's visit the mayors of Halifax and Dartmouth in Nova Scotia and Saint John and Fredericton in New Brunswick released the text of a letter they had sent in August to Industry Minister Charles Drury asking that their areas be given 90 per cent of grants available to designated areas.

Diefenbaker said the Liberals had discriminated against the Maritimes and a Tory government would designate all the four areas so they could get the full grant.

"FORGOT MARITIMES"

"What was the attitude of the Liberals for 22 years?" he asked.

"They forgot that the Maritimes existed. We acted."

A Conservative government would:

● Restore shipbuilding subsidies which the government has frozen for several months.

● Revamp the Atlantic Development Board and provide necessary funds to continue its work. (The Liberals gave the fund $100 million.)

● A special case would be made for Maritime universities where the number of student per population was far higher than in the rest of Canada.

● Make a full and careful study of the long-suffering Chignecto Canal project and promote plans for the Bay of Fundy tidal power project.

NATIONAL SYMBOLS

And deep in red ensign territory he again scored the government for whittling away at national symbols.

Not one new flag was in the hall and the crowd roared approval when Diefenbaker said: "I am not ashamed of the stand I took on that issue."

One of the first things a Tory government would do would be to remove any reference of the off-shore mineral rights ques-

WE WERE RIDING ALONG . . . . . . WHILE DINNER COOKED

Lift the Hood, Mother, the Roast Is Done

By DOROTHY CRANDALL
Boston Globe Food Editor

BOSTON (AP)—Chalk one up for women drivers: They are cooking under the hood of the car, with the youngsters in the back seat and the wheel rolling.

"Forget about the oil, just check the roast," one pioneer chef told her filling station attendant. Sure enough there it was, a foil-wrapped package riding on the exhaust manifold, hottest spot under the hood.

We tried it, following the lead of Norma Bidwell, Canadian housewife who has been roasting-while-rolling all summer. Mrs. Bidwell, food editor of the Hamilton Spectator, said:

"My husband scoffed the first time I handed him a three - pound foil wrapped package of raw meat and said, "we'll cook it under the hood."

"But 10 minutes after we arrived at the cottage the six of us were munching happily on hot roast beef sandwiches with tender-crisp onions and seasoning with cook-on sauce.

The rules for road cooking: Wrap a two-to-three pound roast, not over two inches thick (for a three-hour drive) in a large sheet of extra-heavy-duty foil, fold edges together twice to make a lock seam;

Use a wire hanger to anchor the meat to the manifold;

Stop halfway to your destination to turn the roast;

Don't stop to visit with friends for your roast needs three hours driving time:

Don't try turkey.

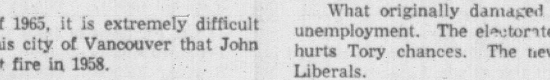
"During the early stages of a turkey's cooking, it gets bouncy. It sticks its elbows out and pushes away from the heat. You try to push it back and its sticks a drumstick through the foil."

This means trouble — like grease burning on the manifold.

In Hamilton, Mrs. Bidwell said she got the idea from an Edmonton story last May about an army chef who sizzled a beef roast on a 200-mile drive from Edmonton to Calgary.

Warrant Officer Bert Quaintance experimented with under-the-hood cooking after watching a demonstration in which a cake was baked with the heat of only three candles.

Mrs. Bidwell said she described the method at a conference of newspaper food editors in Chicago and was told it was the first new idea in cooking they had heard in years.



With some, sellin' all thet wheat t' China goes against th' grain.

New Bleaching Process Produces Whiter Paper

QUEBEC (CP)—A Toronto chemist has described a new bleaching process which he said will influence pulp and paper production throughout the world.

Dr. W. Howard Rapson, who received the R. S. Jane Medal of the Chemical Institute of Canada for his achievement, said the process is the result of 25 years of research and has been tested in three Canadian pulp mills as well as a number in the United States.

He told reporters attending a congress of Canadian chemical engineers at Laval University that the bleach, chlorine dioxide, produced a stronger and whiter paper at a lower cost than bleaches now in use.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATOR TELLS HEARING

B.C. Tel Earnings Below Average

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Telephone Company should be allowed to make a profit of between 6.5 and 7.25 per cent of invested capital, it was suggested Wednesday to the Board of Transport Commissioners.

This range was proposed by Dr. J. T. Nicholson, professor of business administration at University of Western Ontario, who said this would give B.C. Tel permissive earnings in line with those of other telephone and utility companies in Canada.

He pointed out that authorization of this level of earnings would be no guarantee the company could achieve even the minimum figure.

Dr. Nicholson, who holds a doctorate in business administration from Harvard University, introduced evidence showing that the average Canadian utility company has been earning at the 6.5-to-7.25 rate over the last decade.

B.C. Tel's earnings have been below these levels: Company earnings were 6.44 per cent of invested capital in 1968 and 6.28 per cent in 1963.

The board, a federal agency empowered to regulate the level of earnings of B.C. Tel, is considering the basis on which the company's permissive level of earnings may be authorized.

Telephone rates are not at issue, but the board is considering a request by the B.C. Federation of Labor that they be reviewed at the end of the hearing.

Allan Bryce, B.C. Tel's director of revenue requirements, told the board the company's gross investment in telephone plants throughout the province stood at $412,870,000 at Aug. 31 this year, compared with $217,952,000 at the end of 1958 and $393,360,000 at the end of 1964.

MARKET SUMMARIES

A.T. and T. Hits Low On News of Probe

American Telephone and Telegraph broke to a new low on Wall Street today following news of a U.S. government investigation of its rates.

AT & T, the most widely-held stock of all, was down about 1½ and was pacing the big board on vloume.

Others of the biggest stocks on the New York exchange, followed "Telephone's" example. General Motors sank a full point, Standard Oil (New Jersey) almost a point.

Prices were mixed in trading today at Toronto.

AT NEW YORK as the list backed away from two days of historic highs, many of the glamor stoocks in television, electronics, office equipment and aerospace took fairly sharp losses.

Xerox dropped 4, Texas Instruments 3, Polaroid and Magnavox about 2 each, Zenith and Boeing about a point.

Eastern Airlines held a 2-point gain while lossses of a point or so were shown by National Airlines and KLM Airlines.

AT TORONTO CPR led the advance with a gain of ¾ to 70½ while National Drug was up the same amount to 13¾. Bank of Montreal tacked on ½ to 61¾ while Inglis and Imperial Oil were ahead ⅜ each to 8⅜ and 54⅝.

MacMillan, Bloedel was off ⅝ to a 1965 low of 26¾ and Algoma Steel ⅝ to 63¾.

Pine Point declined ½ to 85½ and Rio Algom ¼ to 19½ as base metals moved lower. Falconbridge maintained a gain of 1¼ at a record 112.

AT MONTREAL industrials were up but most other sections declined fractionally in active trading. Utilities were off. Trans-Mountain Pipe Line dropped ¾ to 19 and Bell Telephone ⅛ to 70⅛.

AT LONDON the market was quiet but firm although business was selective. Gilt-edged shares were better with interest centred on the medium and short-dated issues.

Dollar stocks were firm, reflecting Wall Street's tone overnight, and leading Canadians to advance included Abitibi, Algoma, Aluminium, BA Oil, Hollinger, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, International Nickel and Brazil Traction.

AT VANCOUVER Consolidated Mining and Smelting hit a 1965 high on the industrial section of the Vancouver stock exchange before noon today rising .50 to $50 on 2,288 shares.

MacMillan, Bloedel dropped $1 to a 1965 low of $26.50.

In the mines, Ace rose .05 to .33 and Silver Standard put on .03 to $1.08. Utica gained .05 to $1.65 and Mt. Pleasant dipped to a 1965 low of .85, dropping .15. Lornex was off 10 to $1.25.

Japan Sets Deadline On Coal Deal

FERNIE (CP)—Japanese interests have given Crows Nest Industries Ltd. a February deadline to quote a price on 2,000,000 tons of coal a year.

W. R. Prentice, Crows Nest vice-president, said confirmation of coal requirements from the company's newly-discovered Balmer seam came in a letter from S. Furuyam, spokesman for eight steel mills.

The company has said new methods applied to mining and rail transportation can reduce costs sufficiently to make it possible to ship coal to Japan without the help of the present Canadian government subsidy of $2.73 a ton.

"This subsidy has filled an interim need for the coal industry in Western Canada but it now is limiting growth to a level which is inconsistent with Canadian export goals," said Mr. Prentice.

"The Japanese want 2,000,000 tons of coal. The government is prepared to subsidize a maximum of 800,000 tons a year from all western mines.

"Obviously if we want to fill our order we have to get costs down to a level where we don't need a subsidy. And that's what we are going to do."

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—November rapeseed jumped 15 cents in early trade and was at the high near the close today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Rapeseed advances were attributed to light hedging sales.

Flax was ahead two cents or more, stimulated by rapeseed advances and a firm Chicago soybean market.

Oats and barley were firm in light domestic trade. There was some shipping demand.

Rye edged higher, reflecting a steady Chicago market and a modest sale to Japan.

SENIOR CITIZENS WOOED

Talks Show Promise At All-Party Rally

An audience of 250 pensioners got plenty of promises from potential MPs Wednesday at an all-candidates meeting in the Senior Citizens Activity Centre.

Only one candidate didn't make a specific promise aimed at older persons.

Mrs. Vera Pipes (Social Credit, Esquimalt-Saanich) drew applause when she said:

"Principles are more important than promises. These promises on both sides — they are only promises.

"The country must be put in a solid position before these things can happen."

Eight of the nine candidates in Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich spoke for five minutes each. Frank Hunter (Social Credit, Victoria) had to leave the meeting for another engagement.

By party, the promises were:

Liberal: Universal medicare without premiums covering doctors' bills and pensions of more than $75 a month where need exists;

Progressive Conservative: Pensions increased to $100 a month for everyone over 65;

New Democratic Party: Pensions of $100 a month at 65 tied to the cost of living; nursing home care and ambulance service under hospitalization; medicare including drug coverage; adequate housing for senior citizens.

Communist candidate W. S. E. Morrison said his party has favored pensions of $125 a month for the last 15 years.

One questioner asked why the government wasn't working on medicare now rather than having an election.

James Gorst (Liberal, Esquimalt-Saanich) received boos when he said majority government is necessary to put through medicare.

Another questioner asked David Groos (Liberal, Victoria) why the government "saw us practically starve to death" with rising food prices.

The MP in the last Parliament said price control would require major legislation, and such a move would need majority government.

Four of the eight candidates who spoke addressed themselves to problems other than those involving welfare measures for senior citizens.

Len Stephenson (NDP, Esquimalt-Saanich) called for removal of nuclear warheads from Canada and placing the country's armed forces at the service of the United Nations.

Mrs. Pipes sought a "fair share" for British Columbia, saying the province is discriminated against in customs duties, railways and ferries.

J. Lloyd Brereton (NDP, Victoria) said it is "no use considering medicare or pensions if we're going to be blown to smithereens" and called for a more effective foreign policy.

And Mr. Morrison introduced a three-point platform calling for a neutral foreign policy; control by society of automation, and a new constitution guaranteeing equal treatment for French Canada.

Court Told Of Problem With Drink

A man ended up in central court as a result of what his lawyer described as a "drinking problem."

Leslie Verhaag, 1277 Oscar, pleaded guilty to false pretences and obtaining lodgings by fraud. He was remanded for a pre-sentence report.

Evidence was that he checked into a city hotel, stayed two days and left without paying the bill. He also obtained clothes by means of a worthless cheque.

His lawyer, Dermod Owen-Flood, said Verhaag, who has a drinking problem, registered in the hotel while under the influence of liquor.

TORY CANDIDATE in the Nova Scotia riding of Digby-Annapolis-Kings, J. Patrick Nowlan, will be trying to win the seat left vacant by the death of his father, George Nowlan. The 35-year-old lawyer will be running against Liberal John E. Shaffner who was defeated in 1963 by only 416 votes.

Only One Pelletier Now on List

OTTAWA (CP)—A potential point of confusion for voters in Montreal's Hochelaga constituency was cleared away Wednesday when one of the two Gerard Pelletiers withdrew as a candidate for the Nov. 8 federal election.

Printer Gerard Pelletier had paid his $200 nomination deposit and listed himself as an independent Liberal candidate. The other Gerard Pelletier, former editor of Montreal La Presse, is the official Liberal candidate in the riding.

Wilfred Anthony Teevens, independent candidate in Toronto St. Paul's, also withdrew Wednesday.

The two pull-outs came early enough after Monday's nomination day so that the names will not appear on ballots in the ridings on voting day.

The withdrawal in Hochelaga leaves Liberal, Progressive Conservative, New Democrat and Creditiste candidates in the running. In St. Paul's, the fight was reduced to a three-way one between the Liberals, Conservatives and NDP.

Each man loses his $200 deposit and the cancellations left the total number of candidates listed for the election at 1,011. Three of the 1,023 candidates nominated for the last federal election in 1963 pulled out between nomination day and voting day.

Ad Ban Threat To All Parties, Says Douglas

By MICHAEL GILLAN

HAMILTON (CP)—NDP Leader T. C. Douglas charged Wednesday night that his party has been denied freedom of speech for attacking Canada's large commercial interests. He said the issue poses a threat to all political parties.

Speaking to about 2,000 supporters in the Palace Theatre, Mr. Douglas criticized at length the private CTV network for refusing to broadcast a paid advertisement dealing with what he called misleading advertising.

The network decision, he said, had "effectively" prevented his party from showing the advertisement on the only Canadian network allowed to sell political advertising time.

(The publicly-owned CBC provides free network time to the federal parties but accepts no paid political advertising.)

"If these vast agencies of the mass media can refuse to let us present this issue, what prevents them from denying us—or some other party—the right to present any other issue which the rulers of the mass media decide should be kept from the Canadian public?" Mr. Douglas asked.

WANTS ACCOUNTING

He also said that campaign contributions are at the root of political scandal and called for a complete disclosure of money contributions to political parties.

He said the public has a right to know the sources of money so it can judge who is receiving "special handouts."

Mr. Douglas spoke in the riding of Hamilton South, held by Dr. William Howe for the NDP in the last Parliament. Candidates and supporters from three other federal ridings in the Hamilton are also were there.

Mr. Douglas' wife, who began travelling with her husband in the campaign only this week, was on the platform and will continue campaigning with him until Nov. 8.

Mr. Douglas repeated his party's policies on protecting consumers, increasing economic development and implementing a government-operated medical health care plan.

He flies today to the West Coast to speak to University of Victoria students in the afternoon and to an evening rally in the Royal Theatre.

'Others Dodging Election Issues'

REGINA (CP) — National Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson wound up his Saskatchewan campaign for the Nov. 8 federal election here Wednesday with a blast at other party leaders for dodging election issues.

He was to return to his Red Deer constituency in Alberta today.

Mr. Thompson told a party rally attended by 200 persons that majority government, election promises, and corruption in government were not election issues.

He said problems facing the Canadian people which should be discussed and are issues are federal-provincial affairs, medical care, invasion of provincial authority by the federal government, education, water resources and agricultural policies.

He spent almost one hour detailing the Social Credit stand on each of these policies at the rally.

At an afternoon press conference, he called for an inquiry into farm machinery costs at home and abroad. He said farm machinery made in Canada can be bought cheaper in France than farmers pay for it on the Prairies, and suggested it was possible the farmer is "subsidizing the manufacturer" of farm machinery so the manufacturer can sell cheaper in the international market.

On his arrival here, he spoke to about 250 university students at the University of Saskatchewan's new Regina campus.

He said two issues are whether Canada will continue to be a strong, autonomous, and independent nation and whether the rights of minorities will be protected.

'Pacific Rim Neglected By Ottawa'

TRAIL (CP)—Premier W.A.C. Bennett of British Columbia said Wednesday night that federal trade policies are designed only to protect industry in Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Bennett, addressing 850 persons at the largest political meeting held so far in southeastern B.C. during the federal election campaign, said far more attention must be paid by the federal government to the Pacific rim.

The Pacific rim, faced only by the province of B.C., offers enormous trade possibilities but is being ignored in favor of the Atlantic rim, faced by five eastern and Maritime provinces, the premier said.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

NEW YORK—Norman Taurog, who directed Susan Hart in "Dr. Goldfoot and the Bikini Machine," is so captivated by her performance and beauty, he wants her for his next big film, co-starring opposite Elvis Presley. Even Colonel Parker doesn't know this yet . . . Paddy Chayefsky's "The Goddess" will become a play . . . Look for a sweeping investigation into the mounting industrial espionage situation. Top-level thievery is going on between huge companies, with secret information, patents and plans being stolen. Many spies who have worked for the government in intelligence and counter-intelligence find this new profession even more lucrative.

Newest eligible bachelor in town for a short stay is Tariq Abdullah, son of the nationalist leader of the Kashmiri, Sheikh Abdullah. Tariq is here with the Pakistan delegation to the United Nations . . . The few people on the coast who've been shown a rough copy of "Inside Daisy Clover" did handsprings over Natalie Wood's performance, predicting she'll get all kinds of awards for it. Broadway's Robert Redford, who plays her beau, rated a few flip-flops, too . . . Citizens of the United States should hope fervently that the FBI knows exactly how many Communist infiltrators Fidel Castro is shipping into Florida while he "mercifully" (he's such a merciful fellow) permits some Cubans to be reunited with their families here.

There's a great deal of talk that guitar-playing ex-governor Jimmy Davis may be hoping to take the "ex" out of his title in the near future. At any rate, the biggest radio station in Baton Rouge is spinning Davis disks during their "Hymn of the Day" spot.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Sue Cheney, age 13, of Lansing, Mich., for her question:

What causes a blimp to operate?

Blimps are related to balloons and dirigibles and are indirectly kin to ships and floating rafts. A blimp has engines to guide it, and a balloon does not—but both stay aloft for the same reason. A power driven ship floats for the same reason that a motorless raft bobs on top of the waves.

A blimp is operated by lifting force and thrusting power. Its lifting power is a whopping bag of gas that is lighter than the surrounding air. A balloon also lifts aloft because it is filled with lighter-than-air gases. These hulls of gas rise in the air for the same reason a cork floats on top of the water. They are pushed up because they are lighter or less dense than the air or water around them. This force is called buoyancy.

A high-riding balloon must drift at the mercy of the breezes, but a blimp has engines and propellers to steer it. The pilot can turn it and keep it on course in calm weather and against gentle winds. The equipment that provides this guiding and thrusting power is in the car or gondola that hangs under the bulky, gas-filled hull. The pilot, the crew and the passengers also ride in the gondola.

The blimp is the simplest of the gas-filled airships. Its hull is merely a rubbery skin with no supports, and when the gas is removed between flights it collapses. At first it was called a limp because on the ground it is as limp as a rag. This was in the First World War when British fliers used it to bomb enemy targets. Their preferred model was the B-type limp—which quite naturally became known as the blimp.

Used to Guard Ships

The hulls of certain larger airships are supported with metal spines and nose cones. These semi-rigid types also collapse between flights. The entire hull of a huge dirigible, however, is supported with a metal skeleton. It keeps its shape whether empty or filled with lifting gas.

We all have stopped to gape at a low-flying blimp. The whole city spells out the letters of its advertising signs and watches its winking lights at night. Many of us have taken sightseeing tours in a blimp. But the duties of the bulky blimp are not limited to signs and sights. Behind the scenes, it does faithful defence patrol to protect us in both war and peacetime.

Super aircraft and anti-aircraft have made the blimp useless as a front-line soldier. It can no longer bomb cities, but it can guard ocean-going convoys. On anti-submarine patrol, it can spot enemy subs and drop depth charges to destroy them. The blimp is also used to gather weather data, and it has a glamorous role in our Early Warning system of defence.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Millie Gunn, age 10, of Pierson, Iowa, for her question:

What is gypsum?

Sometimes a deposit of gypsum is spread on the surface of the land. Chances are you would mistake it for a stretch of fine, white sand. The famous White Sands Desert of New Mexico is actually made of gypsum crystals. Gypsum is also the mineral used to make plaster of Paris. In nature, it is a white mineral so soft that you can scratch a line on it with your fingernail.

The mineral gypsum is a chemical compound of calcium and sulphur blended with generous amounts of water. In many places deposits were made when the water evaporated from ancient seas and left the salty chemicals behind. Gypsum in the ground tends to make our water hard, and mined gypsum is used to add limy fertilizer to the soil.

'Most Hung Up Generation'

By JACK HUTTON

Douglas Ward, president-elect of the Canadian Union of Students, looked down at several thousand faces before him, the intense, questioning faces of fellow students.

"This," he said quietly, "is the most hung-up generation in the history of our country."

His words, uttered at the historic teach-in earlier this month at the University of Toronto, went beyond his immediate audience to more than 100,000 students on campuses in every other province and parts of the U.S.

Millions of adults, listening on FM radio sets, also heard the message. And none who listened to even a portion of the international assembly could doubt Ward's assessment.

Revolution

The three-day meeting was intended to probe the different viewpoints behind a world of revolution. When is revolution legitimate? (Both the U.S. and Russia began with revolutions.) When is it moral to intervene, and how much effect does international law have on internal struggles?

After sitting through almost all the sessions, I felt we saw something more important than the conflict between old and new nations. We saw a mirror held up to the dilemma of a generation.

There were more than 6,000 students at the teach-in, the latest of its kind to look at foreign policy in the atmosphere of a university campus. I counted more than 1,300 students from the U.S. among them.

And you could see one question reflected in almost all of them: when does a generation speak up to protest what another generation has been doing?

The struggle was more obvious among the U.S. students.

A Canadian student might agree or disagree with his country's foreign policies. But he isn't required to serve in the military service to support them either.

Boos Deafening

The student from New York, Texas or Seattle is. And it made all the difference in how he responded at the three-day session. When he objected, the boos were deafening; when he applauded, you heard it a block away.

Mr. Ward, a young man who is obviously going to give strong leadership to on-campus students across Canada this coming year, made a point that we've repeated continually in this column.

The student generation of the 1950's, he said, was one that felt little involvement in what was happening in the world. It couldn't change things, so why react? This was the era of the true beatnik—the young person who wanted to escape from harsh realities.

It's different today. And if that upsets our elders that's too bad. The student today belongs to the 1960's generation that wants to have a voice in what will happen in the next decade.

The methods of this generation are sometimes rude. If it's the only way to be heard, you heckle. If you can't be noticed any other way, you march or hold a public rally.

These are the lessons of history. And who in the elder generation can object if this generation is just discovering them. Not only discovering them, but putting them into effect.

Seventy-seven-year-old Lord Fenner Brockway told the story that I thought went most directly to the mood of the student audience.

"When I was a young man I was privileged to have George Bernard Shaw (the Irish author) as a friend," he said. "And I remember telling him that a great many people my age wanted to do something with our lives."

"I asked him what we should do. I've never forgotten his answer.

"Shaw said young people should discover the life force behind their generation, regardless of what generation it was. Then identify yourself with it, he said, and work for it."

What is the life force behind this generation in Canada? The venerable British leader of protest for the last 50 years didn't venture to say. But anyone who attended the three-day teach-in or heard it can't help having a few guesses.

Soviet Orbits Unmanned Satellite

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union today orbited another unmanned satellite in its Cosmos space exploration series, the Soviet news agency Tass reported. Tass said the satellite, Cosmos 94, carries scientific instruments for the space exploration program announced in March, 1962.

Rail Unions Pull Out of Group

MONTREAL (CP)—Eight of the 14 non-operating railway unions which have negotiated as a group with Canadian railways since 1943 pulled out of the consortium today.

The eight unions are those of skilled trades such as plumbers, machinists, sheet metal workers, carmen, foundry and electrical workers, boilermakers and blacksmiths. They will negotiate as a group, leaving the other six to negotiate as a group.

KAMLOOPS (CP)—RCMP expressed concern today over a second theft of dynamite this week, bringing the total number of dynamite sticks stolen to 136.

Ninety-eight sticks were stolen from a Canadian National Railway storage place near Kamloops Wednesday. Thirty-six sticks were stolen from the CNR Sunday night.

MANILA (Reuters)—Police rangers were moved into potential trouble spots in the Philippines today in an effort to ensure a peaceful presidential election Nov. 9.

So far 22 deaths have been recorded from pre-election violence, although the number is less than one-quarter the 1963 mid-term elections toll.

Tory Strength In B.C. at Low

By PETER REGENSTREIF

VANCOUVER—A precipitate decline of Conservative strength is the major development of the electoral battle in British Columbia.

From the vantage point of 1965, it is extremely difficult to recall that it was here in this city of Vancouver that John Diefenbaker first really caught fire in 1958.

"Follow John" was his slogan then and so powerful was his appeal that the only opposition remaining after the dust had settled across the province was a lonely four CCFers from hard-core working-class areas.

Conservative fortunes have waned with each successive election since then and by now they have plummeted to a fantastic low.

Diefenbaker is almost no longer even an issue. He is simply out of the running. If Pearson could exert any sort of a personal attraction here, that would settle the question and the Liberals would be pulling away. They are not.

●

The major element in Liberal favor is prosperity. British Columbia is booming. While the Social Credit provincial administration of Premier Bennett gets some credit, the federal government gets its share too.

What originally damaged Diefenbaker here in 1962 was unemployment. The electorate still remembers and this also hurts Tory chances. The new pension plan also helps the Liberals.

As a 52-year-old draftsman in Vancouver Quadra put it: "I'd vote Conservative right off the bat if it weren't for Diefenbaker. But, you know, I may be voting Liberal because if the Conservatives get back in, they might upset this pension thing. That's one big point. And things are very good now. That's another issue for you."

In Burnaby-Richmond, a first-time voter briefly analyzed his Liberal intentions as follows: "I think they've done a lot for the country as far as unemployment is concerned."

However, with Douglas and Thompson running ahead of

'MADE UP LOST GROUND FOR RHODESIA'

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said today remarks Tuesday night by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, "more than made up lost ground for Rhodesia."

He referred to Dr. Ramsey's speech to the British Council of Churches in which the Anglican primate said Christians should support the use of British force in Rhodesia if the British government decided it was necessary.

His comments provoked a storm of criticism.

"I suppose I must be grateful for the worthy gentleman's remarks," Smith said today. "I gather we lost a little bit of ground when we restricted former prime minister Mr. Garfield Todd. Now we have more than made up for the lost ground."

Hopes Dim For Agreement On Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters)—British Prime Minister Wilson lunched today with Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia and the British leader prepared to meet later with the colony's two African nationalist heads.

It was the third meeting between the two key figures in the protracted Rhodesian crisis precipitated by Smith's threat to declare independence unilaterally and Britain's counter-threat of economic retaliation.

(In London the British cabinet met as hopes for the success of Wilson's mission dwindled. Informed sources said it appeared almost certain that Wilson would return Saturday without making any progress in his negotiations with Smith.)

Earlier today, Smith continued meetings with his cabinet while Wilson received a 26-man delegation of the provincial council of chiefs representing Rhodesia's 208 African chiefs and 400 headmen.

The council claims to represent the majority of the country's 4,000,000 Negro population, in opposition to the claims of African nationalist leaders Joshua Nkomo and Rev. Ndabanidni Sithole.

Wilson met the two Wednesday while Negroes staged demonstrations in the capital, and scheduled further talks with them today.

WON'T MEET LEADERS

After a 3½-hour meeting with his cabinet, Smith told reporters he would not sit around a table with Nkomo and Sithole. At an impromptu press conference on the doorstep of his office, he said: "Our position is quite clear on this. We have said on many occasions that we can't sit around a table with these people.

'FIRST RETREAT IN CAMPAIGN'

By IAN MacDONALD
Ottawa Bureau Staff Writer

TORONTO — Bandsmen in bright red uniforms blared out "Put On a Happy Smile."

Prime Minister Pearson threaded his way towards a platform through an estimated 14,000 people gathered in the world's largest covered shopping plaza.

A girl cleared her throat in readiness to sing O Canada.

A party spokesman leaned into the microphone to make the opening announcement.

There was silence.

In unbelieving horror, David Greenspan tapped the mikes and made another try.

Nothing.

And from that moment on—about 8:08 p.m.—developed the wildest, and most certainly, wackiest meeting of the campaign.

WOMEN FAINTED

There was noise, confusion, chaos, heat, fainting women, a handful of chanting, bearded peaceniks, pushing and waving placards, bands blaring in competition, a lone but loud piper, screaming cheer leaders, and some very confused people who had only come to Yorkdale Plaza to shop.

Some Liberal officials wore tight-lipped smiles, while others had end-of-the-world looks.

But Pearson kept a happy, if perspiring, face.

His big show Wednesday night in the modern, multi-million dollar setting had been let down by a simple electronics failure.

He didn't get mad; he didn't quit and he didn't lay blame.

He went down into the milling mob to shake hands, surrounded by plainclothes police who were almost swamped by the excited crowd.

PEOPLE CRUSHED

The people had come to see and hear Pearson—his planned speech was only to have lasted about 12 minutes and was a "let's-go-out-and-win" thing.

But nothing went right. He made three attempts to speak to the crowd through a hand

ANOTHER VOTE NEXT YEAR?

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said today that if the Liberals don't win a majority in the Nov. 8 election there will be another election next year.

He made the statement as an off-the-cuff remark to workers in the campaign headquarters of David Hahn, Liberal candidate in Toronto Broadview.

He said the Liberals are the only party with a chance to win a majority.

"There will be another election next year if we don't," he said.

4,000 A MONTH

Refugee Pact By Cuba, U.S.

HAVANA (CP)—Premier Fidel Castro today cut off the sea exodus of Cubans from the port of Camarico as a prelude to a U.S.-Cuban agreement to bring 3,000 to 4,000 refugees a month to the United States by air.

(In Key West, Fla., a U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said hundreds of Cubans have set sail for Florida despite bad weather. Waves 10 feet high were reported in the Florida Straits which separate Cuba and the U.S.)

The agreement is expected to be announced in Washington and Havana Friday.

The announcement cutting off the Camarioca exodus at midnight tonight came after a post-midnight meeting between Castro and Emil Stadelhofer, the Swiss ambassador to Havana.

The Swiss embassy represents U.S. interests in Cuba. Stadelhofer returned Wednesday from conferences in Washington.

Informed sources said the agreement calls for Cubans with relatives in the United States to be flown from Varadero airport, 85 miles east of Havana.

American planes — probably two a day carrying fewer than 100 persons each—will make the flights to airports in Florida, the sources said.

More than 3,000 refugees have sailed across the Florida Straits since Castro announced his open door policy earlier this month. They sailed in small boats piloted by their relatives in the United States.

B.C. Industry Would Benefit

SQUAMISH (CP) — Negotiations for a Canada-U.S. forest products pact similar to the automobile agreement will begin after the Nov. 8 federal election, Jack Davis, Liberal candidate in Coast-Capilano, said Wednesday.

Mr. Davis, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Pearson in the last parliament, said the pact is "definitely in the works."

"It is being actively explored on both sides of the border," he told an all-candidates meeting at the logging community 40 miles north of Vancouver.

"Right now there are no formal discussions but I would expect negotiations to be initiated right after the election."

Mr. Davis said a forest products pact would mean British Columbia would be able to send not only newsprint and pulp to the U.S., but more manufactured paper products, particularly fine papers.

"This will mean more jobs for more people here, more good-paying jobs," he said

Mr. Davis said the pact would be much more important to B.C. than the automobile agreement and could trigger a second boom in the B.C. forest industry.

Mr. Davis said there is bound to be opposition to the forest pact in the U.S. Congress but the approval of the auto agreement showed it can be done.

Under the auto pact, new cars can be moved across the border duty-free by the manufacturers, which means a saving of $50,000,000 a year. In return, the manufacturers have committed themselves to increasing production and jobs in Canada.

Mr. Davis said other industries are also being examined for feasibility of free trade pacts with the U.S. and one of the next would be industrial machinery.

Protest Sent to PM

CLARKSON, Ont. (CP)—John Kane, president of Local 9593 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (CLC), has sent two telegrams to Prime Minister Pearson protesting the federal government's use of petroleum products produced at the British American Oil Co's plant here.

Maritimes Promised New Deal

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker Wednesday night emptied a bag of Maritime promises to the largest political rally held in New Brunswick in this campaign.

Close to 3,500, a few hundred less than capacity, cheered the Tory chief who was making his second foray into the Atlantic provinces.

Today he campaigns in Prince Edward Island, the only province which he has not yet visited.

On the eve of Diefenbaker's visit the mayors of Halifax and Dartmouth in Nova Scotia and Saint John and Fredericton in New Brunswick released the text of a letter they had sent in August to Industry Minister Charles Drury asking that their areas be given 90 per cent of grants available to designated areas.

Diefenbaker said the Liberals had discriminated against the Maritimes and a Tory government would designate all the four areas so they could get the full grant.

"FORGOT MARITIMES"

"What was the attitude of the Liberals for 22 years?" he asked.

"They forgot that the Maritimes existed. We acted."

A Conservative government would:

● Restore shipbuilding subsidies which the government has frozen for several months.

● Revamp the Atlantic Development Board and provide necessary funds to continue its work. (The Liberals gave the fund $100 million.)

● A special case would be made for Maritime universities where the number of student per population was far higher than in the rest of Canada.

● Make a full and careful study of the long-suffering Chignecto Canal project and promote plans for the Bay of Fundy tidal power project.

NATIONAL SYMBOLS

And deep in red ensign territory he again scored the government for whittling away at national symbols.

Not one new flag was in the hall and the crowd roared approval when Diefenbaker said: "I am not ashamed of the stand I took on that issue."

One of the first things a Tory government would do would be to remove any reference of the off-shore mineral rights ques-

4 Spacemen To Attempt Rendezvous

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two U.S. astronauts will blast off into orbit in December, and two more spacemen will try to rendezvous with them about 10 days later, it was learned today.

Leading off will be Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, who are scheduled to take off from Cape Kennedy on Dec. 8 on a record 14-day, 209-orbit journey around earth.

If all goes well, Gemini 6 pilots Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford, grounded earlier this week in the nation's first attempt at a "chase in space," will be launched from the same Cape Kennedy firing pad, to try to catch up with their buddies.

The two spaceships will attempt to manoeuvre within a few feet of each other. There will be no space-walking in this flight.

$900 MILLION RETURN POSSIBLE

Wheat Sale to China May Reach Record

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian wheat board today announced a three-year agreement with China for the sale of at least 112,000,000 bushels of wheat starting next Aug. 1, and added it may be renegotiated for as much as 466,000,000 bushels over a five-year term.

The announcement was timed to coincide with the arrival here of Trade Minister Sharp, who said its value could range from a minimum of $200,000,000 in three years to $900,000,000 if the maximum five-year deal is worked out.

"On this basis," said the trade minister, "this would be the largest single wheat agreement ever concluded by the Canadian wheat board."

PLAN MORE TALKS

The board statement said the immediate agreement, signed earlier in Montreal, is for a minimum of 112,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 186,700,000 bushels over a three-year period beginning Aug. 1, 1966. Specific quantities, prices and shipping periods are to be negotiated periodically.

Before next May 1, however, "consideration will ge given" to two alternatives:

1. Increasing the quantity of the three-year agreement to a minimum of 168,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 280,000,000 bushels;

2. Extending the agreement to five years, involving a a minimum of 280,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 466,000,000 bushels.

Terms are similar to that in the current three-year agreement, expiring next July 31, under which China already has ordered the maximum 187,000,000 bushels worth about $336,000,000.

They call for 25 per cent cash at the time of loading with the balance in 18 months, with interest.

Mr. Sharp's statement said past experience with the Chinese indicates quantities purchased will be "closer to the maximum figure" allowed in the contract.

The deferred-payment provision was made possible by a Canadian government guarantee to the wheat board.

CREDIT GUARANTEE

"A revolving credit level of over $200,000,000 was required to facilitate this agreement and the government was pleased to provide the necessary credit guarantee which makes this business possible."

Coinciding with the deal, the annual export limit of "sensitive items" to Canada from China is increased to $10,000,000 from $7,000,000.

Said the minister:

"The Chinese corporation discussed with me their efforts to maintain and develop their market in Canada for various items. It is of course in our mutual interest to provide them with an opportunity to do so, subject to appropriate safeguards to avoid market disruption and damage to Canadian producers.

"Canadian producers of sensitive items are protected by individual quota restrictions. These are to be determined later by agreement between the two parties."

Grades of wheat involved in the deal were not announced but bulk of the final contract under the current three-year agreement, announced July 21, was lower grades—No. 4 northern,

PRIVATE HOME SELLERS
IN SELLING
YOUR HOME

1) BE HONEST. Don't conceal defects. You'll gain the prospect's confidence and he'll be inclined to do business with you.

2) BE OBJECTIVE. Put yourself in the prospect's shoes. Are you aware of his needs? KNOW the adaptability of your home through alteration or addition and its cost.

3) BE INFORMED. Above all know the mortgage field. Two-thirds of selling homes is financing them. There are probably 6 ways of financing your home catering to all down payments. Know them or a qualified buyer will slip through your fingers.

4) OR JUST RELAX. Real Estate Brokers are successful in selling homes. So—if you really want to sell, but just don't have the time, experience or specialized training to do it yourself, let your Broker sell it for you. You'll get top dollar, plus the quickest sale possible, without any aggravation, strain or pressure on yourself by calling:

'Routine Story,' Says Magistrate, 2 Minors Fined

Magistrate William Ostler heard an old familiar story in central court Wednesday.

And he said "I don't believe it."

Two minors who pleaded guilty to unlawful possession of liquor told the magistrate that a man bought the liquor for them at a liquor store and they did not know his identity.

Magistrate Ostler said this is now the "routine story" given by minors. He said, "Everyone says it . . . I don't believe it."

The magistrate suggested police keep a close watch on liquor stores. He imposed $35 fines on Patrick Lindseth, 435 Richmond, and Stanley Emerick, 1140 Queens.

Emerick, 20, was caught with a bottle of whisky at the White Spot Restaurant, and Lindseth, 19, was found in possession of two bottles of wine on the grounds of University of Victoria.
